

The Ancient History of India: An Archeological View by Potluri Rao In Seattle ©2018 (CC BY 4.0)

The current version of the ancient history of India has no scientific basis. It was derived from the Sanskrit fictional stories, a compilation of non-verifiable and nonsensical statements of unnatural characters and events. Contrary to the claims by the linguists, Sanskrit did not exist before the Greeks in Kashmir. Sanskrit was a mixture of only an Avestan dialect of South Bactria (Avesta) and Grandhika of Hindus.

Brahmins (DNA Z93) were Avestans kicked out to Kashmir for their unethical and immoral social behavior of robbing people with fictional rituals called Yajna. Idolatry, the worship of gods housed in temples, was a Greek invention to rob people. The Greeks in Kashmir discovered the unethical Avestan Brahmin refugees and put them on their payroll to help them invent fictional stories of their fictional temple gods in a synthetic Sanskrit language of artificial rules of syntax and grammar that they invented. All the Sanskrit literature was the forbidden Avestan Brahmin culture marketed as Hindu culture to deliberately destroy the ancient Hindu civilization; it was pure fiction.

Using scientific tools, we purged Avestan from Sanskrit (Avestan + Grandhika) to excavate Grandhika. The excavated Grandhika sections were pure logic; the discarded Avestan sections were plain rubbish. The Grandhika sections have a fascinating story of the now-lost Hindu civilization to tell.

The map shows the landscape that existed before the glacial melt of 20,000 years ago. Hindus (F) voluntarily moved out of Somalia 100,000 years ago to reach Peninsular India. They were rainwater people and lived only along the path of Indian monsoon winds, the white line. Europeans (R1) evolved only after the glacial melt, from the Stone Age. Some of them moved to Bactria only 4,000 years ago. Some of the R1a, called Sindhus, moved to the Indus River, near Pakistan. They were the warmongering people of the epic Mahabharata. They were Sindhus (R1a), not Hindus (F). Sindhus never lived in Peninsular India; Hindus never lived in the current Indus or the Himalayas.

Some Central Europeans (R1a1) moved to South Bactria (Avesta) 3,000 years ago. Avestans had no gods in human form; they worshiped nature by offering prayers, called Yasna, to express their gratitude. A compilation of Yasna was called the Zend.

Brahmins (Z93) were a subgroup (R1a1-a1h). They were con artists. They invented fictional gods in human form, called Vishnu, Shiva, and Indra, as miracle makers. They claimed to have acquired supernatural powers through meditation (tapas) to command gods to perform miracles on demand to cure any ailment. They invented fictional rituals called Yajna to invoke the gods on demand for a price. They marketed their fictional gods as snake oil. Compilations of fictional Yajna were called the Vedas. The original Vedas were composed in the Avestan dialect, not Sanskrit. They were pure fiction invented to market the fictional Brahmin gods as snake oil; they were the vandalized version of the Zend to rob Avestans.

Avestans realized that Brahmins were robbing them with fictional, worthless Yajna rituals. The Vedas, Yajna, and Brahmin were forbidden in Avesta. The unethical and immoral Brahmins (Z93) were kicked out to Kashmir; they were untouchables.

The Greeks in Kashmir discovered the Avestan refugees and put them on their payroll to invent fictional stories of their fictional temple gods. They invented a new synthetic Sanskrit language to conceal the true identity of Brahmins. The forbidden Avestan Vedas were resurrected in Sanskrit. All the Sanskrit literature was the forbidden Avestan snake oil dressed in Sanskrit clothes. It was the culture of the untouchable Avestan Brahmin refugees, not the Hindu culture.

The DNA samples of India revealed the true identity of Brahmins as the Avestans (Z93) kicked out of Avesta to Kashmir by Xerxes in 500 BCE. They were imported from Kashmir to Nalanda by the Greeks at great expense to deliberately destroy the Nalanda Hindu University, Hindu logic, and Hindu civilization. In the Sanskrit rubbish, the unethical, immoral, and delusional Brahmins glorified themselves as gods. The colonialists actively promoted the recent Sanskrit rubbish as the ancient Hindu religion.

People who believe in the Sanskrit rubbish as the divine truth are mentally retarded, incapable of separating fact from fiction. All Sanskrit literature was reduced to ashes when tossed in the fire of Hindu logic of hypothesis testing.
