

The Bhagavad Gita Logic of Satyam the Truth

Four thousand years ago, there was a Hindu University along the Ghaghara river where the four tributaries met. It specialized in logic. The original Upanishads were textbooks on logic at the University. They explained the concept of Satyam the Truth, the core of the Hindu logic.

The extant versions of Upanishads are not the originals. The originals are now lost, vandalized by the Greeks (200 CE). Using scientific tools, we were able to excavate bits and pieces of the original textbooks on logic (Upanishads) to reconstruct the lost Hinduism, the Hindu Scientific Method.

What follows is the essence of the excavated original Upanishads.

There were four textbooks that specialized on the logic of Satyam the Truth: (1) Mundaka, (2) Mandukya, (3) Katha, and (4) Bhagavad Gita. The original Gita Upanishad presented the essence of the other three in a concise logical format.

What is the Truth (Satyam)?

The Mundaka defined Satyam as: Satyameva Jayate (What is eternal is Satyam). Satyam is the path to and residence of the Supreme (the Truth). Only Satyam is eternal and survives the test of time (Evolution).

The Gita elaborated the concept of Satyam as a relationship (link, bond, layer) between Mind and Matter that is primeval, immutable, and eternal (Gita: 2.20). Mind cannot function in the land of Matter without Satyam. Satyam is the essential survival instinct acquired through the process of evolution by all life forms, not just humans (Gita: 5.18).

Think of Mind and Matter as different kinds of atoms, similar to Male (plug) and Female (socket). When an atom of Mind (Male, plug) and an atom of Matter (Female, socket) have the exact matching properties then they fuse to form a Truth (Satyam) molecule. Two Male type atoms cannot form a molecule. A molecule requires two different kinds of atoms, one Male type and one Female type with compatible specifications.

Satyam is a molecule. Mind and Matter are only atoms, different types of atoms. Mind has no Matter. Matter has no Mind. Satyam is neither Mind nor Matter; it is both. It is a molecule, not an atom.

Two incompatible atoms cannot be forced to form a molecule. A Satyam molecule implies that the two fused atoms have matching properties. Satyam molecules exist naturally in the Universe as a distinct class.

Satyam is a set of infinite number of Satyam molecules, of compatible Mind and Matter atoms, that are preexisting and perpetual in the Universe.

The Gita called the infinite set of theoretically possible Satyam molecules of Mind and Matter atoms the Brahmanda (complete set of Brahman).

The Gita called the Satyam molecules discovered so far as Brahman, and the ones not yet discovered as Sruti. Both the Brahman (known) and Sruti (unknown) are Satyam. Satyam is preexisting, perpetual, and infinite in number. It is the Order in the Universe, also known as Ishvar.

Brahmanda is beyond the comprehension of humans. Only a few Brahman molecules of Brahmanda have been discovered by humans so far. There are infinite number of preexisting and perpetual Brahman molecules to be discovered.

The Mundaka and Katha Upanishads stated, in identical words, that the Satyam molecules cannot be obtained from reading scriptures, intellect, rituals, penance, or good deeds. Satyam is beyond senses, mind, intellect, and awareness.

The Gita expressed the same view as: Vedas and rituals are as useless as a well in the middle of a flood (Gita: 2.46). People who market sacred texts and rituals are con-artists to rob gullible people. Truth is enclosed by ignorance thereby are mortals fooled (Gita: 5.15). Ignorance is packaged as a commercial product and marketed as Satyam.

Knowledge (Jnanam) that is the Truth (Satyam) and infinite (Anantam) is defined as Brahman: Satyam Jnanam Anantam Brahman.

Only Brahman is the true knowledge (Satyam molecule). It is discovered only by Rishi (logicians) who mastered the logic of Satyam.

Once discovered, Satyam molecules replicate and spread amongst life forms just like a virus. Satyam is propagated when people converse. Evolution encourages people to converse to exchange Satyam. Satyam is the survival instinct required for self-preservation in all life forms. It is the substance of the process of Evolution.

Our awareness of our surroundings (Reality) is the collection (set) of Satyam viruses we currently possess. Reality is dynamic, it changes as we acquire Satyam viruses. Mind controls functions of a body based only on its current Reality (viruses); it has no access to Brahmanda. We are the sum total of our current viruses, a subset of the Brahmanda.

The same logic of Satyam is employed by all life forms, not just humans. It is embedded in the genetic code. It is the survival instinct; beyond senses, mind, intellect, and awareness.

The Gita did not invent Satyam; it gave Satyam a logical structure. Brahmin, cow, elephant, dog, and dog-eater have the same logic of Satyam (Gita: 5.18).

As explained in the Gita Upanishad: a Satyam molecule (Virus) cannot kill and cannot be killed (Gita: 02.19), it has no birth or death (Gita: 02.20), and it is beyond senses, mind, and intellect (Gita: 3.42).

The Brahma Sutra, a textbook on logic at the Hindu University, presented a system of logic to verify whether a Proposition (Hypothesis) is a Satyam molecule. It was a synthesis of all the textbooks on logic at the University. It was known as Hinduism the Hindu Scientific Method. It was pure logic.

Unfortunately, the original Brahma Sutra and Upanishads are now lost. They were deliberately vandalized to worship manuals of fictional gods with supernatural powers. The vandalism was financed by the Greeks who occupied India after 200 CE.

The Gita Upanishad presented the Brahma Sutra in a logical format and popularized it as the Logic of Hypothesis Testing. The modern scientific method of Newton and Einstein is nothing but a restatement of the original Brahma Sutra as interpreted by the Gita Upanishad.

Issac Newton expressed the concept of Satyam as the Preexisting Perpetual Order in the Universe (Newtonian Physics). Truth is not invented; it is preexisting and exposed by the process of evolution. Newton did not invent the Gravity Satyam molecule. Gravity was preexisting and eternal (Satyam). Newton exposed it.

Albert Einstein reached the conclusion that only a Satyam molecule (eternal) is the true knowledge. It was known as the Einstein's Falsification Requirement. It was popularized by Karl Popper as the modern scientific method.

Newton and Einstein were Rishi (logicians) who mastered the logic of Satyam of the Upanishads. Unfortunately, Upanishads (textbooks on logic) were reduced to the Greek financed Brahmin rubbish. Fortunately, the logic of Satyam survived in the schools of logic. It is a system of logic, different from that of Deduction and Induction.

Hinduism (Logic of Satyam) was the exact opposite of Religion (dogma, blind faith). It was pure logic that evolved over thousands of years. The original Rig Veda, Brahma Sutra, and Upanishads were textbooks on logic at the Hindu University. Unfortunately, they are now lost.

Satyameva Jayate: Only Satyam is eternal.
