THE PREFACE.

T is a maxim in the fcience of legiflation 1 and government, that Laws are of no avail without manners, or, to explain the fentence more fully, that the best intended legislative provisions would have no beneficial effect even at first, and none at all in a short course of time, unlefs they were congenial to the difpofition and habits, to the religious prejudices, and approved immemorial usages of the people for whom they were enacted; especially if that people univerfally and fincerely believed, that all their ancient usages and established rules of conduct had the fanction of an actual revelation from heaven: the legislature of Britain having fhown, in compliance with this maxim, an intention to leave the natives of these Indian provinces in poffession of their own Laws, at least on the titles of contracts and inheritances. we may humbly prefume, that all future provisions, for the administration of justice and government in India, will be conformable, as far as the natives are affected by them, to the manners and opinions of the natives themfelves; an object which cannot poffibly be attained, until those manners and opinions can be fully and accurately known. These confiderations, and a few others more immediately within my province, were my principal motives for with-ing to know, and have induced me at length to publish, that fystem of duties, religious and civil, and of law in all its branches, which the Hindus firmly believe to have been promulged in the beginning of time by MENU, fon or grandfon of BRAHMA', or, in plain language, the first of created beings, and not the oldest only, but the holieft of legiflators; a fystem fo comprehensive and fo minutely exact, that it may be confidered as the Institutes of Hindu Law, preparatory to the copious Digest, which has lately been compiled by Pandits of eminent learning, and introductory perhaps to a Code which may fupply the many natural defects in the old jurisprudence of this country, and, without any deviation from its principles, accommodate it justly to the improvements of a commercial age.

WE are loft in an inextricable labyrinth of imaginary aftronomical cycles, Yugas, Mabáyugas, Calpas, and Menwantaras, in attempting to calculate the time, when the firft MENU, according to the Brábmens, governed this world, and became the progenitor of mankind, who from him are called Mánaváb; nor can we, fo clouded are the old hiftory and chronology of India with fables and allegories, afcertain the precife age, when the work, now prefented to the Publick, was actually composed; but we are in possibility internal, that it is really really one of the oldeft compositions existing. From a text of PARA'SARA difcovered by Mr. DAVIS, it appears, that the vernal equinox had gone back from the tenth degree of Bharani to the first of Aswini, or twenty-three degrees and twenty minutes, between the days of that Indian philosopher, and the year of our Lord 499, when it coincided with the origin of the Hindu ecliptick; fo that PARA'SARA probably flourished near the close of the twelfth century before CHRIST; now PARA'SARA was the grandfon of another fage, named VA'sISHT'HA, who is often mentioned in the laws of MENU, and once as contemporary with the divine BHRIGU himfelf; but the character of BHRIGU, and the whole dramatical arrangement of the book before us, are clearly fictitious and ornamental, with a defign, too common among ancient lawgivers, of stamping authority on the work by the introduction of fupernatural perfonages, though VA'SISHT'HA may have lived many generations before the actual writer of it, who names him, indeed, in one or two places as a philosopher in an earlier period. The ftyle, however, and metre of this work (which there is not the fmalleft reafon to think affectedly obfolete) are widely different from the language and metrical rules of CA'LIDA's, who unquestionably wrote before the beginning of our era; and the dialect of MENU is even observed, in many passages, to refemble that of the Véda, particularly in a departure from the more more modern grammatical forms ; whence it must, at first view, seem very probable, that the laws, now brought to light, were confiderably older than those of SOLON or even of LYCURgus, although the promulgation of them, before they were reduced to writing, might have been coeval with the first monarchies established in Egypt or Afia: but, having had the fingular good fortune to procure ancient copies of eleven Upanishads, with a very perspicuous comment, I am enabled to fix, with more exactnefs, the probable age of the work before us, and even to limit its highest possible age by a mode of reasoning, which may be thought new, but will be found, I perfuade myfelf, fatisfactory; if the Publick shall, on this occafion, give me credit for a few very curious facts, which, though capable of ftrict proof, can at prefent be only afferted. The Sanfcrit of the three first Védas, (I need not here speak of the fourth) that of the Manava Dherma Saftra, and that of the Puranas, differ from each other in pretty exact proportion to the Latin of NUMA, from whole laws entire fentences are preferved, that of APPIUS, which we fee in the fragments of the Twelve Tables, and that of CICERO, or of LUCRETIUS, where he has not affected an obfolete ftyle : if the feveral changes, therefore, of Sanfcrit and Latin took place, as we may fairly affume, in times very nearly proportional, the Védas must have been written about 300 years before these Institutes, and about about 600 before the Puránas and Itihás, which, I am fully convinced, were not the productions of VYA'SA; fo that, if the fon of PARA'SARA committed the traditional Védas to writing in the Sanscrit of his father's time, the original of this book must have received its prefent form about 880 years before CHRIST's birth. If the texts, indeed, which VYA'SA collected, had been actually written in a much older dialect, by the fages preceding him, we must inquire into the greatest possible age of the Védas themfelves : now one of the longest and fineft Upanishads in the fecond Veda contains three lifts, in a regular feries upwards, of at most forty-two pupils and preceptors, who fucceffively received and transmitted (probably by oral tradition) the doctrines contained in that Upanishad; and as the old Indian priefts were students at fifteen, and instructors at twenty-five, we cannot allow more than ten years, on an average, for each interval between the respective traditions; whence, as there are forty fuch intervals, in two of the lifts between VYA'SA, who arranged the whole work, and AYA'SYA, who is extolled at the beginning of it, and just as many, in the third lift, between the compiler and YA'JNYAWALCYA, who makes the principal figure in it, we find the highest age of the Yajur Véda to be 1580 years before the birth of our Saviour, (which would make it older than the five books of Moses) and that of our Indian law tract about 1280

Dia zed by Google

1280 years before the fame epoch. The former date, however, feems the more probable of the two, because the Hindu fages are faid to have delivered their knowledge orally, and the very word Sruta, which we often fee ufed for the Veda itfelf, means what was heard; not to infift that CULLU'CA expressly declares the fenfe of the Veda to be conveyed in the language of VYA'SA. Whether MENU or MENUS in the nominative and MENO'S in an oblique cafe, was the fame perfonage with MI-Nos, let others determine; but he must indubitably have been far older than the work, which contains his laws, and though perhaps he was never in Grete, yet fome of his inftitutions may well have been adopted in that island, whence LYCURGUS, a century or two afterwards, may have imported them to Sparta.

THERE is certainly a ftrong refemblance, though obfcured and faded by time, between our MENU with his divine Bull, whom he names as DHERMA himfelf, or the genius of abstract justice, and the MNEUES of Egypt with his companion or fymbol Apis; and, though we should be constantly on our guard against the delusion of etymological conjecture, yet we cannot but admit that MINOS and MNEUES, or Mneuis, have only Greek terminations, but that the crude noun is composed of the fame radical letters both in Greek and in Sanfcrit. • That APIS and MNEUIS,' fays the Analyst of ancient Mythology, ' were both reprefen-' tations tations of fome perfonage, appears from the · teftimony of LYCOPHRON and his fcholiaft; and that perfonage was the fame, who in · Crete was flyled MINOS, and who was alfo reprefented under the emblem of the Mino-· taur: DIODORUS, who confines him to Egypt. fpeaks of him by the title of the bull Mneuis, " as the first lawgiver, and fays, " That he lived " after the age of the gods and heroes, when " a change was made in the manner of life " among men; that he was a man of a most " exalted foul, and a great promoter of civil " fociety, which he benefited by his laws; " that those laws were unwritten, and receiv-" ed by him from the chief Egyptian deity " HERMES, who conferred them on the world " as a gift of the highest importance." He ' was the fame, adds my learned friend, with • MENES, whom the Egyptians reprefented as · their first king and principal benefactor, who · first facrificed to the gods, and brought about ' a great change in diet.' If MINOS, the fon of JUPITER, whom the Cretans, from national vanity, might have made a native of their own ifland, was really the fame perfon with MENU. the fon of BRAHMA', we have the good fortune to reftore, by means of Indian literature, the most celebrated system of heathen jurisprudence, and this work might have been entitled The Laws of MINOS; but the paradox is too fingular to be confidently afferted, and the geographical part of the book, with most of the the allufions to natural hiftory, must indubitably have been written after the Hindu race had fettled to the fouth of Himálaya. We cannot but remark that the word MENU has no relation whatever to the Moon; and that it was the feventb, not the first of that name, whom the Brábmens believe to have been preferved in an ark from the general deluge : him they call the Child of the Sun, to diffinguish him from our legislator; but they affign to his brother YAMA the office (which the Greeks were pleased to confer on MINOS) of Judge in the shades below.

THE name of MENU is clearly derived (like menes, mens, and mind) from the root men to understand; and it fignifies, as all the Pandits agree, intelligent, particularly in the doctrines of the Véda, which the composer of our Dherma Sáltra must have studied very diligently; fince great numbers of its texts, changed only in a few fyllables for the fake of the measure, are interspersed through the work, and cited at length in the commentaries: the Publick may, therefore, affure themfelves, that they now poffels a confiderable part of the Hindu scripture, without the dullness of its profane ritual or much of its mystical jargon. DA'RA SHUCU'H was perfuaded, and not without found reafon, that the first MENU of the Brahmens could be no other perfon than the progenitor of mankind, to whom Yews, Christians, and Muselmans, unite in giving the name of ADAM; but, whowhoever he might have been he is highly honoured by name in the Veda itfelf, where it is declared, that ' whatever MENU pronounced. " was a medicine for the foul,' and the fage VRIHASPATI, now supposed to prefide over the planet Jupiter, fays in his own law tract, that . MENU held the first rank among legisla-• tors, because he had expressed in his code the " whole fenfe of the Veda; that no code was · approved, which contradicted MENU; that • other Saltras, and treatifes on grammar or logick, retained fplendour fo long only, as · MENU, who taught the way to just wealth, to · virtue and to final happinefs, was not feen in · competition with them :' VYA'SA too, the fon of PARA'SARA before mentioned, has decided, that ' the Veda with its Angas, or the fix compositions deduced from it, the revealed system of medicine, the Puranas, or fa-· cred histories, and the code of MENU were four works of fupreme authority, which · ought never to be fhaken by arguments " merely human."

It is the general opinion of Pandits, that BRAHMA' taught his laws to MENU in a hundred thoufand verfes, which MENU explained to the primitive world, in the very words of the book now translated, where he names himfelf, after the manner of ancient fages, in the third perfon, but in a fhort preface to the law tract of NA'RED, it is afferted, that ' MENU, ' having written the laws of BRAHMA' in a ' hundred

THE PREFACE.

· hundred thousand flocas or couplets, arranged under twenty-four heads in a thousand chapters, delivered the work to NA'RED, · the fage among gods, who abridged it, for • the use of mankind, in twelve thousand verses. and gave them to a fon of BHRIGU, named · SUMATI, who, for greater eafe to the hu-" man race, reduced them to four thousand; · that mortals read only the fecond abridge-· ment by SUMATI, while the gods of the · lower heaven, and the band of celeftial mufi-· cians, are engaged in fludying the primary · code, beginning with the fifth verfe, a little • varied, of the work now extant on earth; · but that nothing remains of NA'RED's abridge-• ment, except an elegant epitome of the ninth · original title on the administration of justice.' Now, fince these inftitutes confist only of two thousand fix hundred and eighty five verses, they cannot be the whole work alcribed to SUMATI, which is probably diffinguished by the name of the Vriddba, or ancient Mánava, and cannot be found entire; though feveral paffages from it, which have been preferved by tradition, are occafionally cited in the new digeft.

A NUMBER of gloffes or comments on MENU were composed by the Munis, or old philosophers, whose treatifes, together with that before us, constitute the Dhermasáftra, in a collective sense, or Body of Law; among the more modern commentaries, that called Médbátit'bi,

Philippiny Google

batit'bi, that by Go'VINDARAJA, and that by DHARANI'-DHERA, were once in the greatest repute; but the first was reckoned prolix and unequal; the fecond concife but obfcure; and the third often erroneous. At length appeared CULLU'CA BHATTA; who, after a painful courfe of fludy and the collation of numerous manufcripts, produced a work, of which it may, perhaps, be faid very truly, that it is the fhorteft, yet the most luminous, the least oftentatious, yet the most learned, the deepest, yet the most agreeable, commentary ever composed on any author ancient or modern, European or The Pandits care fo little for genu-Ahatick. ine chronology, that none of them can tell me the age of CULLU'CA, whom they always name with applause; but he informs us himfelf, that he was a Bråhmen of the Váréndra tribe, whofe family had been long fettled. in Gaur or Bengal, but that he had chofen his refidence among the learned, on the banks of the holy river at Cáfi. His text and interpretation I have almost implicitly followed, though I had myfelf collated many copies of MENU, and among them a manufcript of a very ancient date : his glofs is here printed in Italicks ; and any reader, who may choose to pass it over as if unprinted, will have in Roman letters an exact verfion of the original, and may form fome idea of its character and ftructure, as well as of the Sanfcrit idiom which must necessarily be preferved in a verbal tranflation; and a tranflation.

tion, not ferupuloufly verbal, would have been highly improper in a work on fo delicate and momentous a fubject as private and criminal jurifprudence.

SHOULD a feries of Brabmens omit, for three generations, the reading of MENU, their facerdotal clafs, as all the Pandits affure me, would in ftrictnefs be forfeited ; but they must explain it only to their pupils of the three highest class; and the Brahmen, who read it with me, requested most earnestly, that his name might be concealed; nor would he have read it for any confideration on a forbidden day of the moon, or without the ceremonies prefcribed in the fecond and fourth chapters for a lecture on the VEDA: fo great, indeed, is the idea of fanctity annexed to this book, that, when the chief native magistrate at Banares endeavoured, at my request, to procure a Perfian translation of it, before I had a hope of being at any time able to understand the original, the Pandits of -his court unanimoufly and positively refused to affift in the work ; nor fhould I have procured it at all, if a wealthy Hindu at Gayà had not caufed the verfion to be made by tome of his dependants, at the defire of my friend Mr. LAW. The Persian translation of MENU, like all others from the Sanfcrit into that language, is a rude intermixture of the text, loofely rendered, with fome old or new comment, and often with the crude notions of the tranflator; and though it expresses the general fense of the original, yet it fwarms with errours, imputable and the second partly partly to haste, and partly to ignorance : thus where MENU fays, that emission are the eyes of a prince, the Persian phrase makes him ascribe four eyes to the person of a king; for the word char, which means an emission in Sanscrit, fignifies four in the popular dialect.

THE work, now prefented to the European world, contains abundance of curious matter extremely interefting both to fpeculative lawyers and antiquaries, with many beauties which need not be pointed out, and with many blemishes which cannot be justified or palliated. It is a fystem of despotism and priestcrast, both indeed limited by law, but artfully confpiring to give mutual fupport, though with mutual checks; it is filled with ftrange conceits in metaphyficks and natural philosophy, with idle fuperstitions, and with a scheme of theology most obscurely figurative, and confequently liable to dangerous mifconception; it abounds with minute and childish formalities, with ceremonies generally abfurd and often ridiculous; the punishments are partial and fanciful; for fome crimes; dreadfully cruel, for others, reprehensibly flight; and the very morals, though rigid enough on the whole, are in one or two inflances (as in the cafe of light oaths and of pious perjury) unaccountably relaxed : neverthelefs, a fpirit of fublime devotion; of benevolence to mankind, and of amiable tendernefs to all fentient creatures, pervades the whole work; the ftyle of it has a certain auftere 3 auftere majefty, that founds like the language of legiflation, and extorts a respectful awe; the fentiments of independence on all beings but GOD, and the harsh admonitions, even to kings, are truly noble; and the many panegyricks on the Gayatri, the Mother as it is called, of the Veda, prove the author to have adored (not the visible material fun, but) that divine and incomparably greater light, to use the words of the most venerable text in the Indian icripture, which illumines all, delights all, from which all proceed, to which all must return, and which alone can irradiate (not our vifual organs merely, but our fouls and) our intellects. Whatever opinion in fhort may be formed of MENU and his laws, in a country happily enlightened by found philosophy and the only true revelation, it must be remembered, that those laws are actually revered, as the word of the Most High, by nations of great importance to the political and commercial interests of Europe, and particularly by many millions of Hindu subjects, whose well directed industry would add largely to the wealth of Britain, and who afk no more in return than protection for their perfons and places of abode, juftice in their temporal concerns, indulgence to the prejudices of their old religion, and the benefit of those laws, which they have been taught to believe facred, and which alone they can poffibly comprehend.

LAWS OF MENU,

SON OF BRAHMÁ.

CHAPTER THE FIRST.

On the Creation; with a Summary of the Contents

1. MENU fat reclined, with his attention fixed on one object, the Supreme Gob; when the divine Sages approached him, and, after mutual falutations in due form, delivered the following addrefs:

2. Deign, fovereign ruler, to apprize us of the facred laws in their order, as they must be followed by all the four classes, and by each of them, in their feveral degrees, together with the duties of every mixed class;

3. 'For thou, Lord, and thou only among mor-' tals, knoweft the true fenfe, the first principle, ' and the prefcribed ceremonies, of this universal, ' fupernatural Veda,' unlimited in extent and un-' equalled in authority.'

4. HE, whole powers were measureles, being thus requested by the great Sages, whole thoughts were profound, faluted them all with reverence, and gave them a comprehensive answer, faying: <sup>6</sup> Be it heard !

5. 'This universe existed only in the first divine 'idea yet unexpanded, as if involved in darkness, imperceptible, undefinable, undifcoverable by B 'reason, 2

" reafon, and undifcovered by revelation, as if it were wholly immerfed in fleep:

6. 'Then the fole felf-exifting power, himfelf ' undifcerned, but making this world difcernible, ' with five elements and other principles of nature, ' appeared with undiministed glory, expanding ' bis idea, or difpelling the gloom.

7. ' HE, whom the mind alone can perceive, ' whofe effence eludes the external organs, who ' has no vifible parts, who exifts from eternity, ' even HE, the foul of all beings, whom no being ' can comprehend, fhone forth in perfon.

8. 'He, having willed to produce various beings from his own divine fubftance, first with a thought created the waters, and placed in them a productive feed:

9. 'The feed became an egg bright as gold, 'blazing like the luminary with a thousand 'beams; and in that egg he was born himself, 'in the form of BRAHMA', the great forefather of 'all spirits.

10. 'The waters are called nárá, becaufe they 'were the production of NARA, or the fpirit of GOD; and, fince they were his first ayana, or 'place of motion, he thence is named NARA'YANA, 'or moving on the waters.

11. 'From THAT WHICH IS, the first caule, ' not the object of fense, existing every where in ' fubstance, not existing to our perception, without ' beginning or end, was produced the divine male, ' famed in all worlds under the appellation of ' BRAHMA'.

12. 'In that egg the great power fat inactive a 'whole year of the Creator, at the clofe of which, 'by his thought alone, he caufed the egg to divide 'itfelf;

48. 'There are fhrubs with many ftalks from the root upwards, and reeds with fingle roots but united ftems, all of different kinds, and graffes, and vines or climbers, and creepers, which fpring from a feed or from a flip.

49. 'Thefe animals and vegetables, encircled ' with multiform darknefs, by reafon of paft ac-' tions, have internal conficience, and are fenfible ' of pleafure and pain.

50. 'All transmigrations, recorded in facred books, from the flate of BRAHMA', to that of plants, happen continually in this tremendous world of beings; a world always tending to decay.

51. ' HE, whole powers are incomprehenfible, having thus created both me and this univerle, was again abforbed in the fupreme Spirit, changing the time of energy for the time of repole.

52. When that Power awakes, (for, though fumber le not predicable of the fole eternal Mind,

- ' infinitely wife and infinitely benevolent, yet it is pre-
- ' dicated of BRAHMA', figuratively, as a general pro- ' perty of life) then has this world its full expansion;

but, when he flumbers with a tranquil fpirit,then the whole fyftem fades away;

53. 'For, while he repofes, as it were, in calm fleep, embodied fpirits, endued with principles B 4 'of • of action, depart from their feveral acts, and the • mind itfelf becomes inert;

54. 'And when they once are abforbed in that fupreme effence, then the divine foul of all beings withdraws his energy, and placidly flumbers;

55. 'Then too this vital foul of created bodies, 'with all the organs of fenfe and of action, remains long immerfed in the first idea or in darknefs, and performs not its natural functions, but migrates from its corporeal frame :

56. 'When, being again composed of minute elementary principles, it enters at once into vegetable or animal feed, it then affumes a new form.

57. 'Thus that immutable Power, by waking 'and repofing alternately, revivifies and deftroys in eternal fucceffion, this whole affemblage of locomotive and immoveable creatures.

58. 'HE, having enacted this code of laws, 'himfelf taught it fully to me in the beginning: 'afterwards I taught it MARICHI and the nine 'other holy fages.

59. 'This my fon BHRIGU will repeat the divine code to you without omiffion; for that fage learned from me to recite the whole of it.'

60. BHRIGU, great and wife, having thus been appointed by MENU to promulge his laws, addreffed all the Rifbis with an affectionate mind, faying: 'Hear!

61. FROM this MENU named SWA'YAMBHUVA, or Sprung from the felf-existing, came fix defcendants, other MENUS, or perfectly understanding the scripture, each giving birth to a race of his own, all exalted in dignity, eminent in power; 62. SWARO'CHISHA, AUTTAMI, TA'MASA, RAIVATA

- Swa'yambhuva is the chief, have produced and
- ' fupported this world of moving and stationary
- beings, each in his own antara, or the period of • bis reign.

64. 'Eighteen uimésbas, or twinklings of an eye, ' are one cásht'bá; thirty cásht'bás, one calá; ' thirty calás, one mubírta: and just fo many ' mubírtas let mankind consider as the duration

- of their day and night. 65. • The fun caufes the distribution of day and
- ' night, both divine and human; night being
- ' intended for the repole of various beings, and day
- for their exertion. 66. A month of mortals is a day and a night
- of the Pitris or patriarchs inhabiting the moon; • and the division of a month being into equal
- halves, the half beginning from the full moon is
- ". their day for actions; and that beginning from
- their day for actions; and that beginning from

• the new moon is their night for flumber :

67. ' A year of mortals is a day and a night of the Gods, or regents of the universe seated round

- " the north pole; and again their division is this,
- <sup>e</sup> their day is the northern, and their night the <sup>e</sup> fouthern courfe of the fun.

68. 'Learn now the duration of a day and a night of Вканма', and of the feveral ages which shall be mentioned in order fuccinctly.

69. 'Sages have given the name of Crita to an age containing four thousand years of the Gods; the twilight preceding it confifts of as many hundreds, and the twilight following it, of the fame number:

70. ' In

70. 'In the other three ages, with their twilights 'preceding and following, are thousands and 'hundreds diminished by one.

71. 'The divine years, in the four buman ages 'juft enumerated, being added together, their 'fum, or twelve thousand, is called the age of the Gods:

72. And, by reckoning a thousand such divine ages, a day of BRAHMA' may be known: his inght also has an equal duration:

73. 'Those perfons best know the divisions of 'the days and nights, who understand that the 'day of BRAHMA, which endures to the end of a 'thousand fuch ages, gives rife to virtuous ex-'ertions; and that his night endures as long as 'his day.

74. At the close of his night, having long reposed, he awakes, and awaking, exerts intellect, or reproduces the great principle of animation, whose property it is to exist unperceived by fense:

75. 'Intellect, called into action by his will to create worlds, performs again the work of creation; and thence first emerges the fubil ether, to which philosophers aferibe the quality of conveying found;

76. 'From ether, effecting a transmutation 'in form, fprings the pure and potent air, a ve-'hicle of all fcents; and air is held endued with 'the quality of touch:

77. 'Then from air, operating a change, rifes 'light or fire, making objects vifible, difpelling

' gloom, spreading bright rays; and it is declared

' to have the quality of figure;

78. 'But from light, a change being effected, ' comes water with the quality of tafte; and from ' water

- water is deposited earth with the quality of smell :
- fuch were they created in the beginning. 79. 'The before-mentioned age of the Gods,
- " or twelve thousand of their years, being mul-
- ' tiplied by feventy-one, conftitutes what is here
- ' named a Menwantara, or the reign of a MENU.

80. 'There are numberles' Menwantaras, 'creations also and deftructions of worlds, in-'numerable: the Being supremely exalted performs all this, with as much ease as if in sport;

- ' again and again, for the fake of conferring hap-
- · pine's.

81. 'In the Crita age the Genius of truth and 'right, in the form of a Bull, ftands firm on his four feet; nor does any advantage accrue to

' men from iniquity;

82. But in the following ages, by reafon of unjuft gains, he is deprived fucceffively of one foot; and even juft emoluments, through the prevalence of thefr, fallehood, and fraud, are gradually diminifhed by a fourth part.

83. 'Men, free from difeafe, attain all forts of profperity, and live four hundred years in the Crita age; but, in the Trétà and the fucceeding ages, their life is leffened gradually by one quarter.

84. 'The life of mortals, which is mentioned 'in the Véda, the rewards of good works, and the powers of embodied fpirits, are fruits proportioned among men to the order of the four ages.

85. 'Some duties are performed by good men in the Crita age; others, in the Trâtà; fome, in the Dwápara; others, in the Cali; in proportion as those ages decrease in length.

86. ' In the Crita the prevailing virtue is de· clared to be in devotion; in the Trétà, divine

- ' knowledge; in the Dwápara, holy fages call
- ' facrifice the duty chiefly performed; in the
- · Cali, liberality alone.

87. 'For the fake of preferving this univerfe, the Being, fupremely glorious, allotted feparate duties to those who sprang respectively from his ' mouth, his arm, his thigh, and his foot.

88. 'To Bráhmens he affigned the duties of reading the Véda, of teaching it, of facrificing, of affitting others to facrifice, of giving alms, if they be rich, and, if indigent, of receiving gifts:

89. 'To defend the people, to give alms, to 'facrifice, to read the Vida, to fhun the allure-'ments of fenfual gratification, are, in a few 'words, the duties of a Chatriya:

90. 'To keep herds of cattle, to beftow lar-'geffes, to facrifice, to read the fcripture, to carry 'on trade, to lend at interest, and to cultivate 'land are prefcribed or permitted to a Vai/ya:

91. 'One principal duty the supreme Ruler 'affigns to a Súdra; namely, to serve the before-mentioned classes, without depreciating their worth.

92. ' Man is declared purer above the navel; ' but the felf-creating Power declared the pureft ' part of him to be his mouth.

93. 'Since the Brábmen fprang from the most excellent part, fince he was the first born, and fince he posses the Véda, he is by right the chief of this whole creation.

94. 'Him, the Being, who exifts of himfelf, 'produced in the beginning from his own mouth, 'that, having performed holy rites, he might 'prefent clarified butter to the Gods, and cakes 'of

95. What created being then can furpals "Him, with whole mouth the Gods of the firmament continually feaft on clarified butter, and the manes of anceftors, on hallowed cakes?

96. 'Of created things, the moft excellent are ' those which are animated; of the animated, ' those which subsist by intelligence; of the ine telligent, mankind; and of men, the facerdotal

clafs;

97. ' Of priefts, those eminent in learning; ' of the learned, those who know their duty; of

- · those who know it, such as perform it virtuously;
- · and of the virtuous, those who seek beatitude

- ' trine.

98. 'The very birth of Brábmens is a conftant incarnation of DHERMA, God of Justice; for the

- " cure ultimate happinefs.

09. 'When a Brábmen fprings to light, he is' 'born above the world, the chief of all creatures,

' affigned to guard the treasury of duties, religious and civil.

100. 'Whatever exifts in the univerfe, is all 'in effect, though not in form, the wealth of 'the Bráhmen; fince the Bráhmen is entitled, 'to it all by his primogeniture and eminence'

- MENU, fprung from the felf-exifting, promulged • this code of laws:
- 103. 'A code which must be studied with extreme ease by every learned Bráhmen, and fully explained to his disciples, but must be taught by
- " no other man of an inferior class. 104. " The Bråhmen who fludies this book,
- having performed facred rites, is perpetually free from offence in thought, in word, and in deed;
- 105. 'He confers purity on his living family, on his anceftors, and on his defcendants, as far as the feventh perfon; and He alone deferves to poffefs this whole earth.

106. ' This most excellent code produces every

- ' thing auspicious; this code increases under-
- ' ftanding; this code procures fame and long life;
- this code leads to supreme bliss. 107. • In this book appears the system of law
- in its full extent, with the good and bad pro-
- e perties of human actions, and the immemorial
- cuftoms of the four claffes. 108. • Immemorial cuftom is transcendent law,

<sup>e</sup> approved in the facred foripture, and in the <sup>e</sup> codes of divine legislators: let every man, there-

- fore, of the three principal classes, who has a due
- reverence for the [upreme spirit which dwells in
- · bim, diligently and conftantly observe imme-
- morial cuftom :

109. 'A man of the prieftly, military, or commercial clafs, who deviates from immemorial ufage, taftes not the fruit of the Véda; but, by an exact obfervance of it, he gathers

- * that fruit in perfection.
- 110. 'Thus have holy fages, well knowing that law is grounded on immemorial cuftom, embraced,

14 embraced, as the root of all piety, good ufages long eftablished.

TIT. 'THE creation of this univerle, the forms of inftitution and education, with the observances and behaviour of a fludent in theology; the beft rules for the ceremony on his return from the mansfion of his preceptor;

112. 'The law of marriage in general, and of nuptials in different forms; the regulations for the great facraments, and the manner, primevally fettled, of performing obfequies;

- 113. 'The modes of gaining fublistence, and
- the rules to be observed by the master of a • family; the allowance and prohibition of diet,
- " with the purification of men and utenfils; 114. Laws concerning women, the devotion
- of hermits, and of anchorets wholly intent on
- final beatitude, the whole duty of a king, and
- the judicial decifion of controverfies, 115.
   With the law of evidence and examina- ' tion; laws concerning hufband and wife, canons

CHAPTER THE SECOND.

On Education; or on the Sacerdotal Class, and The First Order.

1. ' Know that fystem of duties, which is re-' vered by fuch as are learned in the Védas, and ' impreffed, as the means of attaining beatinude, on ' the hearts of the just, who are ever exempt from hatred and inordinate affection. 2. ' Self-love is no laudable motive, yet an exemption from felf-love is not to be found in-' this world : on felf-love is grounded the ftudy-' of fcripture, and the practice of actions re- commended in it. 3. ' Eager defire to all has its root in expecta-' tion of fome advantage; and with fuch expec-' tation are facrifices performed; the rules of religious aufterity and abstinence from fins are ' all known to arife from hope of remuneration. 4. 'Not a fingle act here below appears ever to be done by a man free from felf-love; what-· ever he performed, it is wrought from his defire · of a reward. s. ' He, indeed, who fhould perfift in di/charg-" ing these duties without any view to their fruit,

" would attain hereafter the flate of the immortals, and even in this life, would enjoy all the vir-tuous gratifications, that his fancy could fuggeft. 6. ' The 6. 'The roots of law are the whole Véda, the ordinances and moral practices of fuch as perfectly understand it, the immemorial customs of good men, and, in cafes quite indifferent, felffatisfaction. 7. Whatever law has been ordained for any perfon by MENU, that law is fully declared in

• the Véda: for He was perfect in divine know-• ledge:

8. A man of true learning, who has viewed this complete fystem with the eye of facred wifdom, cannot fail to perform all those duties, which are ordained on the authority of the Véda.
9: No doubt, that man who shall follow the rules prescribed in the Sruti and in the Smrtii, will acquire fame in this life, and, in the next,
inexpressible happines:
10. By Sruti, or what was keard from above, is meant the Véda; and by Smrili, or vobat voas remembered from the beginning, the body of law:

those two must not be oppugned by heterodox arguments; fince from those two, proceeds the whole system of duties.

- 11. Whatever man of the three higheft claffes, having addicted himfelf to heretical books, fhall treat with contempt those two roots of law, he must be driven, as an Athesist and a scorner of revelation, from the company of the virtuous.

12. • The feripture, the codes of law, ap-• proved ulage, and, in all indifferent cafes, felf-• fatisfaction, the wife have openly declared to • be the quadruple defeription of the juridical • fyftem. 13. • A knowledge of right is a fufficient incentive for men unattached to wealth or to fenfuality; and to those who feek a knowledge of right,

right, the fupreme authority is divine revela-· tion;

14. ' But, when there are two facred texts, ap-· parently inconfistent, both are held to be law; for " both are pronounced by the wife to be valid

• and reconcileable ;

15. 'Thus in the Véda are thefe texts : " let " the facrifice be when the fun has arifen," and, " before it has rifen," and, " when neither fun " nor ftars can be feen :" the facrifice, therefore. • may be performed at any or all of those times.

16. ' He, whole life is regulated by holy texts. from his conception even to his funeral pile. " has a decided right to ftudy this code; but no · other man whatfoever.

17. 'BETWEEN the two divine rivers Sarafroati

- " and Drifbadwali, lies the tract of land, which
- ' the fages have named Brahmaverta, because it
- ' was frequented by Gods :

18. ' The cuftom preferved by immemorial ' tradition in that country, among the four pure · claffes, and among those which are mixed, is · called approved ulage.

19. ' Curucsheitra, Matsya, Panchila, or Canva-· cubia, and Surajéna, or Mat'hurà, form the re-

- gion called Brahmar, bi, diltinguithed from Brah-
- · maverla:

20. ' From a Brühmen who was born in that country, let all men on earth learn their feveral · ulages.

21. ' That country which lies between Hima-

- " wat and Vindhya, to the east of Vinas'ana, and to
- the weft of Prayaga, is celebrated by the title of
- · Medbya-d'fa, or the central region.
- 22. ' As far as the eaftern, and as far as the
- · western oceans, between the two mountains' just · men-

C 2

" mentioned, lies the tract which the wife have " named Ariaverta, or inhabited by respectable men.

23. 'That land, on which the black antelope 'naturally grazes, is held fit for the performance 'of facrifices; but the land of Mléch'has, or thofe

" who /peak barbaroufly, differs widely from it.

24. CLet the three first classes invariably dwell in those before-mentioned countries; but a Skdra, distressed for subsistence, may sojourn wherever he chuses.

25. 'Thus has the origin of law been fuccinct-'ly declared to you, together with the formation of this univerfe: now learn the laws of the feveral claffes.

26. WITH aufpicious acts preferibed by the Véda, muft ceremonies on conception, and fo forth, be duly performed, which purify the bodies of the three claffes in this life, and qualify them for the next.

27. ' By oblations to fire during the mother's ' pregnancy, by holy rites on the birth of the ' child, by the tonfure of his head with a lock of ' hair left on it, by the ligation of the facrificial ' cord, are the feminal and uterine taints of the ' three claffes wholly removed :

28. By fludying the Véda, by religious obfervances, by oblations to fire, by the ceremony of Traividia, by offering to the Gods and Manes, by the procreation of children, by the five great facraments, and by folemn facrifices, this human body is rendered fit for a divine flate.

30. ' Let

30. 'Let the father perform or, if absent, caule to be performed, on the tenth or twelfth day after the birth, the ceremony of giving a name; or on fome fortunate day of the moon, at a lucky hour, and under the influence of a ftar with good qualities.

31. The first part of a Bráhmen's compound name should indicate holinels; of a Cshatriya's, power; of a Vaifya's, wealth; and of a Súdra's contempt:

32. ' Let the fecond part of the prieft's name ' imply profperity; of the foldier's, prefervation; ' of the merchant's, nourifhment; of the fervant's, ' humble attendance.

33. 'The names of women fhould be agreeable, 'foft, clear, captivating the fancy, aufpicious, ending in long vowels, refembling words of benediction.

34. In the fourth month the child fhould be carried out of the houle to fee the fun: in the fixth month, he fhould be fed with rice; or that may be done, which, by the cultom of the family, is thought molt propitious.

35. By the command of the Vida, the ceremony of tonfure fhould be legally performed by the three first claffes in the first or third year after birth.

36. 'In the eighth year from the conception 'of a Brábmen, in the eleventh from that of a 'Chatriya, and in the twelfth from that of a 'Vaifya, let the father invest the child with the 'mark of his class: 37. 'Should a Bráhmen, or his father for kim,

· be defirous of his advancement in facred know-

- · ledge; a Chatriya, of extending his power; or a
- Vaifya of engaging in mercantile bufinefs; the C 3 in.

f investiture may be made in the fifth, fixth, or f eighth years respectively.

38. • The ceremony of invefliture hallowed by • the giyatri must not be delayed, in the cafe of a • priest, beyond the fixteenth year; nor in that • of a foldier, beyond the twenty-fecond; nor in • that of a merchant, beyond the twenty-fourth. 39. • After that all youths of these three classes, • who have not been invested at the proper time, • become vrátyas, or outcass, degraded from the • giyatri, and contemned by the virtuous:

40. 'With fuch impure men, let no Bråhmen, even in diftres for subfiftence, ever form a connexion in law, either by the fludy of the Véda, f or by affinity.

41. Let fludents in theology wear for their mantles, the hides of black antelopes, of common deer, or of goats, with lower vefts of woven s'ana, of cfbumà, and of wool, in the direct order of their claffes.

42. 'The girdle of a priest must be made of mujja, in a triple cord, smooth and soft; that of a warrior must be a bow string of murvá; that of a merchant, a triple thread of s'ana.

43 ' If the munja be not procurable, their zones must be formed respectively of the graffes cusa almantaca, valvaja, in triple thrings with one, three, or two knots, according to the family custom.

46. ' The faff of a prieft must be of fuch length ' as to reach his hair ; that of a foldier, to reach " his forehead ; and that of a merchant, to reach · his nofe. 47. ' Let all the flaves be ftraight, without · fracture, of a handfome appearance, not likely ' to terrify men, with their bark perfect, unhurt · by fire. 48. ' Having taken a legal flaff to his liking, and flanding oppofite to the fun, let the fludent " thrice walk round the fire from left to right, and · perform, according to law, the ceremony of afk-' ing food : 49. ' The most excellent of the three classes, ' being girt with the facrificial thread, must afk ' food with the respectful word bhavati, at the · beginning of the phrase; those of the second clafs, with that word in the middle; and those of the third, with that word at the end.

50. 'Let him first beg food of his mother, or of his fister, or of his mother's whole fister; then of fome other female who will not difgrace him.
51. 'Having collected as much of the defired food as he has occasion for, and having prefented it without guile to his preceptor, let him eat fome of it, being duly purified, with his face to the east:

52. • If he feek long life, he fhould eat with his • face to the eaft, if exalted fame to the fouth; if • profperity to the weft; if truth and is reward to • the north.

53. Let the fludent, having performed his ablution, always eat his food without diltraction of mind; and, having eaten, let him thrice wafh his mouth completely, fprinkling with water the fix hollow parts of his head, or bis eyes, ears, and nofirils.

54. 'Let him honour all his food, and eat it 'without contempt; when he fees it, let him 'rejoice and be calm, and pray, that he may 'always obtain it.

55. 'Food, eaten conftantly with respect, gives 'muscular force and generative power; but, eater 'irreverently, deftroys them both.

56. 'He must beware of giving any man what 'he leaves; and of eating any thing between 'morning and evening: he must also beware of 'eating too much, and of going any whither with 'a remnant of his food unfwallowed.

57. 'Exceffive eating is prejudicial to health, to fame, and to future blifs in Heaven; it is injurious to virtue, and odious among men; he muft, for thefe reafons, by all means avoid it. 58. 'Let a Bráhmen at all times perform the ablution with the pure part of his hand denominated from the Véda, or with the part facred to the Lord of creatures, or with that dedicated to the Gods; but never with the part named from the Pitris:

59. 'The pure part under the root of the 'thumb is called Bráhma, that at the root of the 'little finger, Cáya; that at the tips of the fingers, 'Daiva; and the part between the thumb and 'index Pitrya.

60. 'Let him first fip water thrice; then twice 'wipe his mouth; and lastly touch with water 'the fix before mentioned cavities, his breast, 'and his head.

61. 'He who knows the law and feeks purity will ever perform his ablution with the pure part of his hand, and with water neither hot nor frothy • frothy, flanding in a lonely place, and turning • to the eaft or the north.

62. A Bråhmen is purified by water that reaches his bofom; a Chatriya, by water defcending to his throat; a Vailya, by water barely

- " taken into his mouth; a Sudra by water touched
- with the extremity of his lips.

63. A youth of the three higheft claffes is and uparis, when his right hand is extended for the cord to pais over his head and be fixed on his

· that the thread may be placed on his right shoulder,

- " he is called prachinaviti; and niviti, when it is
- fastened on his neck.

64. 'His girdle, his leathern mantle, his ftaff, 'his factificial cord, and his ewer, he must throw into the water, when they are worn out or broken, and receive others hallowed by mystical 'texts.

65. 'The ceremony of cefanta, or cutting off the 'bair, is ordained for a prieft in the fixteenth year 'from conception; for a foldier, in the twenty-'fecond; for a merchant, two years later than 'that.

66. • The fame ceremonies, except that of the • facrificial thread, muft be duly performed for • women at the fame age and in the fame order, • that the body may be made perfect; but with-• out any text from the Véda: 67. • The nuptial ceremony is confidered as the complete inftitution of women, ordained for them in the Veda, together with reverence to their hufbands, dwelling first in their father's family, the bufiness of the house, and attention to facred fire.

68. ' Such

68. Such is the real law of inflitution for the twice born; an inflitution in which their fecond birth clearly confifts, and which caufes their advancement in holinefs: now learn to what duties they must afterwards apply themfelves.

69. THE venerable preceptor, having girt his pupil with the thread, mult first instruct him in purification, in good customs, in the manageinent of the confecrated fire, and in the holy rites of morning, noon, and evening. 70. When the student is going to read the Wide he mult perform an abuvion as the law

Véda, he must perform an ablution, as the law ordains, with his face to the north, and, having paid foriptural homage, he must receive instruction, wearing a clean vest, his members being duly composed :

71, 'At the beginning and end of the lecture, 'he must always clasp both the feet of his precep-'tor; and he must read with both his hands 'closed: (this is called fcripture homage.)

72. With croffed hands let him clafp the feet of his tutor, touching the left foot with his left, and the right, with his right hand.

73. 'When he is prepared for the lecture, the preceptor, conflantly attentive, muft fay: "hoa! read;" and at the clofe of the lefton he muft fay: "take reft."

7.4. A Bråbmen, beginning and ending a 6 lecture on the Véda, must always pronounce to 6 himfelf the fyllable óm; for, unlefs the fyllable 6 óm precede, his learning will flip away from him; 6 and, unlefs it follow, nothing will be long 6 retained.

75. ' If he have fitten on culms of cus'a with ' their points toward the eaft, and be purified ' by rubbing that holy, grafs on both his hands, ' and and be further prepared by three fuppressions of breath each equal in time to five short vowels, he

three Vėdas, the letter A, the letter U, and

- * the letter M, which form by their coalition the trilite-
- ral monofyllable, together with three mysterious words, bbur, bbuvah, fwer, or earth, fky, heaven:
- 77. ' From the three Védas, alfo, the Lord of · creatures, incomprehenfibly exalted, fucceffively

- ' milked out the three' measures of that ineffable
- text, beginning with the word tad, and entitled • favitri or gayatri.

78. A prieft who fhall know the Véda, and fhall pronounce to himfelf, both morning and evening, that fyllable, and that holy text preceded by the three words, fhall attain the fanctity which the Véda confers :

79. 'And a twice born man, who fhall a thou-'fand times repeat those three (or óm, the vyábritis, 'and the gayatrí,) apart from the multitude, fhall be 'released in a month even from a great offence, 'as a fnake from his flough.

80. • The prieft, the foldier, and the merchant, • who fhall neglect this mysterious text, and fail • to perform in due feason his peculiar acts of • piety, fhall meet with contempt among the • virtuous.

81. 'The three great immutable words, preceded by the triliteral fyllable, and followed by the gayatri which confifts of three measures, mult be confidered as the mouth, or principal part of the Véda:

82. Whoever shall repeat, day by day, for three years, without negligence, that facred text, shall bereafter approach the divine effence, move <sup>6</sup> move as freely as air, and affume an ethereat <sup>6</sup> form.

83. 'The triliteral monofyllable is an emblem of the fupreme, the fuppreffions of breath with a mind fixed on GoD are the high ft devotion; but nothing is more exalted than the gáyatrí: a declaration of truth is more excellent than filence.

84. All rites ordained in the Véda, oblations to fire, and folemn facrifices pafs away; but that which paffes not away, is declared to be the fyllable óm, thence called acfbara; fince it is a ' symbol of GoD, the Lord of created beings.

85. 'The act of repeating his Holy Name is ten times better than the appointed facrifice; an hundred times better when it is heard by no man; and a thousand times better when it is purely mental:

86. The four domeftic facraments which are accompanied with the appointed facrifice, are not equal, though all be united, to a fixteenth part of the facrifice performed by a repetition of the gáyatrí:

S7. 'By the fole repetition of the gåyatri, a prieft may indubitably attain beatitude, let him perform, or not perform, any other religious act; if he be Maitra, or a friend to all creatures, he is jufly named Bråkmena, or united to the Great One.

$8. 'In reftraining the organs which run wild 'among ravifhing tenfualities, a wife man will 'apply diligent care, like a charioteer in ma'naging reftive horfes.

S9: ' Those eleven organs, to which the first ' fages gave names, I will comprehensively enu' merate as the law confiders them in due order.

go. ' The

90. ' The nofe is the fifth after the ears, the " fkin, the eyes, and the tongue; and the organs ' of speech are reckoned the tenth, after those ' of excretion and generation, and the hands and feet : 91. ' Five of them, the ear and the reft in fuc-· ceffion, learned men have called organs of fenfe; ' and the others, organs of action : 92. ' The heart must be confidered as the ' eleventh; which, by its natural property, com-' prifes both fenfe and action; and which being ' fubdued, the two other fets, with five in each, ' are alfo controled. 93. ' A man, by the attachment of his organs ' to fenfual pleasure incurs certain guilt; bur, ' having wholly fubdued them, he thence attains ' heavenly blifs. 94. ' Defire is never fatisfied with the enjoyment of defired objects; as the fire is not appealed " with clarified butter ; it only blazes more ve-· hemently. 95. ' Whatever man may obtain all those gra-' tifications, or whatever man may refign them ' completely, the refignation of all pleafures is far ' better than the attainment of them. 95. ' The organs being ftrongly attached to ' fenfual delights cannot fo effectually be reftrained ' by avoiding incentives to pleafure, as by a con-' ftant pursuit of divine knowledge. 97. ' To a man contaminated by fenfuality · neither the Vedas, nor liberality, nor facrifices, ' nor ftrict observances, nor pious austerities, ever procure felicity. 98. ' He must be confidered as really triumph-' ant over his organs, who, on hearing and touch-' ing, on feeing and tafting and fmelling, what * may

" may please or offend the senses, neither greatly re-

' joices nor greatly repines :

99. ' But, when one among all his organs fails,

- by that fingle failure his knowledge of GOD • paffes away, as water flows through one hole in
- · a leathern bottle.

100. 'Having kept all his members of fenfe and action under control, and obtained also com-

- " mand over his heart, he will enjoy every ad- ' vantage, even though he reduce not his body
- · by religious aufterities.

101. At the morning twilight let him ftand repeating the gayatri until he fee the fun; and

- ' at evening twilight, let him repeat it fitting,
- until the stars distinctly appear :

102. 'He who ftands repeating it at the morn-'ing twilight, removes all unknown nocturnal fin;

- " and he who repeats it fitting at evening twilight,
- ' disperses the taint, that has unknowingly been
- · contracted in the day;

103. But he who flands not repeating it in the morning, and fits not repeating it in the evening, must be precluded, like a Súdra, from every facred observance of the twice born classes.

104. 'Near pure water, with his organs holden 'under control, and retiring from circumspection 'to fome unfrequented place, let him pronounce

- " the gayatri, performing daily ceremonies.
- 105. 'In reading the Védángas, or grammar, profody, mathematicks, and fo forth, or even fuch parts of the Véda as ought conftantly to be read, there is no prohibition on particular days; nor in pronouncing the texts appointed for oblations to fire:

106. ' Of

106. 'Of that, which must constantly be read, and is therefore called Brábmafatra, there can be no fuch prohibition; and the oblation to fire, according to the Véda, produces good fruit, though accompanied with the text va/pat, which on other occafions must be intermitted on certain days.

107. For him, who shall persist a whole year

' in reading the Véda, his organ's being kept in

- " fubjection, and his body pure, there will always
  - rife good fruit from his offerings of milk and curds, of clarified butter and honey.

108. LET the twice born youth, who has been girt with the facrificial cord, collect wood for the holy fire, beg food of his relations, fleep on a low bed, and perform fuch offices as may

- · pleafe his preceptor, until his return to the - · house of his natural father.

109. 'Ten perfons may legally be influected in the Véda; the fon of a fpiritual teacher; a boy who is affiduous; one who can impart other knowledge; one who is juft; one who is pure; one who is friendly; one who is powerful; one who can beflow wealth; one who is honeft; and one who is related by blood.

110. 'Let not a fenfible teacher tell any other 'what he is not afked, nor what he is afked im-'properly; but let him however intelligent, act 'in the multitude as if he were dumb:

In the multitude as if he were dumb:
111. Of the two perfons, him, who illegally afks, and him, who illegally anfwers, one will · die, or incur odium.

112. ' Where virtue, and wealth fufficient to fe-

' cure it, are not found, or diligent attention, at

 • that foil divine inftruction muft not be fown ; it

" would perifh like fine feed in barren land. 112. ' A teacher of the Veda should rather die

- " with his learning, than fow it in fterile foil, even · though he be in grevious diffrefs for fubfiftence. 114. ' Sacred Learning, having approached a
- " Brabmen, faid to him : " I am thy precious
- ' gem; preferve me with care; deliver me not to
- " a fcorner; (fo preferved I fhall become fupremely

- 115. 'But communicate me, as to a vigilent de-
- · politory of thy gem, to that fludent, whom thou
- " thalt know to be pure, to have fubdued his
- ' paffions, to perform the duties of his order."
- 116. ' He who shall acquire knowledge of the
- " Vé.la without the affent of his preceptor, incurs
- " the guilt of flealing the fcripture, and fhall fink * to the region of torment.
- 117. ' From whatever teacher a fludent has · received instruction, either popular, ceremonial, or facred, let him first falute his instructor, when
- · they meet.

118. ' A Brabmen, who completely governs his ' paffions, though he know the gayatri only, is ' more honourable than he, who governs not his ' paffions, who eats all forts of food, and fells all forts of commodities, even though he know the · three Vedas.

119. When a fuperior fits on a couch or bench, let not an inferior fit on it with him ; " and, if an inferior be fitting on a couch, let him · rife to falute a fuperior.

120. ' The vital fpirits of a young man mount ' upwards to depart from bim, when an elder ap-· proaches; but by rifing and falutation he recovers them.

121. ' A

121. ' A youth who habitually greets and con-' ftantly reveres the aged, obtains an increase of ' four things ; life, knowledge, fame, ftrength. 122. ' After the word of falutation, a Brabmen " must address an elder; faying, "I am fuch an ' one," pronouncing his own name. 123. If any perfons, through ignorance of the ' Sanscrit language, understand not the import of ' his name, to them should a learned man fay, " It is I;" and in that manner he should address ' all classes of women. 124. ' In the falutation he fhould pronounce, ' after his own name, the vocative particle bhos : ' for the particle bhos is held by the wife to have ' the fame property with names fully expressed." 125. ' A Brahmen should thus be faluted in re-' turn : " . May'lt thou live long; excellent man !" ' and at the end of his name, the vowel and pre-' ceding confonant should be lengthened, with an acute accent, to three fyllabick moments or [bort · vowels.

126. 'That Bråhmen, who knows not the form 'of returning a falutation, must not be faluted by 'a man of learning: as a Súdra, even fo is he.

127. 'Let a learned man afk a prieft, when he 'meets him, if his devotion profpers; a warriour, 'if he is unhurt; a merchant, if his wealth is 'fecure; and one of the fervile clafs, if he enjoys 'good health; ufing refpetively the words, cus'alam, 'anámayam, cſhémam, and árógyam.

128. He, who has just performed a folemn facrifice and ablution, must not be addressed by his name, even though he be a younger man; but he, who knows the law, should accoss him with the vocative particle, or with bhavat, the the pronoun of respect.

129. ' To

"129. 'To the wife of another, and to any wo-"man not related by blood, he must fay, "bhavati, and amiable fister."

130. 'To his uncles paternal and maternal, to his wife's father, to performers of the facrifice, and to fpiritual teachers; he must fay, "I am fuch an one"—rifing up to falute them, even though younger than himfelf.

131. The fifter of his mother, the wife of his maternal uncle, his own wife's mother, and the fifter of his father, must be faluted like the wife of his father or preceptor: they are equal to his father's or his preceptor's wife.

132. 'The wife of his brother, if fhe be of the fame clafs, must be faluted every day; but his paternal and maternal kinfwomen need only be greeted on his return from a journey.

133. With the fifter of his father and of his mother, and with his own elder fifter, let him demean himfelf as with his mother; though his mother be more venerable than they.

134. 'Fellow citizens are equal for ten years; dancers and fingers, for five; learned theologians, for lefs than three; but perfons related by blood, for a fhort time: that is, a greater difference of age deftroys their equality.

135. 'The fludent must confider a Brábmen, though but ten years old, and a C/batriya, though aged a hundred years, as father and fon; as between those two, the young Brábmen is to be respected as the father.

1 36. Wealth, kindred, age, moral conduct, and, fifthly, divine knowledge, entitle men to refpect; but that which is last mentioned in order, is the most respectable.

137. ' Whatever

137. Whatever man of the three bigbeft claffes offeffes the most of those five, both in number and degree, that man is entitled to most respect; even a Súdra, if he have entered the tenth decad of his age.

138. Way must be made for a man in a wheeled carriage, or above ninety years old, or afflicted with difeafe, or carrying a burthen; for a woman; for a prieft just returned from the mansion of his preceptor; for a prince, and for a bridegroom:

139. Among all those, if they be met at one time, the priest just returned home and the prince are most to be honoured; and of those two, the priest just returned, should be treated with more respect than the prince.

140 'That prieft who girds his pupil with the facrificial cord, and afterwards inftructs him in the whole Véda, with the law of facrifice and the facred Upanishads, holy fages call an ach rya : 141. But, he, who for his livelihood, gives inftruction in a part only of the Véda, or in grammar, and in other Védángas, is called an upádbyáya, or fublecturer.

142. 'The father, who performs the ceremoinies on conception and the like, according to law, and who nourifhes the child with his first ice, has the epithet of guru, or venerable.

143. 'He, who receives a flipend for preparing the holy fire, for conducting the páca and agnifhtóma, and for performing other facrifices, is called in this code the ritwij of his employer. 144. 'He, who truly and faithfully fills both ears with the Véda, must be considered as equal to a mother; he must be revered as a father; him the pupil must never grieve. D 2 145. 'A mere ácbárya, or a teacher of the gá-'yatrí only, furpaffes ten upádbyáyas; a father, a 'hundred fuch ácbáryas; and a mother, a thoufand 'natural fathers.

146. Of him, who gives natural birth, and him, who gives knowledge of the whole Véda, the giver of facred knowledge is the more venerable father; fince the fecond or divine birth enfures life to the twice born both in this world and hereafter eternally.

147. 'Let a man confider that as a mere 'human birth, which his parents gave him for their mutual gratification, and which he receives after lying in the womb;

148. 'But that birth, which his principal ácbárya, who knows the whole Véda, procures for 'him by his divine mother the gáyatrí, is a true 'birth: that birth is exempt from age and from 'death.

140. 'Him, who confers on a man the benefit of facred learning, whether it be little or much, let him know to be here named guru, or venerable father, in confequence of that heavenly benefit.

1 50. ' A Brábmen, who is the giver of fpiritual ' birth, the teacher of prefcribed duty, is by right ' called the father of an old man, though himself ' be a child.

151. CAVI, or the learned, child of ANGIRAS, taught his paternal uncles and coufins to read the Véda, and, excelling them in divine knowledge, faid to them, "little fons:"

152. 'They, moved with refertment, asked the 'Gods the meaning of that expression; and the 'Gods, being assembled, answered them: "The 'child has addressed you properly;

153. ' For

154. 'Greatness is not conferred by years, not 'by gray hairs, not by wealth, not by powerful 'kindred! the divine fages have established this 'rule; "Whoever has read the Vidas and their 'Angas, he among us is great."

155. 'The feniority of priefts is from facred 'learning; of warriours from valour; of mer-'chants from abundance of grain; of the fervile 'clafs only from priority of birth.

156. A man is not therefore aged, becaufe his head is gray: him, furely, the Gods confidered as aged, who; though young in years, has read and understands the Véda.

157. 'As an elephant made of wood, as an antelope made of leather, fuch is an unlearned Bråbmen: those three have nothing but names, 158. 'As an eunuch is unproductive with women, as cow with a cow is unprolifick, as liberality to a fool is fruitles, fo is a Bråbmen useles, if he read not the holy texts. 159. 'Good instruction must be given without pain to the instructed; and sweet gentle speech must be used by a preceptor, who cheristes virtue. 160. 'He, whose discourse and heart are pure, and ever perfectly guarded, attains all the fruit

• arifing from his complete courfe of ftudying the • Véda.

161. Let not a man be querulous even though in pain; let him not injure another in deed of in thought; let him not even utter a word, by which his fellow creature may fuffer uneafi-

' nefs :

• nefs; fince that will obstruct his own progress to • future beatitude.

162. A Bråbmen fhould conftantly fhun wordly honour, as he fhould fhun poifon and rather conftantly feek difrefpect, as he would feek nectar; 163. For though fcorned, he may fleep with pleafure; with pleafure may he awake; with pleafure may he pafs through this life: but the fcorner utterly perifhes.
164. Let the twice born youth, whofe foul has been formed by this regular fucceffion of preferibed acts, collect by degrees, while he dwells with his preceptor, the devout habits proceeding from the ftudy of fcripture.

165. With various modes of devotion, and with aufterities ordained by the law, must the whole Véda be read, and above all the facred Upanifbads, by him, who has received a new birth. 166. Let the beft of the twice born claffes, intending to practife devotion, continually repeat the reading of feripture; fince a repetition of reading the feripture is here flyled the higheft devotion of a Bráhmen.

167. Yes verily; that fludent in theology performs the higheft act of devotion with his whole body, to the extremities of his nails, even though he be fo far fenfual as to wear a chaplet of fweet flowers, who to the utmost of his ability daily reads the Véda.

168. A twice born man, who not having fludied the Véda, applies diligent attention to a different and worldly fludy, foon falls, even when living; to the condition of a Súdra; and his defcendants after him.

the second, from the ligation of the zone; the the second, from the ligation of the zone; the third

- ' third from the due performance of the facrifice ;
- fuch are the births of him who is usually called twice born, according to a text of the Véda :
- 170. 'Among them his divine birth is that.'
- which is diftinguished by the ligat ion of the
- ' zone, and facrificial cord; and in that birth the
- Gáyatrí is his mother, and the Achárya, his father. 171. Sages call the Achárya father, from his
- " giving instruction in the Veda: nor can any holy
- ' rite be performed by a young man, before his
- · investiture. 172. · Till be be invested with the figns of bis class,
- ' he must not pronounce any facred text, except
- what ought to be used in obsequies to an ancestor;
- fince he is on a level with a Sudra before his new
- <sup>6</sup> birth from the revealed fcrepture : 173. <sup>6</sup> From him, who has been duly invested;
- are required both the performance of devout acts
- ' and the ftudy of the Véda in order, preceded by
- ' flated ceremonies.
- 174. Whatever fort of leathern mantle, facrificial thread, and zone, whatever ftaff, and what ever under-apparel are ordained, as before men- tioned, for a youth of each class, the like must also be used in his religious acts.
- 175. 'These following rules must a Brabmachárí 'or fludent in theology, observe, while he dwells 'with his preceptor; keeping all his members 'under control, for the fake of increasing his habitual devotion.

176. Day by day, having bathed and being purified, let him offer fresh water to the Gods, the Sages, and the Manes; let him show respect to the images of the deities, and bring wood for the oblation to fire.

177. ' Let

177. Let him abstain from honey, from flesh e meat, from perfumes, from chaplets of flowers, from sweet vegetable juices, from women, from all sweet substances turned acid, and from injury to animated beings;

178. From unguents for his limbs, and from black powder for his eyes, from wearing fandals, and carrying an umbrella, from tenfual defires, from wrath, from covetoulnefs, from dancing, and from vocal and inftrumental mulick; 179 From gaming, from dilputes, from detraction, and from fallehood, from embracing or wantonly looking at women, and from dilfervice to other men.

180. 'Let him conftantly fleep alone : let him ' never wafte his own manhood ; for he, who vo-! luntarily waftes his manhood, violates the rule of ' his order, and becomes an avacirni :

'181. 'A twice born youth, who has involun-'tarily wafted his manly firength during fleep, 'must repeat with reverence, having bathed and 'paid homage to the fun, this text of fcripture: "Again let my firength return to me."

182. * Let him carry water pots, flowers, cowdung, fresh earth, and cus'a-grass, as much as may be useful to his preceptor; and let him perform every day the duty of a religious mendicant. 183. * Each day must a Brábmen student receive his food by begging, with due care, from the houses of perfons renowned for discharging their duties, and not deficient in performing the facrifices which the Véda ordains. 184. * Let him not beg from the coustins of his

f preceptor; nor from his own coufins; nor from other kinfmen by the father's fide, or by the mother's; but, if other houfes be not acceffible, let let him begin with the laft of those in order, avoiding the first;

185. Or, if none of those bouses just mentioned can be found, let him go begging through the whole district, round the village, keeping his organs in subjection, and remaining filent; but let him turn away from such as have committed any deadly fin. 186. Having brought logs of wood from a distance, let him place them in the open air; and with them let him make an oblation to fire without remisfines, both evening and morning.

r87. ' He, who for feven fucceflive days omits the ceremony of begging food, and offers not wood to the facred fire, mult perform the penance of an avacirni, unlefs he be afflicted with illnefs.

188. Let the fludent perfift conftantly in fuch begging, but let him not eat the food of one perfon only: the fubliftence of a fludent by begging is held equal to fafting in religious merit.

189. 'Yet, when he is afked in a folemn act in honour of the Gods or the Manes, he may eat at his pleafure the food of a fingle perfon; obferving, however, the laws of abitinence and the aufterity of an anchoret: thus the rule of his order is kept inviolate.

190. 'This duty of a mendicant is ordained by the wife for a Brábmen only; but no fuch act is appointed for a warriour, or for a merchant.

191. 'Let the fcholar, when commanded by his preceptor, and even when he has received no command, always exert himfelf in reading, and in all acts ufeful to his teacher.

192. ' Keeping in due subjection his body, his fpeech, his organs of sense, and his heart, let him ftand ftand, with the palms of his hands joined, looking at the face of his preceptor.

193. 'Let him always keep his right arm uncovered, be always decently apparelled, and properly composed; and when his instructor fays, "be feated," let him fit opposite to his venerable guide.

194. 'In the prefence of his preceptor let him 'always eat lefs, and wear a coarfer mantle with 'worfe appendages; let him rife before, and go 'to reft after his tutor.

195. Let him not answer his teacher's orders, or converse with him, reclining on a bed; nor fitting, nor eating, nor standing, nor with an averted face:

196. 'But let him both anfwer and converfe, if 'his preceptor fit, ftanding up; if he ftand, ad-'vancing toward him; if he advance, meeting 'him; if he run, haftening after him;

197. If his face be averted, going round to front him, from left to right; if he be at a little diftance, approaching him; if reclined, bending to him; and, if he ftand ever fo far off, running toward him.

in 198. When his teacher is nigh, let his couch or his bench be always placed low: when his preceptor's eye can obferve him, let him not fit carelefsly at eafe.

199. Let him never pronounce the mere name of his tutor, even in his abfence, nor ever mimick his gait, his fpeech, or his manner.

200. 'In whatever place, either true but cenfo-

* concerning his teacher, let him there cover his ears or remove to another place :

' a dog; by using his goods without leave, a small ' worm; by envying his merit, a larger insect ' or reptile.

202 'He must not ferve his tutor by the intervention of another, while himfelf stands aloof; nor must he attend him in a passion, nor when a woman is near; from a carriage or raifed feat he must descend to falute his heavenly director. 203. 'Let him not fit with his preceptor to the leeward, or to the windward of him; nor let him fay any thing which the venerable man cannot hear. 204. 'He may fit with his teacher in a carriage drawn by bulls, horse, or camels; on a terrace, on a pavement of stones, or on a mat of woven

' grafs; on a rock, on a wooden bench, or in ' a boat.

205. 'When his tutor's tutor is near, let him
'demean himfelf as if his own were prefent; nor
'let him, unlefs ordered by his fpiritual father,
'proftrate himfelf in his prefence before his natural
'father, or paternal uncle.
206. 'This is likewife ordained as his conftant
'behaviour toward his other inftructors in fcience;
'toward his elder paternal kinfmen; toward all who may reftrain him from fin, and all who give him falutary advice.

207. 'Toward men alfo, who are truly vir-'tuous, let him always behave as toward his preceptor; and, in like manner, toward the fons of ' his teacher, who are entitled to respect as older

" men, and are not students ; and toward the paternal

' kinfmen of his venerable tutor.

208. 'The fon of his preceptor, whether 'younger or of equal age, or a fludent, if he be capable of teaching the Véda, deferves the fame honour • honour with the preceptor himself, when he is • prefent at any facrificial act:

209. But he must not perform for the fon of this teacher, the duty of rubbing his limbs, or of bathing him, or of eating what he leaves, or of washing his feet.

210. The wives of his preceptor, if they be 9 of the fame clafs, muft receive equal honour 9 with their venerable hufband; but if they be of a 9 different clafs, they muft be honoured only by 9 rifing and falutation.

For no wife of his teacher muft he perthorm the offices of pouring fcented oil on them, of attending them while they bathe, of rubbing their legs and arms, or of decking their hair;

212. Nor must a young wife of his preceptor be greeted even by the ceremony of touching her feet, if he have completed his twentieth year, or

' can diffinguish virtue from vice.

213. It is the nature of women in this world to caufe the feduction of men; for which reafon the wife are never unguarded in the company of females:

214. A female indeed, is able to draw from the right path in this life not a fool only, but even a fage, and can lead him in fubjection to defire or to wrath.

215. Let not a man, therefore, fit in a fequeftered place with his nearest female relations: the affemblage of corporeal organs is powerful enough to fnatch wildom from the wife.

216. A young fludent may, as the law directs, make profiration at his pleafure on the ground before a young wife of his tutor, faying, "I am fuch an one;"

44

217. ' And on his return from a journey, he ' must once touch the feet of his preceptor's aged ' wife, and falute her each day by proftration, ' calling to mind the practice of virtuous men. 218. ' As he who digs deep with a spade · comes to a fpring of water, fo the fludent, who · humbly ferves his teacher, attains the knowledge · which lies deep in his teacher's mind. 219. "WHETHER his head be fhorn, or his hair ' long, or one lock be bound above in a knot, let ' not the fun ever fet or rife while he lies afleep ' in the village. 220. ' If the fun should rife or fet, while he " fleeps through fenfual indulgence, and knows it ' not, he mult fast a whole day, repeating the · gáyatri : 221. ' He, who has been furprifed afleep by the fetting or by the rifing fun, and performs not ' that penance, incurs great guilt. 222. ' Let him adore God both at funrife ' and at funfet, as the law ordains, having made · his ablution and keeping his organs controled ; and, with fixed attention, let him repeat the e text, which he ought to repeat, in a place free < from impurity. 223. ' IF a woman or a Súdra perform any act · leading to the chief temporal good, let the ftudent be careful to emulate it; and he may do " whatever gratifies his heart, unlefs it be for-· bidden by law : 224. ' The chief temporal good is by fome declared to confift in virtue and wealth; by ' fome, in wealth and lawful pleafure; by fome, ' in virtue alone; by others, in wealth alone; ' but the chief good here below is an affemblage ' of all three : this is a fure decifion. 225. A

45

225. A TEACHER of the Véda is the image of GOD; a natural father, the image of BRAHMA';

a mother, the image of the earth; an elder whole brother, the image of the foul:

226. 'Therefore a fpiritual and a natural father, a mother, and an elder brother, are not to be treated with difrefpect, efpecially by a Bráb-

- "men, though the fludent be grievoully pro-
- voked.

227. 'That pain and care which a mother and father undergo in producing and rearing children, cannot be compensated in an hundred years.

228. Let every man conftantly do what may pleafe his parents; and, on all occafions, what may pleafe his preceptor: when those three are fatisfied, his whole course of devotion is accomplished.

229. Due reverence to those three is confidered as the higheft devotion; and without their approbation he must perform no other duty.

230. 'Since they alone are held equal to the 'three worlds; they alone, to the three principal 'orders; they alone, to the three Védas; they 'alone, to the three fires:

231. 'The natural father is confidered as the 'gárbapatya, or nuptial fire; the mother as the 'dac/bina, or ceremonial; the fpiritual guide, as 'the ábavaniya or facrificial: this triad of fires is 'most venerable.

232. 'He, who neglects not those three, when 'he becomes a house-keeper, will ultimately obtain dominion over the three worlds; and his body being irradiated like a God, he will enjoy fupreme blis in heaven.

233. ' By

233. By honouring his mother he gains this ' terrestrial world; by honouring his father, the " intermediate, or etherial; and, by affiduous at-' tention to his preceptor, even the celestial world · of BRAHMA': 234. All duties are completely performed by that man, by whom those three are completely honoured; but to him by whom they are dif-<sup>4</sup> honoured, all other acts of duty are fruitlefs. 225. As long as those three live, fo long he " must perform no other duty for bis own fake; · but delighting in what may conciliate their affections and gratify their wifnes, he must from ' day to day affiduoufly wait on them : 236. 'Whatever duty he may perform in ' thought, word, or deed, with a view to the ' next world, without derogation from his respect to them; he must declare to them his entire performance of it. 237. ' By honouring those three, without more, ' a man effectually does whatever ought to be done: this is the higheft duty, appearing before ' us like DHERMA himfelf, and every other act is ' an upadherma, or fubordinate duty. 238. ' A believer in scripture may receive pure ' knowledge even from a Sudra; a leffon of the ' highest virtue, even from a Chandála; and a ' woman, bright as a gem, even from the bafeft family : 239. ' Even from poison may nectar be taken; ' even from a child, gentlenefs of fpeech; even ' from a foe, prudent conduct; and even from * an impure fubstance, gold. 240. ' From every quarter, therefore, must be felected women bright as gems, knowledge,

• virtue, purity, gentle speech, and various liberal • arts.

241. 'In cafe of neceffity, a fludent is required ' to learn the Véda from one who is not a Bráb-'men, and, as long as that inftruction continues, to ' honour his inftructor with obsequious affiduity;

2 2. But a pupil who feeks the incomparable <sup>6</sup> path to heaven, fhou'd not live to the end of <sup>6</sup> his days in the dwelling of a preceptor who is <sup>6</sup> no Brábmen, or who has not read all the Védas

• no Brahmen, or who has not read all the Veaas • with their ... ngas.

243. ' If he anxioufly defire to pass his whole ' life in the house of a facerdotal teacher, he must ' ferve him with affiduous care, till he be released ' from his mortal frame :

244. 'That Bráhmen, who has dutifully at-' tended his preceptor, till the diffolution of his ' body, paffes directly to the eternal manfion of Gop.

245. 'LET not a fludent, who knows his duty, prefent any gift to his preceptor before bis return bome; but when, by his tutor's permiffion, he is going to perform the ceremony on his return, let him give the venerable man fome valuable thing to the beft of his power;

246. 'A field, or gold, a jewel, a cow, or an 'horfe, an umbrella, a pair of fandals, a ftool, ' corn, cloths, or even any very excellent vege-' table : thus will he gain the affectionate re-' membrance of his inftructor.

247. 'The fludent for life muft, if his teacher 'die, attend on his virtuous fon, or his widow, 'or on one of his paternal kinfmen, with the fame 'refpect which he flowed to the living :

248. ' Should none of those be alive, he must occupy

48

• occupy the flation of his preceptor, the feat, • and the place of religious exercises; must con-• tinually pay due attention to the fires, which he • had confecrated; and must prepare his own • foul for heaven. 249. • The twice born man, who shall thus • without intermission have passed the time of his • fludentship, shall ascend, after death, to the most • exalted of regions, and no more again spring to • birth in this lower world.

CHAPTER THE THIRD.

On Marriage; or on the Second Order.

1. 'The difcipline of a fludent in the three Védas may be continued for thirty-fix years, in the houfe of his preceptor; or for half that time, or for a quarter of it, or until he perfectly comprehend them :

2. A ftudent, whofe rules have not been vio-4 lated, may affume the order of a married man, 4 after he has read in fucceffion a s'ác'bá, or branch 4 from each of the three, or from two, or from 4 any one of them.

3. Being jultly applauded for the ftrict performance of his duty, and having received from his natural or fpiritual father the facred gift of the Veda, let him fit on an elegant bed, decked with a garland of flowers, and let his father honour him before his nuptials, with a prefent of a cow. 4. Let the twice born man, having obtained the confent of his venerable guide, and having performed his ablution with stated ceremonies, on his return home, as the law directs, espouse a wife of the fame class with himfelf and endued with the marks of excellence.

5. She, who is not defcended from his paternal or maternal anceftors, within the fixth degree, and who is not known by her family name to be of the fame primitive flock with his father or mother, E 2 • is eligible by a twice born man for nuptials and • holy union :

6. 'In connecting himfelf with a wife, let him fludioufly avoid the ten following families, be they ever fo great, or ever fo rich in kine, goats, fheep, gold and grain :

7. 'The family which has omitted preforibed acts of religion; that, which has produced no male children; that, in which the Véda has not been read; that, which has thick hair on the body; and those, which have been subject to hemorrhoids, to phthiss, to dispession, to epilepsy, to leprosy, and to elephantias. S. 'Let him not marry a girl with reddish hair, nor with any deformed limb; nor one troubled with habitual ficknefs; nor one either with no hair or with too much; nor one immoderately talkative; nor one with inflamed eyes;

9. Nor one with the name of a conftellation, of a tree or of a river, of a barbarous nation, or of a mountain, of a winged creature, a fnake, or a flave; nor with any name raifing an image of terrour.

10. 'Let him chuse for his wife a girl, whose form has no defect; who has an agreeable name; who walks gracefully like a phenicopteros, or like a young elephant; whose hair and teeth are moderate respectively in quantity and in fize; whose body has exquisite softness.

11. 'Her, who has no brother, or whole father is not well known, let no fenfible man espoule, through fear left, in the former case, her father fhould take her first fon as his own to perform his obsequies; or, in the second case, left an illicit marriage should be contracted.

12. ' For

12. ' For the first marriage of the twice born claffes, a woman of the fame clafs is recom-" mended; but for fuch as are impelled by in-· clination to marry again, women in the direct · order of the claffes are to be preferred : 12. ' A Sudra woman only must be the wife of ' a Súdra; fhe and a Vaifvà, of a Vaifya; they two and a Chatriya, of a Chatriya; those two and a · Brahmani of a Brahmen. 14. ' A woman of the fervile class is not menti-' oned, even in the recital of any ancient ftory, as " the first wife of a Brahmen or of a Chatriya, though ' in the greatest difficulty to find a fuitable match. 15. ' Men of the twice born claffes, who through " weakness of intellect, irregularly marry women " of the lowest class, very foon degrade their fa-" milies and progeny to the ftate of Súdras : 16. ' According to ATRI and to (GOTAMA) " the fon of UTAT'HYA, he who thus marries a wo-' man of the fervile class, if he be a prieft, is de-" graded inftantly; according to SAUNACA, on ' the birth of a fon, if he be a warriour; and, if he ' be a merchant, on the bith of a fon's fon, accord-' ing to (me) BHRIGU. 17. ' A Bråbmen, if he take a Súdra to his bed, ' as his first wife, finks to the regions of torment; ' if he beget a child by her, he lofes even his · prietly rank : 18. ' His facrifices to the Gods, his oblations ' to the Manes, and his hospitable attentions to " ftrangers, must be supplied principally by her; ' but the Gods and Manes will not eat fuch offer-' ings; nor can heaven be attained by fuch hof-' pitality. 19. ' For the crime of him, who thus illegally

- · drinks the moifture of a Sudra's lips, who is f tainted tainted by her breath, and who even begets a child on her body, the law declares no expiation.
  - E 3

20. 'Now learn compendiously the eight forms of the nuptial ceremony, used by the four classes, forme good and fome bad in this world, and in the next:

21. 'The ceremony of BRAHMA', of the Dévas. 'of the Ri/his, of the Prajapatis, of the Afuras, 'of the Gandbarvas, and of the Rachafas; the 'eighth and baleft is that of the Pikichas.

22. 'Which of them is permitted by law to each clafs and what are the good and bad properties of each ceremony, all this I will fully declare to you, together with the qualities, good and bad, of the offspring.

23. 'Let mankind know, that the fix first in direct order are by some held valid in the case of a prieft; the four last, in that of a warriour; and the same four, except the Racshafa marriage, in the cases of a merchant and a man of the service class:

24. Some confider the four first only as approved in the case of a priest; one, that of Racshafas, as peculiar to a foldier; and that of Asuras, to a mercantile and a fervile man:

25. But in this code, three of the five last are held legal, and two illegal: the ceremonies of Pifáchas and Afuras must never be performed.

 26. ' For a military man the before mentioned

" marriages of Gandharvas and Rachafas, whether

" feparate or mixed, as when a girl is made captive

· by her lover, after a victory over her kinfmen, are · permitted by law.

27. ' The gift of a daughter, clothed only with ' a fingle robe, to a man learned in the Véda; ' whom

- whom her father voluntarily invites, and re-· fpectfully receives, is the nuptial right called · Brahma. 28. ' The rite which fages call Daiva, is the · gift of a daughter, whom her father has decked ' in gay attire, when the facrifice is already begun, " to the officiating prieft, who performs that act · of religion. 29. When the father gives his daughter away. · after having received from the bridegroom one · pair of kine, or two pairs, for uses prefcribed ' by law, that marriage is termed Arfha. 30. The nuptial rite called Prájápatya, is when * the father gives away his daughter with due ho-" nour, faying diffinctly, " May both of you · perform together your civil and religious " duties!" 31. When the bridegroom, having given as " much wealth as he can afford to the father and · paternal kinfmen, and to the damfel herfelf, " takes her voluntarily as his bride, that marriage ' is named A/ura. 32. ' The reciprocal connection of a youth and a damfel, with mutual defire, is the marriage denominated Gandbarva, contracted for the <sup>4</sup> purpole of amorous embraces, and proceeding from fenfual inclination. 33. ' The feizure of a maiden by force from · her house, while the weeps and calls for affistance, after her kinfmen and friends have been " flain in battle, or wounded, and their houfes broken open, is the marriage ftyled Rachafa. 34. When the lover fecretly embraces the · damfel, either fleeping or flushed with ftrong · liquot, or difordered in her intellect, that finful

· marriage,

• marriage, called Pifacha, is the eighth and the • bafeft.

35. 'The gift of daughters in marriage by the facerdotal clafs, is most approved, when they previously have poured water into the hands of the bridegroom; but the ceremonies of the other class may be performed according to their feveral fancies.

36. 'Among these nuptial rites, what quality is 'ascribed by MENU to each, hear now ye 'Brahmens, hear it all from me, who fully de-' clare it !

37. 'The fon of a Bráhm, or wife by the first ceremony, redeems from fin, if he perform virtuous acts, ten ancestors, ten descendants, and himself the twenty-first person.

38. ' A fon, born of a wife by the Daiva nuptials,

- redeems feven and feven in higher and lower de-
- grees; of a wife by the A'r fha three and three;
- of a wife by the Prajapatya fix and fix.

39. By four marriages, the Brábma and fo forth, in direct order, are born fons illumined by the Véda, learned men, beloved by the · learned,

40. Adorned with beauty, and with the qua-1 lity of goodnefs, wealthy, famed, amply gra-1 tified with lawful enjoyments, performing all 1 duties, and living an hundred years :

41. 'But in the other four bale marriages, which ' remain, are produced fons acting cruelly, fpeak-' ing falfely, abhorring the Véda, and the duties ' preferibed in it.

42. 'From the blamele's nuptial rites of men 'fprings a blamele's progeny; from the reprehen-'fible, a reprehenfible offspring : let mankind, 'therefore. <sup>c</sup> therefore, fludioufly avoid the culpable forms <sup>c</sup> of marriage.

43. 'The ceremony of joining hands is ap-'pointed for thole, who marry women of their 'own clafs; but, with women of a different clafs, 'the following nuptial ceremonies are to be ob-'ferved :

44. ' By a Cfhatriyà on her marriage with a Bráhmen, an arrow must be held in her hand; by a Vaifyà woman, with a bridegroom of the facerdotal or military class, a whip; and by a Súdrà bride, marrying a priest, a soldier, or a merchant, must be held the skirt of a mantle.
45. ' LET the hust approach his wife in due season, that is, at the time fit for pregnancy;

let him be conftantly fatisfied with her alone;
but, except on the forbidden days of the moon, he may approach her, being affectionately difpoled, even out of due feafon, with a defire of conjugal intercourfe.

46. • Sixteen days and nights in each month, • with four diftinct days neglected by the vir-• tuous, are called the natural featon of women :

47. • Of those fixteen, the four first, the ele-• venth, and the thirteenth, are reprehended : the • ten remaining nights are approved.

48. 'Some fay, that on the even nights are 'conceived fons; on the odd nights daughters; 'therefore let the man, who withes for a fon, 'approach his wife in due feafon on the even 'nights;

49. But a boy is in truth produced by the greater quantity of the male firength; and a girl by a greater quantity of the female; by equality, an hermaphrodite, or a boy and a girl; by <sup>6</sup> by weaknels or deficiency, is occafioned a <sup>6</sup> failure of conception.

50. 'He, who avoids conjugal embraces on the fix reprehended nights and on eight others, is equal in chaftity to a Brabmachari, in whichever of the two next orders he may live.

51. 'LET no father, who knows the law, receive a gratuity, however fmall, for giving his daughter in marriage; fince the man, who, through avarice, takes a gratuity for that purpofe, is a feller of his offspring.

52. 'Whatever male relations, through delufion of mind, take poffeffion of a woman's property, be it only her carriages or her clothes, fuch offenders will fink to a region of torment.

53. 'Some fay that the bull and cow given in 'the nuptial ceremony of the Rifhis, are a bribe 'to the father; but this is untrue: a bribe in-'deed, whether large or fmall, is an actual fale of 'the daughter.

54. 'When money or goods are given to damfels, whole kinfmen receive them not for their own ufe, it is no fale: it is merely a token of courtefy and affection to the brides.

55. 'Married women must be honoured and adorned by their fathers and brethren, by their husbands, and by the brethren of their husbands, if they feek abundant prosperity:

56. Where females are honoured, there the deities are pleafed; but where they are difhonoured, there all religious acts become fruitlefs. 57. Where female relations are made miferable, the family of him who makes them fo, very foon wholly perifhes; but, where they are not unhappy, the family always increafes. 58. On

58. ' On whatever houses the women of a family, not being duly honoured, pronounce an ' imprecation, those houses, with all that belong ' to them, utterly perifh, as if deftroyed by a " facrifice for the death of an enemy. 59. ' Let those women, therefore, be con-' tinually fupplied with ornaments, apparel and ' food, at feftivals and at jubilees, by men defirous of wealth. 60. ' In whatever family the hufband is con-' tented with his wife, and the wife with her " hufband, in that houfe will fortune be affuredly · permanent. 61. ' Certainly, if the wife be not elegantly " attired, the will not exhilirate her hufband; and ' if her lord want hilarity, offspring will not be produced. 62. ' A wife being gaily adorned, her whole · houfe is embellished ; but, if she be destitute of · ornament, all will be deprived of decoration. 62. ' By culpable marriages, by omiffion of · prefcribed ceremonies, by neglect of reading the · Veda, and by irreverence toward a Brahmen, " great families are funk to a low flate. 64. ' So they are by practifing manual arts, by · lending at interest and other pecuniary transactions, • by begetting children on Sudras only, by traffick ' in kine, horfes, and carriages, by agriculture " and by attendance on a king. 65. ' By facrificing for fuch as have no right ' to facrifice, and by denying a future compensa-' tion for good works, great families, being de-' prived of facred knowledge, are quickly de-· ftroyed ; 66. . But families, enriched by a knowledge of f the

• the Véda, though poffeffing little temporal • wealth, are numbered among the great, and ac-• quire exalted fame.

67. 'LET the house-keeper perform domestic religious rites, with the nuptial fire, according to law, and the ceremonies of the five great facraments, and the feveral acts which must day by day be performed.

68. A house-keeper has five places of flaughter, • or where small living creatures may be flain; his • kitchen hearth, his grindstone, his broom, his • peftle and mortar, his water pot; by using • which, he becomes in bondage to fin:

69. 'For the fake of explating offences committed 'ignorantly in those places mentioned in order, the five great facraments were appointed by eminent fages to be performed each day by fuch as keep house.

70. 'Teaching and fludying the fcripture is the facrament of the Véda; offering cakes and water, the facrament of the Manes; an oblation to fire, the facrament of the Deities; giving rice or other food to living creatures, the facrament of fpirits; receiving guefts with honour, the facrament of men;

71. Whoever omits not thole five great ceremonies, if he have ability to perform them, is untainted by the fins of the five flaughtering places, even though he conftantly refide at home;

72. 'But whoever chcriss not five orders of 'beings, namely, the deities; those, who demand 'hospitality; those, whom he ought by law to 'maintain; his departed forefathers; and him-'felf; that man lives not even though he 'breather.

73. ' Some

73. 'Some call the five facraments abuta and 'buta, prabuta, bráhmya-buta and práfita:

74. Abuta, or unoffered, is divine fludy; buta, or offered, is the oblation to fire; prabuta, or well offered, is the food given to fpirits; brabmya-buta, is respect shewn to twice born guess; and prásita, or well eaten, is the offering of rice or water to the manes of ancestors.

75. 'Let every man in this fecond order employ himfelf daily in reading the fcripture, and in performing the facrament of the Gods; for, being employed in the facrament of deities, he fupports this whole animal and vegetable world; 76. 'Since his oblation of clarified butter, duly caft into the flame, afcends in fmoke to the fun; from the fun it falls in rain; from rain comes vegetable food; and from fuch food animals derive their fubfiftence, 77. 'As all creatures fubfift by receiving fupport from air, thus all orders of men exift by receiving fupport from houfe-keepers; 78. And fince men of the three other orders are each day nourifhed by them with divine learning and with food, a houfe-keeper is for ' this reason of the most eminent order :

79. 'That order, therefore, must be constantly 'fustained with great care by the man who feeks 'unperishable blifs in heaven, and in this world pleasurable fensations; an order which cannot be fustained by men with uncontroled organs.

80. 'The divine fages, the manes, the gods, 'the fpirits, and guefts, pray for benefits to 'mafters of families; let these honours, there-'fore, be done to them by the house-keeper who 'knows his duty; 81. • Let him honour the Sages by fludying
• the Véda : the Gods, by oblations to fire or• dained by law; the Manes, by pious oblequies;
• men by fupplying them with food; and fpirits,
• by gifts to all animated creatures.
82. • Each day let him perform a fráddha
• with boiled rice and the like, or with water, or
• with milk, roots, and fruit; for thus he obtains
• favour from departed progenitors.
83. • He may entertain one Bráhmen in that fa• crement among the five, which is performed for
• the Pitris; but, at the oblation to all the Gods,
• let him not invite even a fingle prieft.
84. • In his domeftic fire for dreffing the food
• of all the Gods, after the preferibed ceremony, let a Bråhmen make an oblation each day to thefe fellowing divinities;

85. 'First to AGNI, god of fire, and to the Lunar God, feverally; then, to both of them at once; next to the affembled gods; and after'wards, to DHANWANTARI, god of medicine; 86. 'To CUHU', goddefs of the day, when the new moon is differnible; to ANUMATI, goddefs of the day, after the opposition; to PRAJA'PATI, or the Lord of Creatures; to DYA'VA' and PRIT'HIVI', goddeffes of fky and earth; and laftly, to the fire of the good facrifice.
87. 'Having thus, with fixed attention, offered

87. 'Having thus, with fixed attention, offered clarified butter in all quarters, proceeding from the east in a fouthern direction to INDRA, YAMA, VARUNA, and the god SOMA, let him offer his gift to animated creatures :

88. 'Saying, "I falute the Maruts," or Winds, let him throw dreffed rice near the door; faying, "I falute the water gods," in water; and on his peftle ' peftle and mortar, faying, " I falute the gods of ' large trees."

S9: 'Let him do the like in the north eaft, or 'near his pillow, to SR1', the goddels of abundance; in the fouth weft, or at the foot of his bed, to the propitious goddels BHADRACA'L1'; in the centre of his manfion, to BRAHMA' and his 'household God;

90. 'To all the Gods affembled, let him throw 'up his oblation in the open air; by day, to the fpirits who walk in light; and by night, to those who walk in darkness:

91. In the building on his house top, or behind bis back, let him cast his oblation for the welfare of all creatures; and what remains let him give to the Pitris with his face toward the fouth:

92. 'The fhare of dogs, of outcafts, of dogfeeders, of finful men, punifhed with elephantialis or confumption, of crows, and of reptiles, let him drop on the ground by little and little.

93. • A Bråhmen, who thus each day thall ho-• nour all beings, will go to the higheft region in • a ftraight path, in an irradiated form.

94. 'When he has performed his duty of making oblations, let him caufe his gueft to take food before himfelf; and let him give a portion of rice, as the law ordains, to the mendicant who fludies the Véda:
65. 'Whatever fruit fhall be obtained by that ftudent, as the reward of his virtue, when he fhall have given a cow to his preceptor, according to law, the like reward to virtue fhall be obtained by the twice born house-keeper, when he has given a mouthful of rice to the religious mendicant.

96. 'To a Bråhmen who knows the true prin-'ciple of the Véda, let him prefent a portion of 'rice, or a pot of water, garnifhed with fruit and 'flowers, due ceremonies having preceded : 97. 'Shares of oblations to the Gods, or to the 'Manes, utterly perifh, when prefented, through 'delufion of mind, by men regardlefs of duty, to 'fuch ignorant Bráhmens as are mere afhes;

98. But an offering in the fire of a facerdotal mouth, which richly blazes with true knowblage and piety, will releafe the giver from diftrefs, and even from deadly fin.

99. 'To the guest who comes of his own 'accord, let him offer a feat and water, with fuch food as he is able to prepare, after the due rites ' of courtefy.

- 100. • A Brahmen coming as a gueft, and not • received with just honour, takes to himself all the • reward of the house-keeper's former virtue, • even though he had been so temporate as to live • on the gleanings of harvests, and so pious as to • make oblations in five distinct fires.

101. Grais and earth to fit on, water to wash the feet, and, fourthly affectionate speech are at no time deficient in the mansions of the good, although they may be indigent.

102. ' A Bråhmen, flaying but one night as a ' guest, is called an atit'hi; fince continuing fo ' fhort a time, he is not even a sojourner for a " whole tit'hi, or day of the moon.

103. 'The house-keeper must not confider as 'an ativ bi a mere visitor of the fame town, or a 'Bráhman, who attends him on business, even 'though he come to the house where his wife dwells, and where his fires are kindled.

104. ' Should

104. ' Should any house-keepers be fo fenfeles, as to feek, on pretence of being guefts; the food ' of others, they would fall after death, by reafon of that baseness, to the condition of cattle be-· longing to the giver of fuch food.

105. ' No guest must be difmissed in the even-' ing by a house-keeper; he is fent by the retir-' ing fun; and, whether he come in fit feafon or ' unfeasonably, he must not sojourn in the house without entertainment. 106. ' Let not himfelf eat any delicate food, " without asking his guest to partake of it ! the fatisfaction of a guest will assuredly bring the ' house-keeper wealth, reputation, long life, and a · place in heaven.

107. ' To the highest guests in the best form, ' to the lowest in the worst, to the equal, equally, · let him offer feats, refting places, couches; giv-' ing them proportionable attendance, when they ' depart; and honour as long as they ftay. 108. ' Should another gueft arrive, when the ' oblation to all the Gods is concluded, for him s also let the house-keeper prepare food, accord-.

' ing to his ability; but let him not repeat his ' offerings to animated beings.

109. ' Let no Brábmen guest proclaim his fa-' mily and anceftry for the fake of an entertain-' ment; fince he, who thus proclaims them, is ' called by the wife a vantafi, or foul-feeding demon.

110. 'A military man is not denominated a ' guest in the house of a Brábmen; nor a man of ' the commercial or fervile class; nor his fa-" miliar friend; nor his paternal kinfman; nor · his preceptor : F

111. 'But if a warriour come to his houfe in 'the form of a guest, let food be prepared for 'him, according to his desire, after the before-'mentioned Brábmens have eaten.

112. 'Even to a merchant or a labourer, ap-' proaching his house in the manner of guests, ' let him give food, showing marks of benevo-' lence at the same time with his domesticks :

113. 'To others, as familiar friends, and the reft before-named, who come with affection to his place of abode, let him ferve a repaft at the fame time with his wife and himfelf, having amply provided it according to his beft means. 114. 'To a bride, and to a damfel, to the fick,

114. 'To a bride, and to a damfel, to the fick, 'and to pregnant women, let him give food, even 'before his guefts, without hefitation.

115. 'The idiot, who first eats his own mefs, without having prefented food to the perfons 'just enumerated, knows not, while he crams, that 'he will himself be food after death for bandogs ' and vultures.

116. 'After the repaft of the Brábmen gueft, ' of his kinfmen, and his domesticks, the married ' couple may eat what remains untouched.

117. ' The house-keeper, having honoured ' fpirits, holy fages, men, progenitors, and house-' hold gods, may feed on what remains after those ' oblations.

118. 'He, who eats what has been dreffed for 'himfelf only, eats nothing but fin: a repart on 'what remains after the facrament is called the 'banquet of the good.

119. After a year from the reception of a vifitor, let the house-keeper again honour a king, a facrificer, a fludent returned from his preceptor, ' preceptor, a fon-in-law, a father-in-law, and

' a maternal uncle, with a madbuperca, or prefent ' of honey, curds, and fruit.

120. A king or a Bråbmen arriving at the celebration of the facrament, are to be honoured with a madhuperca; but not, if the facrament be over: this is a fettled rule.

121. 'In the evening let the wife make an 'offering of the dreffed food, but without pro-'nouncing any text of the Véda: one oblation to 'the affembled gods, thence named Vaifwadéva, 'is ordained both for evening and morning.

122. 'FROM month to month, on the dark day of the moon, let a twice born man, having finished the daily facrament of the Pitris, and his fire being ftill blazing, perform the solemn fráddba, called pindánwábárya:

123. Sages have diftinguished the monthly fráddba by the title of anwábárya, or after eater, that is, eaten after the pinda or ball of rice; and it must be performed with extreme care, and with flesh meat in the best condition.

124. What Bráhmens must be entertained at that ceremony, and who must be accepted, how many are to be fed, and with what forts of food, on all those articles, without omiffion, I will fully discourse.

125. 'At the fráddba of the gods he may en-'tertain two Brábmens; at that of his father, 'paternal grandfather, and paternal great-grandfather, three; or one only at that of the gods, 'and one at that for his three paternal anceftors: 'though he abound in wealth, let him not be folicitous to entertain a large company. 126. 'A large company deftroys these five ad' vantages ; reverence to priefts, propriety of time

" and place, purity, and the acquifition of virtuous

· Brábmens: let him not therefore, endeavour to · feed a superfluous number.

127. 'This act of due honour to departed fouls, on the dark day of the moon, is famed by the appellation of pitrya, or anceftral: the legal ce'remony, in honour of departed fpirits, rewards with continual fruit, a man engaged in fuch ob'fequies.
128. 'Oblations to the gods and to anceftors fhould be given to a most reverend Bráhmen, perfectly conversant with the Véda; fince what is given to him produces the greatest reward.

129. 'By entertaining one learned man at the 'oblation to the gods and at that to anceftors, he 'gains more exalted fruit than by feeding a mul-'titude, who know not the holy texts.

130. 'Let him inquire into the ancestry, even in a remote degree, of a Bráhmen, who has advanced to the end of the Véda: fuch a man, if fprung from good men, is a fit partaker of oblations to gods and to ancestors; fuch a man may justly be called an atit'bi, or guest.

131. Surely, though a million of men, unlearned in holy texts, were to receive food, yet a fingle man, learned in fcripture, and fully fatisfied with his entertainment, would be of more value than all of them together.

132. 'Food, confectated to the gods and the manes, must be prefented to a theologian of eminent learning; for certainly, when hands are fineared with blood, they cannot be cleaned with blood only, nor can fin be removed by the company of finners.

133. ' As many mouthfuls as an unlearned man fhall

- fhall fwallow at an oblation to the gods and to
- anceftors, fo many red hot iron balls must the
- ' giver of the fráddba swallow in the next world. 134. ' Some Brábmens are intent on scriptural
- ' knowledge; others, on auftere devotion; fome ' are intent both on religious aufterity and on the
- " fludy of the Véda; others on the performance f of facred rites :

135. ' Oblations to the manes of anceftors ' ought to be placed with care before fuch as are ' intent on facred learning: but offerings to the ' gods may be prefented, with due ceremonies, to · Brabmens of all the four descriptions.

136. ' There may be a Brábmen, whole father ' had not fludied the fcripture, though the fon ' has advanced to the end of the Véda; or there ' may be one, whole fon has not read the Véda, though the father had travelled to the end of it : 127. ' Of those two let mankind confider him ' as the fuperiour, whole father had ftudied the ' fcripture, yet for the fake of performing rites with holy texts, the other is worthy of honour. 138. ' Let no man, at the prefcribed oblequies,

' give food to an intimate friend; fince advantage to a friend must be procured by gifts of different · property : to that Brábmen let the performer of · a fráddba give food, whom he confiders neither · as a friend nor as a foe.

139. ' For him, whole oblequies and offerings · of clarified butter are provided chiefly through " friendship, no fruit is referved in the next life, on account either of his obsequies or of his · offerings. 140. 'The man, who, through delusion of in-

· tellect, forms temporal connexions by oblequies, · is F 3

· is excluded from heavenly manfions, as a giver

• of the fráddba for the fake of friendfhip, and the • meaneft of twice born men :

141. <sup>6</sup> Such a convivial prefent, by men of the <sup>6</sup> three higheft claffes, is called the gift of Pisáchas, <sup>7</sup> and remains fixed here below, like a blind cow <sup>6</sup> in one flall.

142. 'As a hufbandman, having fown feed in a barren foil, reaps no grain, thus a performer f of holy rites, having given clarified butter co an unlearned Brábmen, attains no reward in heaven;

143. 'But a prefent made, as the law ordains, to a learned theologian, renders both the giver and the receiver partakers of good fruits in this world and in the next.

144. ' If no learned Bråhmen be at hand, he ' may at his pleafure invite a friend to the fråddba, ' but not a foe, be he ever fo learned; fince the ' oblation, being eaten by a foe, lofes all fruit in ' the life to come.

145. With great care let him give food at the fráddba to a prieft, who has gone through the fcripture, but has chiefly fludied the Rigvéda; to one, who has read all the branches, but principally those of the Yajush; or to one who has finished the whole, with particular attention to the Sáman:

146. 'Of that man whole oblation has been 'eaten, after due honours, by any one of those three Bráhmens, the anceftors are constantly fatisfied as high as the feventh person, or to the fixth degree.

147. This is the chief rule in offering the fráddba to the gods and to anceftors; but the following " lowing may be confidered as a fublidiary rule,

" where no such learned priests can be found, and is

• ever obferved by good men :

148. 'Let him entertain his maternal grandfather, his maternal uncle, the fon of his lifter, the father of his wife, his fpiritual guide, the fon of his daughter, or her hufband, his maternal coufin, his officiating prieft, or the performer of his facrifice.

149. 'For an oblation to the gods, let not the 'man, who knows what is law, fcrupuloufly in-'quire into the parentage of a Brábmen; but for 'a prepared oblation to anceftors let him examine it with ftrict care.

150. 'Those Brábmens, who have committed 'any inferiour theft or any of the higher crimes, 'who are deprived of virility, or who profess a difbelief in a future state, MENU has pronounced 'unworthy of honour at a fráddba to the gods or to ancestors.

151. 'To a fludent in theology, who has not read the Véda, to a man punifhed for past crimes by being born without a prepuce, to a gamester, and to such as perform many facrifices for other men, let him never give food at the facred obseques.

152, ' Phyficians, image worfhippers for gain, fellers of meat, and fuch as live by low traffick, muft be fhunned in oblations both to the deities and to progenitors.

153. 'A public fervant of the whole town, or of the prince, a man with whitlows on his nails, or with black yellow teeth, an oppofer of his preceptor, a deferter of the facred fire, and an ufurer,

154. · A

154. 'A phthifical man, a feeder of cattle, one omitting the five great facraments, a contemner of Brábmens, a younger brother married before the elder, an elder brother not married before the younger, an a man who fublifts by the wealth of many relations,

155. 'A dancer, one who has violated the 'rule of chaftity in the first or fourth order, the husband of a Súdra, the fon of a twice married 'woman, a man who has lost one eye, and a husband in whose house an adulterer dwells,

156. One who teaches the Véda for wages, and one who gives wages to fuch a teacher, the pupil of a Súdra, and the Súdra preceptor, a rude ipeaker, and the fon of an adulteres, born either before or after the death of the husband,

157. 'A forfaker, without just caule, of his 'mother, father or preceptor, and a man who forms a connexion, either by foriptural or 'connubial affinity, with great finners,

158. 'A house-burner, a giver of poison, an eater of food offered by the son of an adulteres, a seller of the moon plant, a species of mountain rue, a navigator of the ocean, a poetical encomiast, an oilman, and a suborner of perjury,

202. 'Mere water, offered with faith to the 'progenitors of men, in veffels of filver, or 'adorned with filver, proves the fource of in-corruption.

203. An oblation by Brábmens to their anceftors transcends an oblation to the deities:

- becaufe that to the deities is confidered as the
- opening and completion of that to anceftors : 204. • As a prefervative of the oblation to the

• patriarchs, let the house-keeper begin with an • offering to the gods; for the Racshafes rend • in pieces an oblation which has no such pre-• fervative.

- 205. Let an offering to the gods be made at the <sup>6</sup> beginning and end of the fráddha: it must not <sup>6</sup> begin and end with an offering to ancestors; for
- " he who begins and ends it with an oblation to the
- · Pitris, quickly perishes with his progeny.
- 206. 'LET the Brábmen imear with cow dung 'a purified and fequeftered piece of ground; and let him, with great care, felect a place with a
- " declivity toward the fouth :

207. 'The divine manes are always pleafed with an oblation in empty glades, naturally clean, on the banks of rivers, and in folitary fpots.

208. 'Having duly made an ablution with 'water, let him place the invited Bráhmens, who 'have also performed their ablutions, one by

· flowly, let him falute the Gods of the fix feafons;

• and the Pitris alfo, being well acquainted with • proper texts of the Véda.

218. Whatever water remains in his ewer, let him carry back deliberately near the cakes of rice; and with fixed attention, let him fmell those cakes, in order as they were offered:

219. 'Then, taking a fmall portion of the cakes in order, let him firlt, as the law directs, caule the Brábmens to eat of them, while they are feated.

220. 'If his father be alive, let him offer the 'fráddba to his anceftors in three higher degrees; 'or let him caufe his own father to eat, as a 'Brábmen at the obfequies:

221. 'Should his father be dead, and his grandfather living, let him, in celebrating the name of his father, that is, in performing objequies to bim, celebrate also his paternal great grandfather.

222. 'Either the paternal grandfather may partake of the fráddba (fo has MENU declared) or the grandfon, authorized by him, may perform

• the ceremony at his diferetion.

223. Having poured water, with cus'a-grafs and tila, into the hands of the Bráhmens, let him give them the upper part of the cakes, faying,

" Swadbá to the manes !"

224. Next, having himfelf brought with both hands, a veffel full of rice, let him, ftill meditating on the Pitris, place it before the Brábmens without precipitation.

225. 'Rice taken up, but not fupported with 'both hands, the malevolent Afuras quickly rend 'in pieces.

226. ' Broths,

226. s at the fráddba; offering him a blanket from Népàl as his feat, and fprinkling the ground with tila.

235. Three things are held pure at fuch obfequies, the daughter, fon, the Népàl blanket, and the tila; and three things are praifed in it by the wife, cleanlinefs, freedom from wrath, and want of precipitate hafte.

236. Let all the dreffed food be very hot; and let the Brábmens eat it in filence; nor let them declare the qualities of the food, even though afked by the giver.

237. As long as the meffes continue warm, as long as they eat in filence, as long as the qualities of the food are not declared by them, fo long the manes feaft on it.

238. What a Bráhmen eats with his head covered, what he eats with his face to the fouth, what he eats with fandals on his feet, the demons affuredly devour.

239. 'Let not a Chandála, a town boar, a cock, 'a dog, a woman in her courses, or an eunuch, fee the Bráhmens eating :

240. 'That which any one of them fees at the soblation to fire, at a folemn donation of cows and gold, at a repart given to Brábmens, at holy rites to the gods, and at the obsequies to ances tors, produces not the intended fruit:

241. 'The boar deftroys it by his fmell; the cock, by the air of his wings; the dog, by the caft of a look; the man of the lowest class, by the touch.

242. If a lame man, or a man with one eye, or a man with a limb defective or redundant; be even a fervant of the giver, him alfo let his mafter remove from the place.

243. ' Should

243. Should another Brábmen, or a mendicant, come to his houfe for food, let him, having obtained permifion from the invited Brábmens, entertain the stranger to the best of his power.

244. <sup>5</sup> Having brought together all the forts of <sup>6</sup> food, as dreffed rice and the like, and fprinkling <sup>6</sup> them with water, let him place them before the <sup>8</sup> Brábmens, who have eaten; dropping fome on <sup>6</sup> the blades of cus'a-grass, which have been spread <sup>6</sup> on the ground.

245. What remains in the difhes, and what has been dropped on the blades of cus'a, must be confidered as the portion of deceased *Bráb*mens, not girt with the facrificial thread, and of fuch as have deferred unreasonably the women of their own tribe.

246. <sup>6</sup> The refidue, that has fallen on the ground <sup>6</sup> at the fráddba to the manes, the wife have de-<sup>6</sup> cided to be the fhare of all the fervants, who are <sup>6</sup> not crooked in their ways, nor lazy and ill <sup>6</sup> difpofed.

247. 'Before the obsequies to ancestors as far 'as the fixth degree, they must be performed to a 'Bráhmen recently deceased; but the performer of 'them must, in that case, give the fráddba without the ceremony to the gods, and offer only one 'round cake; and these obsequies for a single ancestor 'fould be annually performed on the day of his death: 248. 'When, asterwards, the obsequies to an-'cestors as far as the fixth degree, inclusively of

249. 'THAT fool, who, having eaten of the fráddha, gives the refidue of it to a man of the G 2 fervile fervile clafs, falls headlong down to the hell named Cála/útra.

250. Should the eater of a fraddha enter, on the fame day, the bed of a feducing woman, his anceftors would fleep for that month on her excrement.

251. 'HAVING, by the word fooditam, afked the Brábmens if they have eaten well, let him give them, being fatisfied, water for an ablotion, and courteoufly fay to them, "Reft either at home or here."

252. 'Then let the Bráhmens addrefs him, faying fwadhá; for in all ceremonies relating to deceafed anceftors, the word fwadbá is the higheft benifor. 253. After that, let him inform those, who

• have eaten of the food that remains; and being inftructed by the Bråbmens, let him difpole of it as they may direct.

254. At the close of the fráddba to his anceftors, he must ask if the Bråbmens are fatissied, by the word fwadita; after that for his famile, by the word fufruta; after that for his own advancement, by the word fampanna, after that which has been offered to the gods, by the word ruchita.

255. 'The afternoon, the cus'a-grafs, the clean-'fing of the ground, the tilas, the liberal gifts of 'food, the due preparation for the repart. and the company of most exalted Brábmens, are true riches in the obsequies to ancestors.

256. 'The blades of cus a, the holy texts, the forenoon, all the oblations, which will prefently be enumerated, and the purification before mentioned, are to be confidered as wealth in the fráddha to the gods;

2.7. Such wild grains as are eaten by hermits, 1 milk, the juice of the moonplant, meat untainted, and

' and falt unprepared by art, are held things fit, in their own nature, for the last mentioned offering. 258. ' Having difmiffed the invited Brahmens, . keeping his mind attentive, and his fpeech fupf preffed, let him, after an ablution, look toward the fouth, and ask these bleffings of the Pitris : 259. " May generous givers abound in our ' house ! may the scriptures be studied, and progenv increase in it ! may faith never depart from ' us! and may we have much to beftow on the " needy !"

260. ' Thus having ended the fráddba, let him ' caufe a cow, a prieft, a kid; or the fire, to devour what remains of the cakes ; or let him caft them into the waters.

261. Some make the offering of the round ' cakes after the repast of the Brabmens; fome ' caufe the birds to eat what remains, or caft it ' into water or fire.

262. ' Let a lawful wife, ever dutiful to her ' lord, and conftantly honouring his anceftors, eat ' the middlemost of the three cakes, or that offered to bis paternal grandfather, with due ceremonies, · praying for offspring:

267. ' So may the bring forth a fon, who will be long lived, famed, and ftrong minded; ' wealthy, having numerous descendants, endued with the beft of qualities; and performing all ' duties religious and civil.

264. ' THEN, having washed both his hands and fipped water, let him prepare fome rice for his - paternal kinimen; and, having given it them with due reverence, let him prepare food alfo ŝ. " for his maternal relations.

265. Let the relidue continue in its place, until the Brabmens have been difmiffed; and f then G 2 then let him perform the remaining domestick facraments.

266. 'WHAT fort of oblations, given duly to 'the manes, are capable of fatisfying them, for a 'long time or for eternity, I will now declare · without omiffion.

267. 'The anceftors of men are fatisfied a 'whole month with tila, rice, barley, black 'lentils or vetches, water, roots, and fruit, given 'with prefcribed ceremonies :

268. ' Two months, with fifh; three months, ' with venifon; four, with mutton; five, with the

" flefh of fucb birds, as the twice born may eat : 260. Six months, with the flefh of kids ; fe-

' ven, with that of spotted deer ; eight, with that

• of the deer, or antelope, called éna; nine, with

• that of the ruru :

270. 'Ten months are they fatisfied with the 'flesh of wild boars and wild buffalos; eleven,

- " with that of rabbits or hares, and of tortoifes;
  - 271. A whole year with the milk of cows,
- and food made of that milk; from the flefh of
- the long eared white goat, their fatisfaction en-
- · dures twelve years.

272. 'The potherb cálafáca, the fifh mabáfalca, or the diodon, the flefh of a rhinoceros, or of an iron-coloured kid, honey, and all fuch foreft

273. 'Whatever pure food, mixed with honey,

- a man offers on the thirteenth day of the moon,
- ' in the feafon of rain, and under the lunar afte-
- " rifm Magha, has likewife a ceaseless duration.
  - 274. " Oh ! may that man, fay the manes, be born in our line, who may give us milky food,

" with honey and pure butter, both on the thir-

- * iteenth of the moon; and when the fhadow of an * elephant falls to the east !"
- 275. Whatever a man, endued with ftrong faith, pioufly offers; as the law has directed, becomes a perpetual unperifhable gratification to his anceftors in the other world : 276. The tenth and fo forth, except the fourteenth, in the dark half of the month, are the lunar days most approved for facred obseguies: as they are, fo are not the others,

277. 'He; who does honour to the manes, on even lunar days, and under even lunar flations, enjoys all his defires; on odd lunar days, and under odd lunar afterifms, he procures an illuftrious race.
278. 'As the latter or dark half of the month

half of it.

279. ' The oblation to anceftors must be duly ' made, even to the conclusion of it with the distribation to the fervants, (or even to the close of life,) in the form prefcribed, by a Brabmen wear ing his thread on his right fhoulder, proceeding

* cus'a-grafs in his hand.

280. Obfequies must not be performed by night; fince the night is called rác/hasi or infested by demons; nor while the fun is rifing or fetting,

" nor when it has just rifen.

281. 'A house-keeper, unable to give a monthly ' repast, may perform obsequies here below, ac-' cording to the facred ordinance, only thrice a ' year, in the feasons of bémanta, grishma, and  $G_4$  ' versha; ver/bà; but the five facraments he must perform daily.

282. 'The facrificial oblation at obsequies to ancestors, is ordained to be made in no vulgar fire; nor shou'd the monthly fráddba of that Brábmen, who keeps a perpetual fire, be made on any day, except on that of the conjunction.

283. When a twice born man, having performed his ablution, offers a fatisfaction to the manes with water only, being unable to give a repa/t, he gains by that offering all the fruit of a friddba.

284. 'The wife call our fathers, Vajus; our paternal grandfathers, Rudras; our paternal great grandfathers, Adityas; (that is all are to be revered as deities,) and to this effect there is a primeval text in the Véda.

285. Let a man, who is able, continually feed on vighafa, and continually feed on amrita; by vighafa is meant the refidue of a repaft at obfequies; and by amrita, the refidue of a facrifice to the gods.

286. 'This complete fyftem of rules, for the five facraments and the like, has been declared to you: now hear the law for those means of subfiftence, which the chief of the twice born may feek. ( 89 )

CHAPTER THE FOURTH.

On Economicks; and Private Morals.

1. 'Let a Bråhmen, having dwelt with a pre-'ceptor during the first quarter of a man's life, 'pais the fecond quarter of human life in his own 'house, when he has contracted a legal marriage.

2. 'He must live, with no injury, or with the 'least possible injury, to animated beings, by 'pursuing those means of gaining subsistence, 'which are strictly prescribed by law, except in 'times of distres:

3. 'For the fole purpose of supporting life, 'let him acquire property by those irreproach-'able occupations, which are peculiar to his class, 'and unattended with bodily pain.

4. 'He may live by rita and amrita, or, if ne-'ceffary, by mrita or pramrita, or even by fat-'yanrita; but never let him fubfilt by fwavritti:

5. 'By rita, must be understood lawful glean-'ing and gathering; by amrita, what is given 'unasked; by mrita, what is asked as alms; til-'lage is called pramrita;

6. 'Traffick and money lending are fatyanrita; even by them, when he is deeply diffrested, may he support life; but service for hire is named fwavritti, or dog living, and of course he must by all means avoid it.

7. ' He

7. <sup>4</sup> He may either ftore up grain for three <sup>4</sup> years; or garner up enough for one year; or <sup>4</sup> collect what may laft three days, or make no <sup>4</sup> provision for the morrow.

8. • Of the four Bråbmens keeping houfe, who • follow those four different modes, a preference is • given to the last in order fucceffively; as to • him, who most completely by virtue has van-• quished the world :

9. One of them fubfilts by all the fix means of livelihood; another by three of them; a third by two only; and a fourth lives barely on continually teaching the Véda.

10. 'He, who fultains himfelf by picking up 'grains and ears, must attach himfelf to some 'altar of confecrated fire, but constantly perform 'those rites only, which end with the dark and 'bright fortnights and with the folftices.

11. 'Let him never, for the fake of a fubfiftence, have recourfe to popular converfation; let him live by the conduct of a prieft, neither crooked, nor artful, nor blended with the mannets f the mercantile class.

12. Let him, if he feek happinefs, be firm in perfect content, and check all defire of acquiring more than be poffeffes; for happinefs has its root in content, and difcontent is the root of mifery. 13. A Brábmen keeping houfe, and fupporting himfelf, by any of the legal means beforementioned, muft difcharge thefe following duties, which conduce to fame, length of life, and beatitude.

15. 'He

' dancing, or by any art that pleafes the fenfe; nor · by any prohibited art; nor, whether he be rich or poor, must be receive gifts indifcriminately. 16. ' Let him not, from a felfish appetite, be ftrongly addicted to any fenfual gratification; · let him, by improving his intellect, fludioufly · preclude an exceffive attachment to fuch pleafures, even though lawful. 17. ' All kinds of wealth, that may impede · his reading the Véda, let him wholly abandon, ' perfifting by all means in the fludy of scripture ; for that will be found his most beneficial at-' tainment. 18. ' Let him pass through this life, bringing ' his apparel, his difcourfe, and his frame of mind, to conformity with his age, his occupations, his ' property, his divine knowledge, and his family. 19. ' Each day let him examine those holy ' books, which foon give increase of wildom : and ' those, which teach the means of acquiring wealth; ' those, which are falutary to life; and those ' nigamas, which are explanatory of the Véda; 20. ' Since, as far as a man studies completely

' the fystem of facred literature, fo far only can he

- become eminently learned, and fo far may his · learning fhine brightly.
- 21. ' The facramental oblations to fages, to ' the gods, to fpirits, to men, and to his anceftors, · let him constantly perform to the best of his · power.

22. Some, who well know the ordinances for those oblations, perform not always exter-' nally the five great facraments, but continually " make offerings in their own organs of fenfation " and intellect .:

23. ' Some

23. Some conftantly facrifice their breath in their fpeech, when they infruit others, or praife God aloud, and their fpeech in their breath, when they medidate in filence; perceiving in their fpeech and breath, thus employed, the unperishable fruit of a facrificial offering:

24. 'Other Brábmens inceffantly perform those 'facrifices with feriptural knowledge only; feeing 'with the eye of divine learning, that feriptural 'knowledge is the root of every ceremonial obfervance.

25. 'Let a Bråhmen perpetually make oblations to confectated fire at the beginning and end of day and night, and at the close of each fortnight, or at the conjunction and opposition ::

26. At the feafon, when old grain is ufually <sup>6</sup> confumed, let him offer new grain for a plenti-<sup>6</sup> ful harveft; and at the clofe of the feafon, let <sup>6</sup> him perform the rites called adbvara; at the <sup>6</sup> folftices, let him facrifice cattle; at the end of <sup>6</sup> the year, let his oblations be made with the <sup>6</sup> juice of the moon plant:

27. 'Not having offered grain for the harveft, 'nor cattle at the time of the folftice, let no Bráb-'men, who keeps hallowed fire, and wifnes for 'long life, tafte rice or flefth;

28. Since the holy fires, not being honoured with new grain and with a factifice of cattle, are greedy for rice and flefh, and feek to devour his vital fpirits.

29. 'Let him take care, to the utmost of his power, that no guest lojourn in his house un-'honoured with a feat, with food, with a bed, with 'water, with eculent roots, and with fruit:

30. 'But let him not honour with his converfation fuch as do forbidden acts; fuch as fublift, like cats, by interested craft; fuch as believe not the fcripture; fuch as oppugn it by fophisms; or fuch as live like rapacious water birds.

· like

31. With oblations to the gods and to ancestors, let him do reverence to Brábmens of the fecond order, who are learned in theology, who have returned home from their preceptors, after having performed their religious duties and fully fludied the Véda; but men of an opposite defcription let him avoid.
32. Gifts must be made by each housekeeper, as far as he has ability, to religious mendicants, though heterodox; and a juft portion muft be referved, without inconvenience to his family, for all fentient beings, animal and vegetable.

33. 'A priest, who is master of a family, and f pines with hunger, may seek wealth from a king of the military class, from a facrificer, or f his own pupil, but from no person else, unless all other belps fail: thus will be shew his respect f or the law.

34. 'Let no prieft, who keeps houfe, and is 'able to procure food, ever wafte himfelf with 'hunger; nor, when he has any fubstance, let 'him wear old or fordid clothes.

35. 'His hair, nails, and beard being clipped; bis paffions, fubdued; his mantle, white; his body, pure; let him diligently occupy himfelf in reading the Véda, and be conftantly intent on fuch acts, as may be falutary to him.

36. Let him carry a staff of Vénu, an ewer s with water in it, a handful of cus'a-grass, or a s copy of the Véda; with a pair of bright golden s rings in his ears.

37. He must not gaze on the fun whether rifing

<sup>5</sup> riling or fetting, or eclipfed, or reflected in <sup>5</sup> water, or advanced to the middle of the fky.

38. Over a ftring, to which a calf is tied, let him not ftep; nor let him run while it rains; por let him look on his own image in water; this is a fettled rule.

39. 'By a mound of earth, by a cow, by an 'idol, by a Brábmen, by a pot of clarified butter, ' or of honey, by a place where four ways meet, ' and by large trees well known in the diffrict, f let him pais with his right hand toward them.

40. ' Let him not, though mad with defire, ' approach his wife, when her courfes appear; ' nor let him then fleep with her in the fame bed;

41. Since the knowledge, the manhood, the ftrength, the eye fight, even the vital fpirit of him, who approaches his wife thus defiled, utterly perifh;

42. But the knowledge, the manhood, the ftrength, the fight, and the life of him, who avoids her in that ftate of defilement, are greatly increased.

43. 'Let him neither eat with his wife, nor 'look at her eating, or fneezing, or yawning, or fitting carelefsly at her eafe;

44. 'Nor let a Bråbmen, who defires manly f ftrength, behold her fetting off her eyes with black powder, or fcenting herfelf with effences, or baring her bosom, or bringing forth a child.

45. 'Let him not eat his food, wearing only. 'a fingle cloth; nor let him bathe quite naked; nor let him eject urine or feces in the highway, 'nor on afhes, nor where kine are grazing.

46. 'Nor on tilled ground, nor in water, nor on wood raifed for burning, nor, unlefs be be in great great need, on a mountain, nor on the ruins of a temple, nor at any time on a neft of white ants, 47. ' Nor in ditches with living creatures in them, nor walking, nor flanding, nor on the bank of a river, nor on the fummit of a mounf tain :

48. ' Nor let him ever eject them, looking at things moved by the wind, or at fire, or at a prieft, f. or at the fun, or at water, or at cattle;

49. ' But let him void his excrements, having covered the earth with wood, potherbs, dry leaves and grafs, or the like, carefully suppressing his ! utterance, wrapping up his breaft and his head :

50. ' By day let him void them with his face to the north; by night, with his face to the fouth; ' at fun rife and at fun fet, in the fame manner as f by day;

51. ' In the shade or in darkness, whether by ' day or by night, let a Brábmen ease nature with ' his face turned as he pleafes; and in places where ' he fears injury to life, from wild beafts or from reptiles.

52. ' Of him, who should urine against fire, ' against the fun, or the moon, against a twice born man, a cow, or the wind, all the facred ' knowledge would perifh.

53. Let him not blow the fire with his mouth; ! let him not fee his wife naked ; let him not ' throw any foul thing into fire; nor let him warm his feet in it;

54. ' Nor let him place it in a chafing difh under bis bed; nor let him stride over it; nor let ' him keep it, while he fleeps, at his feet : let him ' do nothing that may be injurious to life.

55. At the time of funrife or funfet, let f him not eat, nor travel, nor lie down to reft ; let him

- " him not idly draw lines on the ground; nor let
- ' him take off his own chaplet of flowers.

56. 'Let him not cast into the water either 'urine or ordure, nor faliva, nor cloth, or any 'other thing foiled with impurity, nor blood, nor 'any kinds of poison.

57. 'Let him not sleep alone in an empty 'house; nor let him wake a sleeping man superiour 'to bimsfelf in wealth and in learning; nor let him 'speak to a woman at the time of her courses; 'nor let him go to perform a facrifice, unattended 'by an officiating priest.

58. In a temple of confecrated fire, in the pafture of kine, in the prefence of Brábmens, in reading the Véda, and in eating his food, let him hold out his right arm uncovered.

59. 'Let him not interrupt a cow while she is drinking, nor give notice to any, whose milk or water she drinks; nor let him who knows right from wrong, and sees in the sky the bow of INDRA, show it to any man.

60. • Let him not inhabit a town, in which • civil and religious duties are neglected; nor for • a long time, one in which difeafes are frequent; • let him not begin a journey alone; let him not • refide long on a mountain.

61. 'Let him not dwell in a city governed by 'a S\dra king, nor in o e furrounded with men 'unobfervant of their duties, nor in one abounding 'with profeffed hereticks, nor in one fwarming 'with low born outcafts.

62. • Let him eat no vegetable, from which the • oil has been extracted; nor indulge his appetite • to fatiety; nor eat either too early or too late; • nor take any food in the evening, if he have eaten • to fullnefs in the morning.

63. Let

63. ' Let him make no vain corporeal exer" tion : let him not fip water taken up with his " closed fingers : let him eat nothing placed in his ' lap: let him never take pleafure in asking idle · questions.
64. ' Let him neither dance, nor fing, nor blay on mufical instruments, except in religious ' rites; nor let him strike his arm, or gnash his ' teeth, or make a braying noise, though agitated
' by paffion.
65. ' Let him not wash his feet in a pan of ' mixed yellow metal; nor let him eat from a ' broken difh, nor where his mind is difturbed
' with anxious apprehenfions.
66. ' Let him not use either flippers or clothes,
' or a facerdotal ftring, or an ornament, or a gar" land, or a water pot, which before have been ufed by another.
67. ' With untrained beasts of burden let him 'not travel; nor with fuch as are opprefied by hunger or by difeafe; nor with fuch as have imperfect horns, eyes, or hoofs; nor with fuch as
• have ragged tails :
68. But let him constantly travel with beasts well trained, whofe pace is quick, who bear all
• the marks of a good breed, who have an agree- • able colour, and a beautiful form; giving them
• very little pain with his whip. 69. • The fun in the fign of Canya, the Imoke of a burning corfe, and a broken feat, mult be fhunned: he must never cut his own hair and f nails, nor ever tear his nails with his teeth.
70. <sup>6</sup> Let him not break mould or clay without caufe : let him not cut grafs with his nails: let • him neither indulge any vain fancy, nor do any " act that can bring no future advantage :
see that can bring no rature advantage.

H

71. ' He

97

71. ' He, who thus idly breaks clay, or cuts ' grafs, or bites his nails, will fpeedily fink to ' ruin; and fo fhall a detractor, and an unclean ' perfon.

72. 'Let him use no contumelious phrase; ! let him wear no garland except on his hair: to ! ride on the back of a bull or cow, is in all ! modes culpable.

73. 'Let him not pass, otherwise than by the 'gate, into a walled town or an enclosed house; f and by night let him keep aloof from the roots of trees.

74. • Never let him play with dice: let him • not put off his fandals with his hand: let him • not eat, while he reclines on a bed, nor what is • placed in his hand, or on a bench;

75. 'Nor, when the fun is fet, let him eat any thing mixed with tila; nor let him ever, in this world, fleep quite naked; nor let him go any whither with a remnant of food in his mouth.

76. 'Let him take his food, having fprinkled his feet with water; but never let him fleep with his feet wet: he, who takes his food with his feet fo fprinkled, will attain long life.

77. 'Let him never advance into a place undiftinguishable by his eye, or not eafily passable: never let him look at urine or ordure; nor let ' him pafs a river fwimming with his arms.

78. Let not a man, who defires to enjoy long life, ftand upon hair, nor upon affres, bones, or potfherds, nor upon feeds of cotton, nor upon · husks of grain.

79. 'Nor let him tarry even under the shade of the same tree with outcasts for great crimes, nor with Chandálas, nor with Puccasas, nor with idiots, nor with men proud of wealth, nor with 7 'washerwashermen and other vile perfons, nor with An tyavasfäyins.

80. * Let him not give even temporal advice to * a Súdra; nor, except to his own fervant, what re-* mains from his table; nor clarified butter, of * which part has been offered to the gods; nor let * him in perfon give fpiritual countel to fuch a * man, nor perfonally inform him of the legal ex-* piation for his fin:

81. Surely he, who declares the law to a fervile man, and he, who inftructs him in the mode of explaining fin, except by the intervention of a prieft, finks with that very man into the hell named Afamvrita.

82. 'Let him not ftroke his head with both 'hands; nor let him even touch it, while food 'remains in his mouth; not without bathing it, 'let him bathe his body.

83. 'Let him not in anger lay hold of hair, or 'fmite any one on the head; nor let him, after 'his head has been rubbed with oil, touch with 'oil any of his limbs.

84. From a king, not born in the military clafs, let him accept no gift, nor from fuch as keep a flaughter-houfe or an oil prefs, or put out a vintner's flag, or fubfift by the gain of proflitutes:

85. 'One oil prefs is as bad as ten flaughter-'houfes; one vintner's flag, as ten oil prefles; 'one proftitute, as ten vintner's flags; one fuch

' king, as ten proftitutes;

86. ' With a flaughterer, therefore, who em-' ploys ten thousand flaughter-houses, a king, not

' That of all others, mentioned in order, " whole food must never be tasted, is held equal " by the wife to the fkin, bones, and hair of the · dead. 222. ' Having unknowingly fwallowed the food of any fuch perfons, he must fast during " three days; but, having eaten it knowingly, he " must perform the fame harsh penance, as if he " had tafted any feminal impurity, ordure, or « urine. 223. ' Let no learned priest eat the dreffed grain of a fervile man, who performs no pa-" rental obfequies; but having no other means to · I live, he may take from him raw grain enough for a fingle night. 224: ' The deities, having well confidered the food of a niggard, who has read the fcripture, and that of an usurer, who bestows gifts li-' berally, declared the food of both to be equal ' in quality; 225. 'But BRAHMA', advancing towards the gods, thus addreffed them: " Make not that ' equal, which in truth is unequal; fince the ' food of a liberal man is purified by faith, while

that

' that of a learned mifer is defiled by his want of ' faith in what he has read."

226. Let each wealby man continually and feduloufly perform facred rites, and confecrate pools or gardens with faith; fince those two acts, accomplished with faith and with riches honeftly gained, procure an unperishable reward:

227. ' If he meet with fit objects of bene-' volence, let him conftantly beftow gifts on ' them, both at facrifices and confectations, to ' the beft of his power and with a chearful heart; 228. ' Such a gift, how fmall foever, beftowed ' on requeft without grudging, paffes to a worthy ' object, who will fecure the giver from all evil.

- 229. 'A giver of water obtains content; a 'giver of food, extreme blifs; a giver of tila, 'defired offspring; a giver of a lamp, unble-
- ' milhed eyelight; 230. ' A giver of land obtains landed pro-
- ' perty; a giver of gems or gold, long life; a
- ' giver of a houfe, the most exalted mansion; a
- ' giver of filver, exquifite beauty;

231. A giver of clothes, the fame flation with CHANDRA; a giver of a horfe, the fame flation with Asw1; a giver of a bull, eminent fortune; a giver of a cow, the mansion of SU'RYA;

232. 'A giver of a carriage or a bed, an excellent confort; a giver of fafety, fupreme dominion; a giver of grain, perpetual delight; a giver of fcriptural knowledge, union with God:

233. Among all those gifts, of water, food, kine, land, clothes, tila, gold, clarified butter, and ' and the reft, a gift of spiritual knowledge is ' confequently the most important ;

224. ' And for whatever purpole a man be-' flows any gift, for a fimilar purpose he shall receive, with due honour, a fimilar reward.

235. ' Both he, who respectfully beftows a ' prefent, and he who respectfully accepts it, shall go to a feat of blifs; but, if they act otherwife. to a region of horror.

236. ' LET not a man be proud of his rigorous · devotion ; let him not, having facrificed, utter ' a fallehood; let him not, though injured, infult ' a prieft; having made a donation, let him neves ' proclaim it:

237. ' By falschood, the facrifice becomes ' vain; by pride, the merit of devotion is loft : ' by infulting priefts, life is diminished; and by · proclaiming a largefs, its fruit is deftroyed.

- 238. 'GIVING no pain to any creature, let ' him collect virtue by degrees, for the fake of
- ' acquiring a companion to the next world, as the ' white ant by degrees builds his neft;

239. ' For, in his paffage to the next world, e neither his father, nor his mother, nor his wife. or his fon, nor his kinfinen, will remain in ' his company: his virtue alone will adhere · to him.

240. ' Single is each man born; fingle he ' dies; fingle he receives the reward of his good, ' and fingle the punishment of his evil deeds :

241. When he leaves his corfe, like a log or a lump of clay, on the ground, his kindred · retire with averted faces; but his virtue ac-

' companies his foul.

.242. ' Continually, therefore, by degrees, let I 4 him

' him collect virtue, for the fake of fecuring an

- ' infeparable companion; fince with virtue for
- his guide, he will traverse a gloom, how hard to • be traversed !

243. 'A man, habitually virtuous, whole offences have been explated by devotion, is inftantly conveyed after death to the higher world, with a radiant form and a body of ethereal fubftance.

244. 'HE, who feeks to preferve an exalted 'rank, must constantly form connexions with the 'highest and best families, but avoid the worst ' and the meanest;

245. 'Since a prieft, who connects himfelf 'with the beft and higheft of men, avoiding the 'loweft and worft, attains eminence; but finks, 'by an opposite conduct, to the class of the fer-'vile.

246. 'HE, who perfeveres in good actions, in 'fubduing his paffions, in beftowing largeffes, in 'gentlenefs of manners, who bears hardfhips patiently, who affociates not with the malignant, 'who gives pain to no fentient being, obtains final beatitude.

247. WOOD, water, roots, fruit, and food placed before him without his requeft, he may caccept from all men; honey allo, and protection from danger.

248. Gold, or other alms, voluntary brought and prefented, but unafked and unpromifed, BRAHMA' confidered as receivable even from a finner:

249. <sup>6</sup> Of him, who fhall difdain to accept <sup>6</sup> fuch alms, neither will the manes eat the funeral <sup>6</sup> oblations for fifteen years, nor will the fire convey <sup>6</sup> the burnt facrifice to the gods.

250. ' A

250. ' A bed, houses, blades of cus'a, perfumes, " water, flowers, jewels, butter-milk, ground rice, fifh, new milk, flefh meat, and green vegetables, · let him not proudly reject. 251. ' When he wishes to relieve his natural ' parents or fpiritual father, his wife or others, " whom he is bound to maintain, or when he is ' preparing to honour deities or guefts, he may · receive gifts from any perfon, but must not ' gratify himfelf with fuch prefents : 252. ' If his parents, however, be dead, or if " he live without them in his own house, let him, ' when he feeks nourifhment for himfelf, receive * prefents invariably from good men alone. 252. ' A labourer in tillage, a family friend, a ' herdiman, a flave, a barber, a poor stranger of-' fering his humble duty, are men of the fervile ' clafs, who may eat the food of their fuperiours : 254. ' As the nature of the poor ftranger is, ' as the work is, which he defires to perform, and ' as he may flow most respect to the master of the ' bcule, even thus let him offer his fervice ; 255. ' For he, who defcribes himfelf to wor-' thy men, in a manner contrary to truth, is the ' most finful wretch in this world : he is the worst ' of thieves, a stealer of minds. 256. All things have their fenfe afgertained ' by fpeech ; in fpeech they have their balis ; and ' from speech they proceed : confequently, a falsi-' fier of fpeech falfifies every thing. 257. WHEN he has paid, as the law directs, ' his debts to the fages, to the manes, and to the ' gods, by reading the scripture, begetting a son, ' and performing regular facrifices, he may refign ' all to his fon of mature age, and refide in his · family, ' family house, with no employment, but that of an ' umpire.

258. Alone, in fome folitary place, let him conftantly meditate on the divine nature of the foul, for by fuch meditation he will attain · happinefs. 259. ' Thus has been declared the mode, by

- " which a Bráhmen, who keeps house, must con-
- tinually fubfift, together with the rule of de-
- votion ordained for a pupil returned from his
- preceptor; a laudable rule, which increases the
- · beft of the three qualities.

260. ' A prieft, who lives always by these ' rules, who knows the ordinances of the Véda,

- who is freed from the bondage of fin, fhall be
- · abforbed in the divine effence.

CHAPTER THE FIFTH.

On Diet, Purification, and Women.

I. THE fages, having heard those laws delivered for the conduct of house-keepers, thus addressed the high-minded BHRIGU, who proceeded, in a former birth, from the genius of fire.

2. ' How, Lord, can death prevail over Bråb-' mens, who know the foriptural ordinances, and ' perform their duties as they have been declared ?'

3. Then he, whole difpolition was perfect virtue, even BHRIGU, the fon of MENU, thus answered the great Riflis. ' Hear from what ' fin proceeds the inclination of death, to deftroy ' the chief of the twice born:

4. 'Through a neglect of reading the Véda, through a defertion of approved ufages, through fupine remiffnels in performing boly rites, and through various offences in diet, the genius of death becomes eager to deftroy tham.
5. 'Garlick, onions, leeks, and mufhrooms, (which no twice born man muft eat) and all vegetables raifed in dung.
6. 'Red gums or refins, exuding from trees, and juices from wounded ftems, the fruit felu, and the thickened milk of a cow within ten days after her calving, a prieft muft avoid with great

7. ' Rice

7. <sup>6</sup> Rice pudding boiled with tila, frumenty, <sup>6</sup> rice-milk, and baked bread, which have not, <sup>6</sup> been first offered to fome deity, flesh meat also, <sup>6</sup> the food of gods, and clarified butter, which <sup>6</sup> have not first been touched, while holy texts <sup>6</sup> were recited,

8. 'Fresh milk from a cow, whose ten days are 'not passed, the milk of a camel, or any quadruped with a hoos not cloven, that of an ewe, and that of a cow in heat, or whose calf is dead or absent from her,

9. 'That of any foreft beaft, except the buffalo, ' the milk of a woman, and any thing naturally ' fweet but acidulated, must all be carefully ' fhunned:

10. 'But among fuch acids, butter-milk may be fwallowed, and every preparation of buttermilk, and all acids extracted from pure flowers, roots, or fruit not cut with iron.

11. 'Let every twice born man avoid carnivo-'rous birds, and fuch as live in towns, and qua-'drupeds with uncloven hoofs, except those al-'lowed by the Véda, and the bird called tittibba; 12. 'The fparrow, the water bird plava, the 'phenicopteros, the chacraváca, the breed of the 'town cock, the fárafa, the rajjuvála, the wood-'pecker, and the parot male and female; 13. 'Birds, that ftrike with their beaks, web-footed birds, the cóya/hti, those who wound with ftrong talons, and those who dive to devour fish; let him avoid meat kept at a slaughterhouse, and dried meat,

14. 'The heron, the raven, the c'banjana, all 'amphibious fifth eaters, tame hogs, and fifth of 'every fort, but those expressly permitted.

15. ' He,

15. 'He, who eats the flesh of any animal, is called the eater of that animal itself; and a fish eater is an eater of all flesh; from fish, therefore, he must diligently abstain:

16. 'Yet the two fish called pát'bina and róbita, may be eaten by the guests, when offered at a repast in honour of the gods or the manes; and so may the rájiva, the finbatunda, and the salaka of every species.

17. 'Let him not eat the flefh of any folitary
'animals, nor of unknown beafts or birds, though 'by general words declared eatable, nor of any
'creature with five claws ;

18. 'The hedgehog and porcupine, the lizard 'gódbá, the gandaca, the tortoife, and the rabbit 'or bare, wife legiflators declare lawful food 'among five toed animals; and all quadrupeds, 'camels excepted, which have but one row of 'teeth.

19. 'The twice born man, who has intention-'ally eaten a mufhroom, the flefh of a tame hog, 'or a town cock, a leek, or an onion, or garlick, 'is degraded immediately;

20. <sup>6</sup> But having undefignedly tafted either of <sup>6</sup> those fix things, he must perform the penance <sup>6</sup> fántapana, or the chándráyana, which anchorets, <sup>6</sup> practife; for other things he must fast a whole <sup>6</sup> day.

21. 'One of those harsh penances, called prá-'jápatya, the twice born man must perform an-'nually, to purify him from the unknown taint of 'illicit food; but he must do particular penance for fuch food intentionally eaten.

22. ' BEASTS and birds of excellent forts may be flain by Bráhmens for facrifice, or for the fustenance fuffenance of those, whom they are bound to fupport; fince AGASTYA did this of old.

23. No doubt in the primeval facrifices by holy men, and in oblations by those of the prieftly and military tribes, the flesh of such beafts and birds, as may be legally eaten, was prefented to the deities.

24. 'That which may be eaten or drunk when 'fresh, without blame, may be swallowed, if 'touched with oil, though it has been kept a 'whole night; and so may the remains of clarified butter:

25. And every mefs prepared with barley or wheat, or with dreffed milk, may be eaten by the twice born, although not fprinkled with oil.

26. 'Thus has the food, allowed or forbidden to a twice born man, been comprehenfively mentioned: I will now propound the fpecial rules for eating and for avoiding flefh meat.

27. • He fhould tafte meat, which has been • hallowed for a facrifice with appropriated texts, • and once only, when a prieft fhall defire him, and • when he is performing a legal act, or in danger • of lofing life.

28. 'For the fuffenance of the vital fpirit, BRAHMA' created all this animal and vegetable fyftem; and all that is moveable or immoveable, that fpirit devours.

29. Things fixed are eaten by creatures with 6 locomotion; toothlefs animals, by animals with 6 teeth; those without hands, by those to whom 6 hands were given; and the timid by the bold.

30. 'He, who eats according to law, commits no fin, even though every day he taftes the flefh of fuch animals, as may lawfully be tafted; fince both animals, who may be eaten, and those who eat them, were equally created by BRAHMA'. 31. 'It

31. ' It is delivered as a rule of the gods, that ' meat must be fwallowed only for the purpose ' of facrifice; but it is a rule of gigantick de-" mons, that it may be fwallowed for any other ٤. purpofe. 32. ' No fin is committed by him, who having ' honoured the deities and the manes, eats flesh " meat, which he has bought, or which he has · himfelf acquired, or which has been given him · by another : 33. ' Let no twice born man, who knows the ' law, and is not in urgent diffrefs, eat flefh with-' out observing this rule; for he, unable to fave ' himfelf, will be devoured in the next world by those animals, whose flesh he has thus illegally · fwallowed. 34. ' The fin of him, who kills deer for gain,

34. • The in of him, who kills deer for gain, • is not fo heinous, with respect to the punishment • in another life, as that of him, who eats flesh • meat in vain, or not previously offered as a fa-• crifice :

35. 'But the man, who, engaged in boly rites 'according to law, refu[es to eat it, fhall fink in 'another world, for twenty-one births, to the fate of a beaft.

36. 'Never let a priest eat the flesh of cattle 'unhallowed with mantras, but let him eat it, observing the primeval rule, when it has been hallowed with those texts of the Véda.

37. 'Should he have an earneft defire to tafte flefh meat, he may gratify his fancy by forming the image of fome beaft with clarified butter thickened, or he may form it with dough, but never let him indulge a wifh to kill any beaft in vain:

38, • As many hairs as grow on the beaft, fo

many fimilar deaths shall the flayer of it, for

39. By the felf-exifting in perfon were beafts created for facrifice; and the facrifice was ordained for the increase of this universe: the flaughterer therefore of beafts for facrifice is in truth no flaughterer.

40, 'Gramineous plants, cattle, timber-trees, 'amphibious animals, and birds, which have been 'deftroyed for the purpole of facrifice, attain in the next world exalted births.

41. 'On a folemn offering to a gueft, at a facrifice and in holy rites to the manes or to the gods, but on those occasions only, may cattle be flain : this law MENU enacted.

42. 'The twice born man, who knowing the 'meaning and principles of the Véda, flays cattle 'on the occasions mentioned, conveys both him-'felf and those cattle to the furmit of beatitude.

43. <sup>6</sup> Let no twice born man, whole mind is <sup>6</sup> improved by learning, hurt animals without the <sup>6</sup> fanction of fcripture, even though in preffing <sup>6</sup> diffrefs, whether he live in his own houfe, or in <sup>6</sup> that of his preceptor, or in a foreft.

44. 'That hurt, which the fcripture ordains, and which is done in this world of moveable and immoveable creatures, he must confider as no hurt at all; fince law shone forth from the light of the fcripture.

45. 'He, who injures animals, that are not injurious, from a wifh to give himfelf pleafure; adds nothing to his own happinefs, living or dead;

46. While he, who gives no creature willingly the pain of confinement or death, but feeks the

and the second second

< end. 47. ' He, who injures no animated creature, ' shall attain without hardship whatever he thinks · of, whatever he ftrives for, whatever he fixes · his mind on. 48. ' Flesh meat cannot be procured without ' injury to animals, and the flaughter of animals · obstructs the path to beatitude; from flesh meat, " therefore, let man abstain : 49. . Attentively confidering the formation of bodies, and the death or confinement of imbodied fpirits, let him abstain from eating flesh " meat of any kind. 50. " The man who forfakes not the law, and eats not flefh meat, like a blood thirfty demon, " fhall attain good will in this world, and fhall not · be afflicted with maladies. 51. ' He, who confents to the death of an animal; he, who kills it; he, who diffects it; " he, who buys it; he, who fells it; he, who dreffes it; he, who ferves it up; and he, who " makes it his food; these are eight principals in • the flaughter. 52. ' Not a mortal exifts more finful than he, who without an oblation to the manes or the gods, defires to enlarge his own flefh with the · flefh of another creature. 53. ' The man, who performs annually, for a · hundred years, an aswamédba, or sacrifice of a · borfe, and the man who abitains from flesh meat, · enjoy for their virtue an equal reward. 54. By fublifting on pure fruit and 'on roots, and by eating fuch grains as are eaten by her-"mits, a man reaps not fo high a reward, as by carefully abstaining from animal food. 55. " Me K

55. " Me he (mán fa) will devour in the next vorld, whole flesh I eat in this life:" thus flould a flesh eater fpeak, and thus the learned pronounce the true derivation of the word mánfa, or flesh.

56. 'In lawfully tailing meat, in drinking fermented liquor, in carefling women, there is no turpitude; for to fuch enjoyments men are naturally prone; but a virtuous abiliance from them produces a fignal compensation.

57. Now will I promulgate the rules of v purification for the dead, and the modes of purifying inanimate things, as the law prefcribes them for the four claffes in due order.

58. When a child has teethed, and when, after teething, his head has been fhorn, and when he has been girt with his thread, and when, being full grown, he dies, all his kindred are impure: on the birth of a child the law is the fame.

59. By a dead body, the fapindas are rendered impure in law for ten days, or until the fourth day, when the bones have been gathered up, or for three days, or for one day only, according to

· the qualities of the deceased :

60. 'Now the relation of the fapindas, or men connected by the funeral cake, ceafes with the feventh perfon, or in the fixth degree of afcent or defcent, and that of famánôdacas, or those connected by an equal oblation of water, ends only, when their births and family names are no longer known.

61. As this impurity, by reason of a dead kinsman, is ordained for spindas, even thus it is ordained on a child-birth, for those who seek absolute purity.

62. ' Un-

62. 'Uncleannefs, on account of the dead, is 'ordained tor all; but on the birth of a child, 'for the mother and father: impurity, for ten days after the child-birth, affects the mother only; but the father, having bathed, becomes 'pure.

63. 'A man, having wasted his manhood, is 'purified by bathing; but after begetting a child 'on a parapúrvá, he must meditate for three days

• on his impure state. 64. • In one day and night, added to nights

* three times three, the fapindas are purified after * touching the corpfe; but the famánódacas in three * days.

65. A pupil in theology, having performed

' the ceremony of burning his deceased preceptor,

<sup>6</sup> becomes pure in ten nights : he is equal, in that <sup>6</sup> cafe, to the fapindas, who carry out the dead.

66. In a number of nights, equal to the number of months from conception, a woman is purified on a mifcarriage; and a woman in her courfes is rendered pure by bathing, when her effusion of blood has quite ftopped.

67. 'For deceafed male children, whofe heads 'have not been fhorn, purity is legally obtained 'in one night; but for thofe, on whom that ce-'remony has been performed, a purification of 'three nights is required.

68. ' A dead child under the age of two years, ' let his kinimen carry out, having decked him " with flowers, and bury bim in pure ground, with-

· out collecting his bones at a future time :

69. 'Let no ceremony with fire be performed for him, nor that of fprinkling water; but his kindred, having left him like a piece of wood in the foreft, shall be unclean for three days.

70. ' For

70. 'For a child under the age of three years, the ceremony with water fhall not be performed by his kindred; but if his teeth be completely grown, or a name have been given him, they may perform it, or not, at their option.

71. A fellow fludent in theology being dead, three days of impurity are ordained; and on the birth of a famánódaca, purification is required for three nights.

72. 'The relations of betrothed but unmarried damfels, are in three days made pure; and, in as many, are their paternal kinfmen purified after their marriage:

73. 'Let them eat vegetable food without factitious, that is, only with native falt; let them bathe for three days at intervals; let them tafte no flefh meat; and let them fleep apart on the ground.

74. 'This rule, which ordains impurity by rea-'fon of the dead, relates to the cafe of one dying 'near his kinfmen; but, in the cafe of one dying at a diffance, the following rule muft be obferved by those who fhare the fame cake, and by those who fhare only the fame water:

75. 'The man, who hears that a kinfman is dead in a diftant country, becomes unclean, if ten days after the death have not paffed, for the remainder of those ten days only;

76. 'But if the ten days have elapfed, he is 'impure for three nights, and, if a year have 'expired, he is purified merely by touching water. 77. 'If, after the lapfe of ten days, he know the death of a kinfman, or the birth of a male child, he must purify himfelf by bathing together 'with his clothes.

78. Should a child, whose teeth are not grown,

Whileholdby Google

' grown, or should a samanodaca die in a distant ' region, the kinfman, having bathed with his ' apparel, becomes immediately pure. 79. ' If, during the ten days, another death or another birth intervene, a Brábmen remains im-, ' pure only till those ten days have elapsed. 80. ' A spiritual teacher being dead, the fages ' dec'are his pupil impure for three days; but for ' a day and a night, if the fon or wife of the. teacher be deceafed; fuch is the facred ordi-' nance. 81. ' For a reader of the whole Véda, who ' dwells in the fame house, a man is unclean three ' nights; but for a maternal uncle, a pupil, an ' officiating prieft, and a diftant kinfman, only. ' one night winged with two days. 82. ' On the death of a military king, in whofe dominion he lives, bis impurity lasts while the ' fun or the ftars give light; but it lasts a whole day, on the death of a prieft who has not read ' the whole Véda, or of a spiritual guide, who has ' read only part of it, with its Angas. 82. A man of the facerdotal clafs becomes ' pure in ten days; of the warlike, in twelve; of the commercial, in five; of the fervile, in · a month. 84. ' Let no man prolong the days of impurity; · let him not intermit the ceremonies to be per-· formed with holy fires; while he performs those ' rites, even though he be a fapinda, he is not · impure. 85. 'He, who has touched a .Chandála, a wo-" man in her courses, an outcast for deadly fin, a ' new born child, a corpfe, or one who has touched a corpfe, is made pure by bathing.

86. ' If,

86. 'If, having fprinkled his mouth with 'water, and been long intent on his devotion, he fee an unclean perfon, let him repeat, as well as he is able, the folar texts of the Véda, and those which confer purity.

87. 'Should a Brâhmen touch a human bone 'moift with oil, he is purified by bathing; if it 'be not oily, by ftroking a cow, or by looking at the fun, having fprinkled his mouth duly with 'water. 88. 'A ftudent in theology fhall not perform

* A trudent in theology that not perform
* the ceremony of pouring water at obsequies, un* til he have completed his course of religious acts;
* but if, after the completion of them, he thus * make an offering of water, he becomes pure in * three nights.

89. 'For thofe, who difcharge not their preferibed duties; for thofe, whofe fathers were of a lower clafs than their mothers; for thofe, who wear a drefs of religion unauthorized by the Véda; and for thofe, who itlegally kill themfelves, the ceremony of giving funeral water is forbidden by law;

90. And for women imitating fuch hereticks, as wear an unlawful drefs, and for fuch women as live at their own pleafure, or have caufed an bortion, or have ftricken their hufbands, or have drunk any fpirituous liquor.

9. 'A ftudent violates not the rules of his order, by carrying out, when dead, his own inftructor in the Védas, who invefted him with his holy cord, or his teacher of particular chapters, or his reverend expounder of their meaning, or his father, or his mother. 92. 'Let men carry out a dead Súdra by the fouthern gate of the town; but the twice born, in due order, by the western, northern, and eastern gates.

93. 'No taint of impurity can light on kings or students in theology, while employed in difcharging their feveral duties, nor on those who have actually begun a facrifice; for the first are then placed on the feat of INDRA, and the others are always equally pure with the celeftial spirit.

94. 'To a king, on the throne of magnanimity, 'the law afcribes inftant purification, becaufe his 'throne was raifed for the protection of his peo-

• ple and the fupply of their nourifhment :

95. It is the fame with the kinfmen of thole who die in battle, after the king has been flain, or have been killed by lightning, or legally by the king himfelf, or in defence of a cow, or of a prieft; and with all thole whom the king wifnes to be pure.

96. 'The corporeal frame of a king is compoled of particles from Sóma, AONI, SU'RYA, 'PAVANA, INDRA, CUVE'RA, VARUNA, and 'Y MA, the eight guardian deities of the world:

97. 'By those guardians of men in substance is the king pervaded, and he cannot by law be impure; fince by those tutelar gods are the purity and impurity of mortals both caused and removed.

98. 'By a foldier difcharging the duties of his 'clafs, and flain in the field with brandifhed wea-'pons, the higheft facrifice is, in that inftant, 'complete; and fo is his purification: this law 'is fixed.

99. 'A prieft having performed funeral rites,
' is purified by touching water; a foldier, by
' touching his horfe or elephant, or his arms;
' a hufbandman, by touching his goad, or the hal-K 4 ' ter of his cattle; a fervant, by touching his ' ftaff.

100. 'This mode of purifying fapindas, O chief f of the twice born, has been fully declared to you! learn now the purification required on the death of kinfmen lefs intimately connected.

101. A Bráhmen, having caried out a dead Bráhmen, though not a fapinda, with the affection of a kinfman, or any of those nearly related to him by his mother, becomes pure in three days; ro2. But, if he taste the food offered by their

fapindas, he is purified in ten days; and in one day, if he neither partake of their food, nor dwell in the fame house.

103. 'If he voluntarily follow a corpfe, whe-' ther of a paternal kinfman or of another, and ' afterwards bathe with his apparel, he is made ' pure by touching fire and tafting clarified ' butter.

104. 'Let no kinfman, whilft any of his own clafs are at hand, caufe a deceafed Bráhmen to be carried out by a Sudra; fince the funeral rite, polluted by the touch of a fervile man, obstructs his paffage to heaven.

105. 'Sacred learning, auftere devotion, fire, 'holy aliment, earth, the mind, water, fmearing 'with cow-dung, air, prefcribed acts of religion, 'the fun, and time, are purifiers of imbodied fpirits;

106. 'But of all pure things, purity in acquir-'ing wealth is pronounced the moft excellent: fince he, who gains wealth with clean hands, is 'truly pure; not he, who is purified merely with fearth and water.

136

107. ' By forgiveness of injuries, the learned " are purified ; by liberality, those who have neg-' lected their duty; by pious meditation, those ' who have fecret faults; by devout aufterity, · those who best know the Véda. 108. ' By water and earth is purified what ' ought to be made pure ; a river, by its current; ' a woman, whofe thoughts have been impure, by ' her monthly discharge, and the chief of twice ' born men, by fixing his mind wholly on GoD. 109. ' Bodies are cleanfed by water ; the mind ' is purified by truth; the vital fpirit, by theology ' and devotion; the understanding, by clear ' knowledge. 110. ' Thus have you heard me declare the ' precise rules for purifying animal bodies: hear ' now the modes of reftoring purity to various ' inanimate things. 111. ' Of brilliant metals, of gems, and of every ' thing made with ftone, the purification, ordained ' by the wife, is with ashes, water, and earth. 112. ' A golden veffel, not fineared, is cleanfed ' with water only; and every thing produced in ' water, as coral, shells or pearls, and every stony ' fubstance, and a filver veffel not enchafed. 113. ' From a junction of water and fire arofe ' gold and filver; and they two, therefore, are beft ' purified by the elements whence they fprang. 114. ' Veffels of copper, iron, brais, pewter, tin and lead, may be fitly cleanfed with afhes, ' with acids, or with water. 115. ' The purification ordained for all forts of ' liquids, is by ftirring them with cus'a-grafs ; for · cloths folded, by fprinkling them with hallowed " water ; for wooden utenfils, by planeing them. 116. ' For

137

116. 'For the facrificial pots to hold clarified 'butter and juice of the moon plant, by rubbing them with the hand, and washing them, at the time of the facrifice:

117. 'Implements to wash the rice, to contain the oblations, to cash them into the fire, to colleft, winnow, and prepare the grain, must be purified with water made hot.

118. 'The purification by fprinkling is ordained for grain and cloths in large quantities; but to purify them in fmall parcels, which a man may eafily carry, they must be washed.

119. Leathern utenfils, and fuch as are made with cane, muft generally be purified in the fame manner with cloths; green vegetables, roots, and fruit, in the fame manner with grain;

120. 'Silk and woollen ftuff, with faline earths; blankets from Népála with pounded arifhtas, or nimba fruit; vefts and long drawers, with the fruit of the Bilva; mantles of cfbumá, with white muftard feeds.

121. 'Utenfils made of shells or horn, of bones 'or of ivory, must be cleansed by him who knows the law, as mantles of cfbumá are purified, with the addition of cows urine or of water. 122. Grass, firewood, and straw, are purified by sprinkling them with water; a house, by rubbing, brushing, and smearing with cow-dung; an earthen pot, by a fecond burning:

123. But an earthen pot, which has been touched with any fpirituous liquor, with urine, with ordure, with fpittle, with pus, or with blood, cannot, even by another burning, be rendered pure.

124, ' Land is cleanfed by five modes; by ' fweeping

- fweeping, by fmearing with cow-dung, by fprinkling with cow's urine, by fcraping, or by letting
- ' a cow pass a day and a night on it. 125. ' A thing nibbled by a bird, fmelt at by a cow, fhaken with a foot, fneezed on, or defiled

• by lice, is purified by earth fcattered over it. 126. • As long as the fcent or moifture, caufed

' by any impurity, remain on the thing foiled, fo

' long must earth and water be repeatedly used in " all purifications of things inanimate.

127. 'The gods declared three pure things peculiar to Brábmens; what has been defiled

" without their knowledge, what, in cafes of doubt, they fprinkle with water; and what they commend with their speech.

123. Waters are pure, as far as a cow goes to quench her thirft in them, if they flow over clean earth, and are fullied by no impurity, but have a good fcent, colour, and tafte.

120. 'The hand of an artift, employed in bis art, 'is always pure; fo is every vendible commodity, 'when exposed to fale; and that food is always 'clean, which a fludent in theology has begged f and received: fuch is the facred rule.

f and received: luch is the facred rule. 130. The mouth of a woman is constantly pure; a bird is pure on the fall of fruit, which he has pecked; a fucking animal, on the flowing

' of the milk; a dog, on his catching the deer: 131. ' The flesh of a wild beast flain by dogs,

" MENU pronounces pure; and that of an animal

· flain by other carnivorous creatures, or by men

f of the mixed class, who subsist by hunting. 132. All the cavities above the navel are pure, f and all below it, unclean; fo are all excretions f that fall from the body.

123. Gnats

133. Gnats, clear drops from the mouth of a fpeaker, a fhadow, a cow, a horfe, fun-beams, duft, earth, air and fire, must all be confidered as clean, even when they touch an unclean thing.

134. 'For the cleanfing of veffels, which have 'held ordure or urine, earth and water muft be 'ufed, as long as they are needful; and the fame for cleanfing the twelve corporeal impurities:

135. Oily exudations, feminal fluids, blood, dandruff, urine, feces, ear-wax, nail-parings, phlegm, tears, concretions on the eyes, and fweat, are the twelve impurities of the human frame.

136. ' By the man who defires purity, one piece ' of earth, together with water, must be used for the · conduit of urine, three for that of the feces; fo,

- ten for one hand, that is, the left; then seven for
- both : but if necessary, more must be used.
- 137. Such is the purification of married men ;
- that of fludents muft be double; that of hermits, triple; that of men wholly reclufe, quadruple.
  138. Let each man fprinkle the cavities of his body, and tafte water in due form, when he has difcharged urine or feces; when he is going to read the Véda; and, invariably, before he takes his food:

139. 'First, let him thrice taste water; then, 'twice let him wipe his mouth, if he be of a 'twice born class, and defire corporeal purity; but 'a woman or fervile man may once respectively 'make that ablution.

140. Sidras, engaged in religious duties, must perform each month the ceremony of fhaving their heads; their food must be the orts " orts of Brábmens; and their mode of purification, the fame with that of a Vailya.

141. 'Such drops of water, as fall from the 'mouth or any part of the body, render it not 'unclean; nor hairs of the beard that enter the 'mouth; nor what adheres awhile to the teeth.

142. 'Drops, which trickle on the feet of a 'man holding water for others, are held equal to 'waters flowing over pure earth: by them he is 'not defiled.

143. 'He, who carries in any manner an in-'animate burden, and is touched by any thing 'impure, is' cleanfed by making an ablution, 'without laying his burden down.'

144. 'Having vomited, or been purged, lêt 'him bathe and tafte clarified butter, but, if he 'have eaten already, let him only perform an ab-'lution: for him, who has been connected with 'a woman, bathing is ordained by law.

145. 'Having flumbered, having fneezed, hav-'ing eaten, having fpitten, having told untruths, 'having drunk water, and going to read facred 'books, let him, though pure, wash his mouth.

146. "This perfect fystem of rules for purifying men of all classes, and for cleansing inanimate things, has been declared to you: hear now the laws concerning women.

147. 'Br a girl, or by a young woman, or 'by a woman advanced in years, nothing mult 'be done, even in her own dwelling place, ac-' cording to her mere pleafure:

148. In childhood must a female be dependent on her father; in youth, on her husband; her lord being dead, on her fons; if she bave no fons, on the near kinsmen of her busband; if he left ' left no kinsmen, on those of her father; if the have

' no paternal kinsmen, on the sovereign : a woman

" must never feek independence.

149. 'Never let her wish to separate herself 'from her father, her husband, or her sons; for, 'by a separation from them, she exposes both families to contempt.

1 50. 'She must always live with a cheerful 'temper, with good management in the affairs of the house, with great care of the household furniture, and with a strugal hand in all her expences.

151. 'Him, to whom her father has given 'her, or her brother with the paternal affent, let 'her obsequiously honour, while he lives; and,

• when he dies, let her never neglect him.

152. 'The recitation of holy texts, and the facrifice ordained by the lord of creatures, are used in marriages for the fake of procuring good fortune to brides; but the first gift, or treth plighted by the husband, is the primary cause and origin of marital dominion.

153. When the hufband has performed the nuptial rites with texts from the Véda; he gives blifs continually to his wife here below, both in feafon and out of feafon; and he will give her happinefs in the next world.

154. 'Though inobfervant of approved ufages, 'or enamoured of another woman, or devoid of 'good qualities, yet a hufband must constantly

• be revered as a god by a virtuous wife.

155. No facrifice is allowed to women apart from their husbands, no religious rite, no fafting: as far only as a wife honours her lord, fo far she is exalted in heaven.

156. ' A

156. ' A faithful wife, who wishes to attain in heaven the manfion of her hufband, must do · nothing unkind to him, be he living or dead: 157. ' Let her emaciate her body, by living ' voluntarily on pure flowers, roots, and fruit; ' but let her not, when her lord is deceafed, even ' pronounce the name of another man. 158. ' Let her continue till death forgiving all ' injuries, performing harfh duties, avoiding every ' fenfual pleafure, and cheerfully practifing the ' incomparable rules of virtue, which have been followed by fuch women, as were devoted to ' one only hufband. 159. ' Many thousands of Brabmens, having ' avoided fenfuality from their early youth, and · having left no iffue in their families, have af-' cended, nevertbeles, to heaven; 160. ' And, like those abstemious men, a vir-' tuous wife afcends to heaven, though the have ' no child, if, after the decease of her lord, she · devote herself to pious austerity : 161. ' But a widow, who, from a wish to bear ' children, flights her deceased husband by marry-' ing again, brings difgrace on herfelf here below, ' and shall be excluded from the feat of her lord.' 162. ' Iffue, begotten on a woman by any ' other than ber busband, is here declared to be ' no progeny of hers; no more than a child, ' begotten on the wife of another man, belongs to ' the begetter : nor is a fecond hufband allowed, ' in any part of this code, to a virtuous woman. 163. ' She, who neglects her former (purva) ' lord, though of a lower clafs, and takes another (para) of a higher, becomes defpicable in this ' world, and is called parapúrvá, or one who had ' a different busband before.

164. 'A married woman, who violates the duty which fhe owes to her lord, brings infamy on herfelf in this life, and, in the next, fhall enter the womb of a fhakal, or be afflicted with elephantiafis, and other difeafes, which punifh crimes; 165. 'While fhe, who flights not her lord, but keeps her mind, fpeech, and body, devoted to him, attains his heavenly manfion, and by good men is called fadbvi, or virtuous.

166. 'Yes; by this courfe of life it is, that a 'woman, whole mind, fpeech, and body are 'kept in fubjection, acquires high renown in this 'world, and, in the next, the fame abode with 'her hufband.

167. 'A twice born man, verfed in facred ordinances, muft burn with hallowed fire and fit implements of facrifice, his wife dying before him, if fhe was of his own clafs, and lived by thefe rules: 168. 'Having thus kindled facred fires and performed funeral rites to his wife, who died before him, he may again marry, and again light the nuptial fire.

169. 'Let him not ceafe to perform day by day, according to the preceding rules, the five great facraments; and having taken a lawful confort, let him dwell in his house during the fecond period of his life. ( 145 )

CHAPTER THE SIXTH.

On Devotion; or on the Third and Fourth Orders.

1. ' HAVING thus remained in the order of a · houfe-keeper, as the law ordains, let the twice · born man, who had before completed his ftudentship, dwell in a forest, his faith being firm " and his organs wholly fubdued. 2. When the father of a family, perceives his " mufcles become flaccid and his hair gray, and fees the child of his child, let him then feek · refuge in a foreft : 2. Abandoning all food eaten in towns, and all · his household utenfils, let him repair to the · lonely wood, committing the care of his wife to · her fons, or accompanied by her, if the chufe to · attend bim. 4. ' Let him take up his confectated fire, and all his domeflick implements of making oblations to it, and, departing from the town to the foreft. · let him dwell in it with complete power over his · organs of fenfe and of action. 5. With many forts of pure food, fuch as holy fages used to eat, with green herbs, roots, and · fruit, fruit, let him perform the five great facraments ' before mentioned, introducing them with due ccremonies.

6. Let him wear a black antelopes's hide, or a vefture of bark; let him bathe evening and " morning; let him fuffer the hairs of his head, <sup>4</sup> his beard, and his nails to grow continually.

7. From fuch food, as himfelf may eat, let · him, to the utmost of his power, make offerings and give alms; and with prefents of water, roots, ' and fruit, let him honour those who visit his · hermitage.

8. ' Let him be constantly engaged in reading the · Veda; patient of all extremities, univerfally bee nevolent, with a mind intent on the Supreme ' Being; a perpetual giver, but no receiver of gifts; with tender affection for all animated · bodies.

9. ' Let him, as the law directs, make oblations on the hearth with three facred fires; not omitfing, in due time, the ceremonies to be performed at the conjunction and opposition of the moon.

10. ' Let him also perform the facrifice ordained ' in honour of the lunar conftellations, make the · prefcribed offering of new grain, and folemnize

- · holy rites every four months, and at the winter
- and fummer folftices.

11. With pure grains, the food of ancient fages, growing in the vernal and autumnal feafons, and brought home by himfelf, let him feve-

" rally make, as the law ordains, the oblations of cakes and boiled grain ;

12. ' And, having prefented to the gods, that * pureft oblation which the wild woods produced, · let him eat what remains, together with fome nativ e falt, which himfelf collected.

and the state of t

13. ' Let

13. Let him eat green herbs, flowers, roots, and fruit, that grow on earth or in water, and the productions of pure trees, and oils formed in fruits.

14. ' Honey and flefh meat he must avoid, and fall forts of mushrooms, the plant bhústrina, that named sighruca, and the fruit of the slefhmátaca.

15. 'In the month Afwina let him caft away the 'food of fages, which he before had laid up, and 'his vefture, then become old, and his herbs, 'roots, and fruit.

16. 'Let him not eat the produce of plowed 'land, though abandoned by any man who 'owns it, nor fruits and roots produced in a 'town, even though hunger oppress him.

17. 'He may eat what is mellowed by fire, and 'he may eat what is ripened by time; and either 'let him break hard fruits with a stone, or let his 'teeth ferve as a pestle.

18. 'Either let him pluck enough for a day, 'or let him gather enough for a month; or let 'him collect enough for fix months, or lay up 'enough for a year.

19. Having procured food, as he is able, he may eat it at eve or in the morning; or he may take only every fourth, or every eighth, fuch regular meal;

20. ' Or, by the rules of the lunar penance, he ' may eat a mouthful more each day of the bright,

" and a mouthful lefs each day of the dark fortnight; or he may eat only once, at the close of each fortnight, a mels of boiled grains :

21. • Or he may conftantly live on flowers and • roots, and on fruit matured by time, which has • fallen ipontaneoufly, ftrictly observing the laws ordained for hermits.

22. ' Let

22. Let him flide backwards and forwards on the ground; or let him fland a whole day on tiproe; or let him continue in motion rifing and fitting alternately; but at funrife, at noon, and at fundet, let him go to the waters and bathe.

23. 'In the hot feason, let him fit exposed to five fires, four blazing around him with the fun above; in the rains, let him fland uncovered, without even a mantle, where the clouds pour the heaviest flowers; and in the cold feason, let him wear humid vesture; and let him increase by degrees the austerity of his devotion:

24. Performing his ablution at the three Sava nas, let him give fatisfaction to the manes and to the gods; and, enduring harfher and harfher mortifications, let him dry up his bodily frame.

25. 'Then having reposited his holy fires, as the 'law directs, in his mind, let him live without 'external fire, without a mansfin, wholly filent, 'feeding on roots and fruit;

26. Not folicitous for the means of gratification, chafte as a fludent, fleeping on the bare earth, in the hants of pious hermits, without one felfifh affection, dwelling at the roots of trees.

27. From devout Brábmens let him receive c alms to fupport life, or from other house-keepc ers of twice born classes, who dwell in the c forest:

28. • Or the hermit may bring food from a • town, having received it in a bafket of leaves, • in his naked hand, or in a pottherd; and then • let him fwallow eight mouthfuls.

25. • These and other rules must a Bråhmen, • who retires to the woods, diligently practife ; • and. and, for the purpose of uniting his foul with the Divine Spirit, let him study the various Upanishads of scripture, or chapters on the effence and attributes of God,

30. Which have been fludied with reverence by anchorites verfed in theology, and by houfekeepers, who dwelt afterwards in forefis, for the fake of increasing their fublime knowledge and

- " devotion, and for the purification of their bodies. 31. " Or, if he has any incurable difeafe, let him
- · advance in a straight path, towards the invinci-
- · ble north eastern point, feeding on water and air,
- till his mortal frame totally decay, and his foul
- become united with the Supreme.
  32. A Bráhmen, having fhuffled off his body
- · by any of those modes, which great fages prac-
- tifed, and becoming void of forrow and fear,
- rifes to exaltation in the divine effence.
  33. HAVING thus performed religious acts in a foreft during the third portion of his life, let him become a Sannyáft for the fourth portion of it, abandoning all fenfual affections, and wholly
- reposing in the Supreme Spirit :

34. The man who has paffed from order to order, has made oblations to fire on his respective changes of flate, and has kept his members in fubjection, but, tired with so long a course of giving alms and making offerings, thus reposes himself entirely on GoD, shall be raised, after death, to glory. 35. When he has paid his three debts to the fages, the manes, and the gods, let him apply his mind to final beatitude; but low (hall He fall who prefumes to feek beatitude without having difcharged those debts;

L 3

36. After

36. After he has read the Védas in the form prefcribed by law, has legally begotten a fon, and has performed facrifices to the beft of his power, he bas paid bis three debts, and may then apply his heart to eternal blifs; 37. But if a Brábmen have not read the Véda, if he have not begotten a fon, and if he have not

- · performed facrifices, yet shall aim at final bea-
- · titude, he shall sink to a place of degradation.
- 38. <sup>6</sup> Having performed the facrifice of PRA <sup>6</sup> JA'PETI, accompanied with a gift of all his <sup>6</sup> wealth, and having reposited in his mind the facri-
- ficial fires, a Brábmen may proceed from his
- " house, that is, from the fecond order, or he may pro- " ceed even from the first, to the condition of a
- · Sannyafi.

39. 'Higher worlds are illuminated with the glory of that man, who paffes from his house

- ' into the fourth order, giving exemption from
- fear to all animated beings, and pronouncing
- the mystick words of the Veda :

40. To the Brahmen, by whom not even the fmalleft dread has been occafioned by fentient

- creatures, there can be no dread from any quar-
- ter whatever, when he obtains a release from
- his mortal body.

Ser.

41. Departing from his house, taking with him

- · pure implements, bis water-pot and flaff, keeping
- filence, unallured by defire of the objects near
- · him, let him enter into the fourth order.
- 42. ' Alone let him conftantly dwell, for the
- Iake of his own felicity; obferving the happines
- of a folitary man, who neither forfakes nor is
- · forfaken, let him live without a companion.
  - 43. 'Let him have no culinary fire, no domi--7 'cil;

cil; let him, when very hungry, go to the town for food; let him patiently bear difeafe; let his mind be firm; let him ftudy to know God, and fix his attention on God alone.
44. An earthen water-pot, the roots of large trees, coarfe vefture, total folitude, equanimity toward all creatures, thefe are the characteriflicks of a Bráhmen fet free.
45. Let him not wifh for death; let him not wifh for life; let him expect his appointed time,

• as a hired fervant expects his wages. 46. • Let him advance his foot purified by looking down, left he touch any thing impure; let him drink water purified by ftraining with a cloth, left be burt fome infect; let him, if be chufe to fpeak, utter words purified by truth; let him by all means keep his heart purified.

47. Let him bare a reproachful fpeech with patience; let him fpeak reproachfully to no man; let him not, on account of this frail and feverifb body, engage in hoftility with any one living.

48. With an angry man, let him not in his turn be angry; abufed, let him fpeak mildly; nor let him utter a word relating to vain illufory things and confined within feven gates, the five organs of fense, the heart and the intellect; or this world, with three above and three below it.

49. 'Delighted with meditating on the Supreme Spirit, fitting fixed in fuch meditation, without needing any thing earthly, without one fenfual defire, without any companion but his own foul, let him live in this world teeking the blifs of the next.

50. 'Neither by explaining omens and prodi-L 4 gies, " gies, nor by skill in astrology and palmistry, nor

- · by cafuiftry and expositions of holy texts, let
- ' him at any time gain his daily support.
- 51. 'Let him not go near a houfe frequented 'by hermits, or priefts, or birds, or dogs, or other 'beggars.
- 52. 'His hair, nails, and beard being clipped, bearing with him a difh, a ftaff, and a water-pot, his whole mind being fixed on GoD, let him wander about continually, without giving pain to animal or vegetable beings.
- 53. 'His diffues must have no fracture, nor 'must they be made of bright metals : the purification ordained for them must be with water alone, like that of the vessels for a facrifice.
- 54. 'A gourd, a wooden bowl, an earthen difh, 'or a bafket made of reeds, has MENU, fon of 'the Self-exifting, declared fit veffels to receive 'the food of Brabmens devoted to God.
- 55. 'Only once a day let him demand food; f let him not habituate him to eat much at a time; for an anchorite, habituated to eat much, bef comes inclined to fenfual gratifications.
- 56. 'At the time when the finoke of kitchen fires has ceafed, when the peftle lies motionlefs, when the burning charcoal is exinguished, when people have eaten, and when diffues are removed, that is, late in the day, let the Sannyáfi always beg food.
- 57. For miffing it, let him not be forrowful; • nor for gaining it, let him be glad; let him care • only for a fufficiency to fupport life, but let him • ...not be anxious about his utenfils.
  - 58. 'Let him conflantly difdain to receive food after humble reverence; fince, by receiving

- " ing it in confequence of an humble falutation, a
- · Sannyafi, though free, becomes a captive. 59. ' By eating little and by fitting in folitary
- places, let him reftrain those organs which are
- " naturally hurried away by fenfual defires. 60. ' By the coercion of his members, by the - " absence of hate and affection, and by giving no
- · pain to fentient creatures, he becomes fit for · immortality.
- 61. ' Let him reflect on the transmigrations
- · of men cauled by their finful deeds, on their
- downfal into a region of darkness, and their • torments in the manfion of YAMA :
- 62. ' On their feparation from those whom they love, and their union with those whom " they hate, on their ftrength overpowered by old age, and their bodies racked with difeafe;
- 63. ' On their agonizing departure from this ' corporeal frame, their formation again in the ' womb, and the glidings of this vital fpirit ' through ten thousand millions of uterine paf-· fages ;

64. ' On the milery attached to embodied fpi-· rits from a violation of their duties, and the unperishable blifs attached to them from their abundant performance of all duties, religious ٤. 4 and civil.

65. ' Let him reflect alfo, with exclusive appli-' cation of mind, on the fubtil indivisable effence · of the Supreme Spirit, and its complete existence ' in all beings, whether extremely high or exf tremely low.

66. Equal-minded towards all creatures, in " what order foever he may have been placed, let him fully difcharge his duty though he bear not the vifible

· visible marks of his order : the visible mark,

- or mere name of his order, is by no means an ef-• fective difcharge of his duty ;
- 67. ' As, although the fruit of the tree cataca
- · purify water, yet a man cannot purify water by
- " merely pronouncing the name of that fruit: be
- " must throw it, when pounded, into the jar.
- 68. ' For the fake of preferving minute animals
- by night and by day, let him walk, though with
- pain to his own body, perpetually looking on • the ground.
- 69. 'Let a Sannyáfi, by way of expiation for 'the death of those creatures, which he may have 'deftroyed unknowingly by day or by night, 'make fix fuppreffions of his breath, having duly
- bathed :

70. • Even three fupprefions of breath, made • according to the divine rule, accompanied with • the triverbal phrafe (bhurbhuvah fwah) and the • trileteral fyllable (óm) may be confidered as the • higheft devotion of a Brábmen;

71. ' For as the drofs and impurities of metal-' lick ores are confumed by fire, thus are the finful

- ' acts of the human organ confumed by fuppref-
- fions of the breath, while the mystick words, and the
- " measures of the gayatri are revolved in the mind.

72. 'Let him thus, by fuch fuppreffions of 'breath, burn away his offences; by reflecting 'intenfely on the fteps of afcent to beatitude, let 'bim defiroy fin; by coercing his members, let 'him reftrain all fenfual attachments; by meditat-'ing on the intimate union of his own foul and the divine effence, let him extinguifh all qualities 'repugnant to the nature of Gop.

73. Let him observe, with extreme applica-

• tion of mind, the progrefs of this internal fpirit • through various bodies, high and low; a progrefs

• hard to be difcerned by men with unimproved intellects.

74. 'He, who fully understands the perpetual omnipresence of God, can be led no more captive by criminal acts; but he, who posses not that fublime knowledge, shall wander again through the world.

75. By injuring nothing animated, by fubduing all fenfual appetites, by devout rites ordained in the Véda, and by rigorous mortifications, men obtain, even in this life, the fate of beatitude.

76. 'A manfion with bones for its rafters and beams; with nerves and tendons, for cords; with mufcles and blood, for mortar; with fkin, for its outward covering; filled with no fweet perfume, but loaded with feces and urine;

77. 'A manfion infefted by age and by forrow, the feat of malady, harraffed with pains, haunted with the quality of darknefs, and incapable of ftanding long; fuch a manfion of the vital foul let its occupier always cheerfully quit:

78. 'As a tree leaves the bank of a river, 'when it falls in, or as a bird leaves the branch of 'a tree at his pleasure, thus he, who leaves his 'body by neceffity or by legal choice, is delivered from the ravening fhark, or crocodile of the 'world.

79. 'Letting his good acts defcend (by the 'law of the Véda,) to those who love him, 'and his evil deeds, to those who hate him, 'he may attain, through devout meditation, the 'eternal spirit.

80. When,

80. When, having well confidered the nature and confequence of fin, he becomes averfe from all fenfual delights, he then attains blifs in this world; blifs which fhall endure after death.

81. 'Thus having gradually abandoned all earthly attachments, and indifferent to all pairs

· of oppofite things, as honour and dishonour, and the like, he remains abforbed in the divine effence.

82. All that has now been declared, is obtained by pious meditation; but no man who is

- ignorant of the Supreme Spirit, can gather the
- fruit of mere ceremonial acts.
  83. Let him conftantly fludy that part of the

• Véda, which relates to facrifice; that which • treats of fubordinate deities; that which reveals

- the nature of the fupreme God; and whatever is • declared in the Upanifhads.
- 84. 'This holy fcripture is a fure refuge, even for thofe who understand not its meaning, and of courfe, for thofe who understand it; this Véda is a fure refource for thofe who feek blifs above; this is a fure refource for those who feek blifs
- eternal.

85. 'That Bråbmen, who becomes a Sannyåfi by this difcipline, announced in due order, fhakes off fin here below, and reaches the most high.

86. • THIS general law has been revealed to • you for anchorites with fubdued minds : now • learn the particular difcipline of those who be-• come recluses according to the Véda, that is, of • anchorites in the first of the four degrees.

87. 'The fludent, the married man, the her-'mit, and the anchorite, are the offspring, though 'in four orders, of married men keeping houle; 88. 'And

88. • And all, or even any of those orders; • affumed in their turn, according to the facred • ordinances, lead the Bråhmen, who acts by the • preceding rules, to the highest mansion  $\div$

89. But of all those, the house-keeper observing the regulations of the Sruti and Smriti, may be called the chief; fince he supports the three other orders.

90. As all rivers, female and male, run to

• their determined place in the fea, thus men of all

• other orders, repair to their fixed place in the • manfion of the house-keeper.

91. ' By Bråbmens, placed in these four orders, a tenfold system of duties must ever be sedulously practifed :

92. 'Content, returning good for evil, refiftance to fenfual appetites, abilinence from illicit gain, purification, coercion of the organs, knowledge of fcripture, knowledge of the Supreme Spirit, veracity, and freedom from wrath, form their tenfold fystem of duties. 93. 'Such Bráhmens, as attentively read the ten precepts of duty, and after reading, carefully practife them, attain the most exalted condition.

94. 'A Bråhmen having practifed with organs 'under command, this tenfold fyftem of duty, 'having heard the Upanifhads explained, as the 'law directs, and who has difcharged his three 'debts, may become an anchorite, in the houfe of 'bis fon, according to the Véda; 95. 'And, having abandoned all ceremonial 'acts, having explated all his offences, having obtained a command over his organs, and having

' perfectly understood the scripture, he may live

at

• at his ease, while the household affairs are • conducted by his son.

96. When he thus has relinquifhed all forms, is intent on his own occupation, and free from every other defire, when, by devoting himfelf to God, he has effaced fin, he then attains the fupreme path of glory.

97. 'THIS fourfold regulation for the facerdotal clafs, has thus been made known to you; a just regulation, producing endless fruit after death: next, learn the duty of kings, or the military clafs.'

CHAPTER THE SEVENTH.

On Government, and Publick Law; or on the Military Class.

1. <sup>6</sup> I WILL fully declare the duty of kings; <sup>6</sup> and flow how a ruler of men fhould conduct <sup>6</sup> himfelf, in what manner he was framed, and <sup>6</sup> how his ultimate reward may be attained by him.

2. 'By a man of the military clafs, who has received in due form the investiture which the 'Véda prescribes, great care must be used to ' maintain this whole assess

3. Since, if the world had no king, it would quake on all fides through fear, the ruler of this universe, therefore, created a king, for the maintenance of this system, both religious and civil,

4. • Forming him of eternal particles drawn • from the fubitance of INDRA, PAVANA, YAMA, • SU'RYA, of AGNI and VARUNA, of CHANDRA • and CUVE'RA:

5. And fince a king was composed of particles drawn from those chief guardian deities, he consequently surpasses all mortals in glory.

6. Like the fun, he burns eyes and hearts; nor can any human creature on earth even gaze on him.

7. • He

7. ' He is fire and air; he, both fun and moon; he, the god of criminal juffice; he. the genius of wealth; he, the regent of waters; · he, the lord of the firmament. 8. "A king, even though a child, must not • be treated lightly, from an idea that he is a "mere mortal: no; he is a powerful divinity. " who appears in a human fhape. q. ' Fire burns only one perfon, who carelefsly goes too near it; but the fire of a king in wrath · burns a whole family, with all their cattle and · goods. 10. ' Fully confidering the bufinefs before · him, his own force, and the place, and the time, · he affumes in fucceffion all forts of forms, for • the fake of advancing juffice. 11. ' He, sure, must be the perfect effence of majefty, by whole favour Abundance rifes on · her lotos, in whofe valour dwells conqueft; in " whofe anger, death. 12. ' He, who shews hatred of the king, " through delufion of mind, will certainly perifh; for fpeedily will the king apply his heart to that ' man's perdition. 13. ' LET the king prepare a just compensa-' tion for the good, and a just punishment for the · bad: the rule of firict juffice let him never tranfgrefs. 14. ' For his use BRAHMA' formed, in the be-' ginning of time, the genius of punifhment, with a body of pure light, his own fon, even ab-" ftract criminal juffice, the protector of all created · things : 15. ' Through fear of that genius, all fentient beings, whether fixed or locomotive, are fitted for natural enjoyments and fwerve not from duty.

16. When

Dis needby Goo

'When the king, therefore, has fully confidered place and time, and his own ftrength, and the divine ordinance, let him juftly inflict punifhment on all those who act unjuftly:

17. 'Punishment is an active ruler; he is the 'true manager of publick affairs; he is the dif-'penser of laws; and wise men call him the 'fponsor of all the sour orders for the discharge 'of their several duties.

18. 'Punifhment governs all mankind, punifh'ment alone preferves them; punifhment wakes,
'while their guards are afleep; the wife confider
'punifhment as the perfection of juffice.

19. When rightly and confiderately inflicted, it makes all the people happy; but, inflicted without full confideration, it wholly deftroys them all.

20. ' If the king were not, without indolence, ' to punifh the guilty, the fironger would roaft ' the weaker, like fifh, on a fpit; (or according to ' one reading, the fironger would opprefs the ' weaker, like fifh in their element;)

21. ' The crow would peck the confectated ' offering of rice; the dog would lick the clari-' fied butter; ownership would remain with none; ' the lowest would overset the highest.

22. 'The whole race of men is kept in order 'by punifhment; for a guiltlefs man is hard to 'be found; through fear of punifhment, indeed, 'this univerfe is enabled to enjoy its bleffings;

23. 'Deities and demons, heavenly fongiters 'and cruel giants, birds and ferpents, are made 'capable, by just correction, of their feveral en-'joyments.

24. All classes would become corrupt; all M 'barriers UZ. UN GUYER

<sup>e</sup> barriers, would be deftroyed, there would be <sup>e</sup> total confusion among men, if punishment either

• were not inflicted, or were inflicted unduly :

25. But where punifhment, with a black hue and a red eye, advances to deftroy fin, there, if the judge difcern well, the people are undifturbed.

26. Holy fages confider as a fit difpenfer of . criminal juffice, that king, who invariably fpeaks truth, who duly confiders all cafes, who underftands the facred books, who knows the diffinctions of virtue, pleafure, and riches;

27. 'Such a king, if he juftly inflict legal punifhments, greatly increafes those three means of happinefs; but punifhment itfelf fhall deftroy a king, who is crafty, voluptuous, and wrathful:
28. 'Criminal juffice, the bright effence of majefty, and hard to be fupported by men with unimproved minds, eradicates, a king, who fwerves from his duty, together with all his race:

29. 'Punifhment shall overtake his castles, 'his territories, his peopled land with all fixed and moveable things that exist on it : even the gods and the fages, who lose their oblations, will be afflicted and ascend to the sky.

30. 'Juft punifhment cannot be inflicted by an ignorant and covetous king, who has no wife and virtuous affiftant, whole underftanding has not been improved, and whole heart is addicted to fenfuality:

31. By a king wholly pure, faithful to his promife, obfervant of the foriptures, with good fiftants and found understanding may punifhment be justly inflicted.

32. ' Let

32. 'Let him in his own domains act with 'justice, chastisfe foreign foes with rigour, behave 'without duplicity to his affectionate friends, and 'with lenity to Bráhmens.

33. Of a king thus difpofed, even though the fublish by gleaning, or, be bis treasure ever for finall, the fame is far fpread in the world, like a drop of oil in water;

34. But of a king with a contrary difpofition, with paffions unfubdued, be bis riches ever fo great, the fame is contracted in the world, like clarified butter in the fame element.

35. A king was created as the protector of all those classes and orders, who from the first to the last, discharge their several duties;

36. 'And all that must be done by him, for 'the protection of his people, with the affiltance of good ministers, I will declare to you, as the law directs, in due order.

37. 'LET the king, having rifen at early dawn, ' respectfully attend to Brabmens, learned in the ' three Védas, and in the fcience of ethicks; and ' by their decision let him abide.

38. Constantly must he show respect to Brábmens, who have grown old, both in years and in piety, who know the scriptures, who in body and mind are pure; for he, who honours the aged, will perpetually be honoured even by cruel demons:

39. 'From them, though he may have ac-'quired modeft behaviour by his own good fenfe 'and by fludy, let him continually learn habits 'of modefty and composure; fince a king, whole 'demeanour is humble and composed, never 'perifhes.

40. ' While, '

40. While, through want of fuch humble virtue, many kings have perifhed with all their poffeffions, and, through virtue united with modefty, even hermits have obtained kingdoms. 41. Through want of that virtuous humility VE'NA was utterly ruined, and fo was the great king NAHUSHA, and SUDA'SA, and YAVANA, (or by a different reading, and SUDA'MAN, the fon of PIYAVANA) and SUMUC'HA, and NIMI; 42. But by virtues with humble behaviour, PRIT'HU and MENU acquired fovereignty; CUVE'RA, wealth inexhauftible; and VISWA'-

• MITRA, fon of GA'DHI, the rank of a prieft, • though born in the military class.

43. 'From those who know the three Védas, 'let him learn the triple doctrine comprised in them, together with the primeval science of criminal justice and sound policy, the systems of logick and metaphysicks, and sublime theo-'logical truth? from the people he must learn the theory of agriculture, commerce, and other practical arts.

44. 'Day and night must he strenuously exert himfelf to gain complete victory over his own organs; fince that king alone, whose organs are completely subdued, can keep his people firm to their duty.

45. 'With extreme care let him fhun eighteen' 'vices, ten proceeding from love of pleafure,' eight fpringing from wrath,' and all ending in

* milery;

46. Since a king, addicted to vices arifing' from love of pleafure, mult lofe both his wealth and his virtue, and, addicted to vices arifing ' from anger, he may lose even his life from the'

* publick resentment.

and the second second

47. ' Hunt-

' furing rivals, excels with women, intoxication, ' finging, inftrumental mufick, dancing, and ufe-· lefs travel, are the ten-fold fet of vices produced · by love of pleafure : 18. ' Tale bearing, violence, infidious wound-' ing, envy, detraction, unjust feizure of property, ' reviling, and open affault, are, in like manner, ' the eight-fold fet of vices to which anger gives · birth. 49. ' A felfish inclination, which all wife men ' know to be the root of those two fets, let him ' fupprefs with diligence: both fets of vices are · constantly produced by it. 50. ' Drinking, dice, women, and hunting, ' let him confider as the four most pernicious ' in the set, which love of pleasure occasions: 51. ' Battery, defamation, and injury to pro' perty, let him always confider as the three most ' heinous in the fet, which arifes from wrath;

52. ' And in this feven-fold affemblage of vices, ' too frequently prevailing in all kingdoms, let ' an enlightened prince confider the first, and fo ' forth in order, as the most abominable in each fer:

53. ' On a comparison between death and vice, the learned pronounce vice the more ' dreadful; fince, after death, a vicious man finks ' to regions lower and lower, while a man, free ' from vice, reaches heaven.

54. ' THE king must appoint feven or eight ' ministers, who must be sworn by touching a ' facred image and the like; men, whofe anceftors ' were fervants of kings; who are verfed in the holy books; who are perfonally brave; who M 3 are are skilled in the use of weapons; and whose lineage is noble.

55. 'Even an act easy in itself is hard some-'times to be performed by a single man, espe-'cially if he has no assistant near: how much 'harder muss it be to perform alone the business of a * kingdom with great revenues!

56. 'Let him perpetually confult with those 'ministers on peace and war, on his forces, on 'his revenues, on the protection of his people, 'and on the means of bestowing aptly the wealth 'which he has acquired:

57. 'Having ascertained the feveral opinions 'of his counfellors, firft apart and then collectively, 'let him do what is most beneficial for him in 'publick affairs.

- · publick affairs,
- 58. 'To one learned Brábmen, diftinguished among them all, let the king impart his momentous counsel, relating to fix principal articles.

59. 'To him, with full confidence, let him 'intrust all transfactions; and with him, having 'taken his final resolution, let him begin all his 'measures.

60. 'He must likewise appoint other officers; 'men of integrity, well informed, fteady, ha-'biruated to gain wealth, by honourable means, ' and tri d by experience.

61. As many officers as the due performance of his business requires, not flothful men, but active, able, and well instructed, so many, and no more, let him appoint.

62. Among those let him employ the brave, the skilful, the well born, and the honess, in his mines of gold or gems, and in other similar works for amassing wealth; but the pussilanimous, in the recesses of his palace.

63. ' Let him likewise appoint an ambassador, · verfed in all the Saftras, who underftands hints, external figns and actions, whole hand and heart ' are pure, whole abilities are great, and whole · birth was illustrious : 64. ' That royal ambassador is applauded most, · who is generally beloved, pure within and with-· out, dextrous in business, and endued with an excellent memory; who knows countries and times, is handfome, intrepid and eloquent. 65. ' The forces of the realm must be im-" mediately regulated by the commander in chief; the actual infliction of punishment, by the officers of criminal justice; the treasury and the ' country, by the king himfelf; peace and war, · by the ambaffador; 66. ' For it is the ambaffador alone who unites, " who alone disjoints the united ; that is, he tranf-' acts the bufinefs, by which kingdoms are at · variance or in amity. 67. ' In the transaction of affairs let the ambaffador comprehend the visible figns and hints, and ' discover the acts, of the foreign king, by the ' figns, hints, and acts of his confidential fervants, ' and the measures, which that king wilhes to ' take by the character and conduct of his ministers. 68. ' Thus, having learned completely from ' bis ambaffador all the defigns of the foreign ' prince, let the king fo apply his vigilant care, that he bring no evil on himfelf. 69. ' LET him fix his abode in a diftrict contain-'ing open champaigns; abounding with grain; ' inhabited chiefly by the virtuous; not infected ' with maladies ; beautiful to the fight ; furround-

ed by fubmillive mountaineers, foresters, or other

' neigh-

neighbours; a country in which the fubjects may live at eafe.

70. 'There let him refide in a capital, having, 'by way of a fortrefs, a defert rather more than 'twenty miles round it, or a fortrefs of earth, a 'fortrefs of water, or of trees, a fortrefs of armed 'men, or a fortrefs of mountains.

71. With all poffible care let him fecure a fortrefs of mountains; for, among those just mentioned, a fortrefs of mountains has many transcendent properties.

72. 'In the three first of them live wild beafts,
'vermin, and aquatick animals; in the three last,
'apes, men, and gods, in order as they are named:
73. 'As enemies hurt them not in the shelter of their several abodes, thus foes hurt not a 'king who has taken refuge in his durga, or place of difficult access.

74. 'One bowman, placed on a wall, is a 'match in war for a hundred enemies; and a 'hundred, for ten thousand; therefore is a fort 'recommended.

75. 'Let that fort be fupplied with weapons, 'with money, with grain, with beafts, with Bráb-'mens, with artificers, with engines, with grafs, 'and with water.'

76. 'In the centre of it let him raife his own 'palace, well finished in all its parts, completely ! defended, habitable in every feason, brilliant with ! white flacco, furrounded with water and trees :

77. Having prepared it for his manfion, let him chufe a confort of the fame clafs with himfelf, endued with all the bodily marks of excellence, born of an exalted race, captivating his heart, adorned with beauty and the beft qualities.
78. HE muft appoint alfo a domeftick prieft,
and

" and retain a performer of facrifices, who may " folemnize the religious rites of his family, and

' those performed with three facred fires.

79. 'Let the king make facrifices, accom-'panied with gifts of many different kinds; and 'for the full difcharge of his duty, let him give

" the Brábmens both legal enjoyments and mo-

80. ' His annual revenue he may receive from ' his whole dominion through his collectors; but let him in this world obferve the divine ordinances; let him act as a father to his people.

81. 'Here and there he must appoint many forts of intelligent supervisors, who may inspect all the acts of the officers engaged in his business.

82. ' To Bråhmens returned from the manfions ' of their preceptors, let him fhow due refpect;

- · for that is called a precious unperishable gem,
- deposited by kings with the facerdotal class:
- 83. ' It is a gem, which neither thieves or foes take away; which never perifhes: kings muft,
- therefore, deposit with Brábmens that indeftruc-
- tible jewel of respectful presents.

84. 'An oblation in the mouth, or band, of a Bråhmen, is far better than offerings to holy fire:
it never drops: it never dries: it is never confumed.

$5. 'A gift to one not a Bråbmen produces fruit of a middle ftandard; to one who calls
'himfelf a Bråbmen, double; to a well read
'Bråbmen though feld to one who calls

Bråbmen, a hundred thoufand fold; to one who has read all the Védas, infinite.

86. ' Of a gift made with faith in the Sáfira, to a perfon highly deferving it, the giver fhall ' indubitably ' indubitably gain the fruit after death, be the ' prefent fmall or great.

87. ' A KING, while he protects his people, being defied by an enemy of equal, greater, or lefs torce, must by no means turn his face from battle, but must remember the duty of his military clafs:

88. ' Never to recede from combat, to protect the people, and to honour the priefts, is the higheft duty of kings and enfures their felicity.

 89 'Thofe rulers of the earth, who, defirous of defeating each other, exert their utmost ftrength in battle, without ever averting their faces, ascend after death directly to heaven.

90. CLET no man, engaged in combat, fmite his foe with fharp weapons concealed in wood.

- ' nor with arrows mifchievoully barbed, nor with
- <sup>6</sup> poifoned arrows, nor with darts blazing with fire; 91. <sup>6</sup> Nor let him in a car or on borfeback ftrike
- ' his enemy alighted on the ground; nor an ef-
- feminate man; nor one who fues for life with
- ' closed palms; nor one whole hair is loose and
- ' obstructs bis sight; nor one, who fits down fatigued; nor one, who fays, "I am thy captive;" 92. Nor one, who fleeps; nor one, who has loft his coat of mail; nor one, who is naked;

' nor one, who is difarmed; nor one, who is a fpectator, but not a combatant; nor one, who ' is fighting with another man :

93. 'Calling to mind the duty of honourable 'men, let him never flay one, who has broken 'his weapon; nor one, who is afflicted with pri-'vate forrow; nor one, who has been grievoully 'wounded; nor one, who is terrified; nor one, 'who turns his back.

94. ' The

94. ' The foldier, indeed, who fearing and ' turning his back, happens to be flain by his · foes in an engagement, shall take upon himfelf all the fin of his commander, whatever it be; 95. ' And the commander shall take to himfelf · the fruit of all the good conduct, which the fol-" dier, who turns his back and is killed, had pre-· vioufly ftored up for a future life. 96. ' CARS, horfes, elephants, umbrellas, habi-' liments, except the jewels which may adorn them, grain, cattle, women, all forts of liquids and ' metals, except gold and filver, are the lawful · prizes of the man who takes them in war; 97. ' But of those prizes, the captors must ' lay the most valuable before the king; fuch is ' the rule in the Véda, concerning them; and the ' king fhould diffribute among the whole army ' what has not been feparately taken. o8. ' Thus has been declared the blamelefs ' primeval law for military men; from this law a ' king must never depart, when he attacks his foes · in battle. 99. ' What he has not gained from bis foe, let ' him ftrive to gain; what he has acquired, let ' him preferve with care; what he preferves, let ' him augment; and what he has augmented, let ' him beftow on the deferving. 100. ' This is the four-fold rule, which he must ' confider as the fure means of attaining the great ' object of man, bappines; and let him practile ' it fully without intermiffion, without indolence : 101. ' what he has not gained, let him ftrive ' to gain by military ftrength; what he has ac-" quired, let him preferve by careful infpection ; what he has preferved, let him augment by · legal

- ' legal modes of increase; and what he has aug-
- ' mented, let him dispense with just liberality.
- 102. ' Let his troops be constantly exercised ; ' his prowefs conftantly difplayed; what he
- ' ought to fecure, conftantly fecured; and the
- ' weaknefs of his foe, conftantly investigated.
- 103. ' By a king, whole forces are always ready for action, the whole world may be kept in awe;
- · let him then, by a force always ready, make all
- · creatures living his own. 104. ' Let him act on all occasions without
- guile, and never with infincerity; but, keeping
- ' himfelf ever on his guard, let him difcover the
- fraud intended by his foe.

105. ' Let not his enemy difcern his vulne-' rable part, but the volunerable part of his enemy · let him well discern: like a tortoife, let him ' draw in his members under the shell of conceal-' ment, and diligently let him repair any breach " that may be made in it. 106. ' Like a heron, let him muse on gaining

' advantages ; like a lion, let him put forth his ftrength ; like a wolf, let him creep towards his ' prey; like a hare, let him double to fecure his · retreat.

107. When he thus has prepared himfelf for · conqueft, let him reduce all oppofers to fubmif-

- fion by negotiation and three other expedients,
- ' namely, presents, division, and force of arms :

108. ' If they cannot be reftrained by the three ' first methods, then let him firmly, but gradu-' ally, bring them to fubjection by military force.

109. ' Among those four modes of obtains ing fuccefs, the wife prefer negotiation and war for the exaltation of kingdoms.

110. ' As

· preferves his corn, thus let a king deftroy his ' opponents and fecure his people.

111. ' That king, who, through weaknefs of ' intellect, rashly oppresses his people, will, together with his family, be deprived both of · kingdom and life :

112. ' As by the lofs of bodily fuftenance, the '-lives of animated beings are deftroyed, thus, ' by the diftress of kingdoms, are deftroyed even ' the lives of kings.

113. ' For the fake of protecting his domini-' ons, let the king perpetually observe the follow-' ing rules; for, by protecting his dominions, he ' will increase his own happines.

114. Let him place, as the protectors of his realm, a company of guards, commanded by an "approved officer, over two, three, five, or a ' hundred diffricts, according to their extent.

"115. ' Let him appoint a lord of one town with ' its diffrict, a lord of ten towns, a lord of twenty,

"a lord of a hundred, and a lord of a thoufand.

116. ' Let the lord of one town certify of his " own accord to the lord of ten towns any robberies, ", tumults, for other evils, which arife in his dif-" trict, and which he cannot suppress ; and the lord ' of ten, to the lord of twenty :

TT7. ' Then let the lord of twenty towns no-. tify them to the lord of a hundred; and let the ", lord of a hundred transmit the information him-" felf to the lord of a thousand townships.

118. ' Such food, drink, wood, and other articles, as by law fhould be given each day to the ' king by the inhabitants of the townfhip, let the'

' lord of one town receive as his perquifite : .

110. Let the lord of ten towns enjoy the produce of two plough-lands, or as much ground as can be tilled with two ploughs, each drawn by fix bulls; the lord of twenty, that of five ploughtands; the lord of a hundred, that of a village or fmall town; the lord of a thousand, that of a large town.

120. 'The affairs of those townships, either 'jointly or separately transacted, let another mi-'nister of the king inspect; who should be well' affected, and by no means remis.

121. In every large town or city, let him appoint one superintendent of all affairs, elevated in rank, formidable in power, diffinguished as a planet among flars:

122. 'Let that governor from time to time ' furvey all the reft in perfon, and by means of his' emiffaries, let him perfectly know their conduct

154. ' On the whole eightfold bufinefs of ' kings, relating to the revenue, to their expences, to the good or bad conduct of their ministers, to ' legislation in dubious cases, to civil and criminal ' justice, and to explations for crimes, let him reflect with the greatest attention; on his five forts of ' spies, or active and artful youths, degraded ancho-• rets, distressed busbandmen, decayed merchants, and fiftitious penitents, whom he must pay and see pri-" vately; on the good will or enmity of his neigh-' bours, and on the flate of the circumjacent < countries.

155. ' On the conduct of that foreign prince, " who has moderate ftrength equal to one ordinary ' foe, but no match for two; on the defigns of ' him, who is willing and able to be a conqueror; ' on the condition of him, who is pacifick, but a " match even for the former unallied; and on that of his natural enemy let him feduloufly me-· ditate : 156. the branches, and are as many degrees of allies and opponents varioufly diftinguifhed, are declared to be twelve chief objects of the royal confideration;

158. Let the king confider as hoftile to him, the power immediately beyond him, and the favourer of that power; as amicable, the power next beyond his natural foe; and as neutral, the powers beyond that circle:

159. All those powers let him render fubservient to his interests by mild measures and the other three expedients before mentioned, either feparate or united, but principally by valour and policy in arms and negotiation. 160. Let him constantly deliberate on the fix meafures of a military prince, namely, waging war, and making peace or alliance, marching to battle, and fitting encamped, diffributing his forces, and feeking the protection of a more powerful monarch :

180. 'Let him fo arrange all his affairs, that 'no ally, neutral prince, or enemy, may obtain 'any advantage over him; this, in a few words, 'is the fum of political wildom.

181. WHEN the king begins his march against the domains of his foe, let him gradually advance, in the following manner, against the hostile metropolis.

182. 'Let him fet out on his expedition in the fine month Márgasír/ha, or about the month of Phálguna and Chaitra, according to the number of his forces, that he may find autumnal or vernal crops in the country invaded by bim :

183. Even in other feasons, when he has a f clear prospect of victory, and when any disafter f has befallen his foe, let him advance with the greater part of his army.

184. 'Having made a due arrangement of affairs in his own dominions, and a disposition fit for his enterprize, having provided all things neceffary for his continuance in the foreign realms, and having seen all his spies dispatched with propriety,

185. Having fecured the three forts of ways, over water, on plains, and through forests, and placed his fix-fold army, elephants, cavalry, cars, infantry, officers, and attendants, in complete military form, let him proceed by fit journeys toward the metropolis of his enemy:

CHAPTER THE EIGHTH.

On Judicature; and on Law, Private and Criminal.

1. A KING, defirous of inspecting judicial pro-· ceedings must enter his court of justice, com-' pofed and fedate in his demeanour, together " with Brabmens and counfellors, who know how · to give him advice : 2. ' There, either fitting or standing, holding ' forth his right arm, without oftentation in his drefs and ornaments, let him examine the affairs ' of litigant parties. 3. ' Each day let him decide causes one after another, under the eighteen principal titles of ' law, by arguments and rules drawn from local · ulages, and from written codes : 4. ' Of those titles, the first is debt, on loans · for confumption; the fecond, deposits, and loans for use; the third, fale without ownership; the ' fourth, concerns among partners ; the fifth, fub-" traction of what has been given ; 5. ' Sixteen of those mashacas are a filver ' dbarana, or purana; but a carsha, or eighty " ratticas of copper, is called a pana or carshapana. 137. ' Ten dharanas of filver are known by the ' name of a fatamana; and the weight of four · Juvernas has also the appellation of a nifbca. 138. ' Now two hundred and fifty panas are declared to be the first or lowest amercement; five hundred of them are confidered as the " mean; and a thoufand as the higheft. 139. ' A DEBT being admitted by the defendant, he must pay five in the hundred, as a fine to the king; but, if it be denied and proved, " twice as much : this law was enacted by MENU. 140. ' A LENDER of money may take, in ad-' dition to his capital, the interest allowed by · VASISHT'HA, that is, an eightieth part of a ' hundred, or one and a quarter by the month, if · be have a pledge; 141. ' Or, if he have no pledge, he may take " two in the hundred by the month, remembering " the duty of good men : for, by thus taking ' two in the hundred, he becomes not a finner for gain.

142. He may thus take, in proportion to the rifk, and in the direct order of the classes, two in the hundred from a prieft, three from a foldier, four four from a merchant; and five from a mechanick

Stipulated intereft beyond the legal rate, and different from the preceding rule, is invalid; and the wife call it an ufurous way of lending : ' the lender is entitled, at most, to five in the ' hundred. 153. ' Let no lender for a month, or for two or three months at a certain interest, receive such ' intereft beyond the year; nor any intereft, which is unapproved; nor intereft upon intereft · by previous agreement; nor monthly intereft ex-' ceeding in time the amount of the principal; ' nor interest exacted from a debtor, as the price • of the rifk, when there is no publick danger or dif-" tre/s; nor immoderate profits from a pledge to · be used by way of interest. 154. 'He, who cannot pay the debt at the fixed time, and wiftes to renew the contract, may renew it in writing, with the creditor's affent, if he pay all the interest then due;

55. But if by fome unavoidable accident, he cannot pay the whole interest, he may infert, as P principal principal in the renewed contract, fo much of the intereft accrued as he ought to pay.

156. 'A lender at intereft on the rifk of fafe carriage, who has agreed on the place and time, fhall not receive fuch intereft, if by accident the goods are not carried to the place, or within the time:

157. Whatever intereft or price of the rifk fhall be fettled between the parties, by men well acquainted with fea voyages or journeys by land, with times and with places, fuch intereft fhall have legal force.

158. 'The man who becomes furety for the appearance of a debtor in this world, and produces him not, shall pay the debt out of his own property;

159. 'But money due by a furety, or idly 'promifed to muficians and astreffes, or loft at 'play, or due for fpirituous liquors, or what re-'mains unpaid of a fine or toll, the fon of the furety 'or debtor fhall not in general be obliged to pay:

160. Such is the rule in cases of a furety for appearance or good bebaviour; but if a furety for payment fhould die, the judge may compel even his heirs to difcharge the debt.

161. On what account then is it, that after the death of a furety other than for payment, the creditor may in one caje demand: the debt of the heir, all the affairs of the deceafed being known and proved?

162. ' If the furety had received money from the debtor, and had enough to pay the debt, in this world and in the next;

172. But by taking his due, by administering 'justice, and by protecting the weak, the king augments his own force, and is exalted in the next world and in this.

173. 'Therefore, let the king, like YAMA, 'refigning what may be pleafing or unpleafing 'to himfelf, live by the ftrict rules of YAMA, his anger being reprefied, and his organs kept in fubjection.

174. 'That evil-minded king, who, through 'infatuation, decides causes with injustice, his 'enemies, through the disaffection of his people, 'quickly reduce' to a state of dependence;

173. 'But him, who fubduing both luft and 'wrath, examines caufes with juffice, his people 'naturally feek, as rivers the ocean.

176. 'THE debtor who complains before the king, that his creditor has recovered the debt by his own legal act, as before-mentioned, fhall be compelled by the king to pay a quarter of the fum as a fine, and the creditor fhall be left in possible of his own.

177. 'Even by perfonal labour shall the debtor pay what is adjudged, if he be of the fame class with the creditor, or of a lower; but a debtor of a higher class must pay it according to bis income, by little and little.

178. By this fystem of rules let the king decide, with equal justice, all disputes between men opposing each other, having ascertained the truth by evidence or the oaths of the parties. 179. A SENSIBLE man should make a deposit with

' with fome perfon of high birth, and of good ' morals, well acquainted with law, habitually veracious, having a large family, wealthy and venerable. 180. Whatever thing, and in whatever manner ' a person shall deposit in the hands of another; the fame thing, and in the fame manner, ought to be received back by the owner; as the de-' livery was, fo must be the receipt. 181. ' He, who reftores not to the depositor, on . his requeft, what has been depolited, may first ' be tried by the judge in the following manner, the · depositor himself being absent. 182. ' On failure of witneffes, let the judge ac-• tually deposit gold, or precious things, with the • defendant, by the artful contrivance of spies, who ' have paffed the age of child-hood, and whole · perfons are engaging : 183. ' Should the defendant reftore that depofit in the manner and fhape in which it was ' bailed by the fpies, there is nothing in his hands, ' for which others can justly accuse him ; 184. ' But if he reftore not the gold, or ' precious things, as he ought, to those emiffaries, · let him be apprehended and compelled to pay ' the value of both deposits; this is a fettled rule. 185. A deposit, whether fealed up or not, fhould never be redelivered, while the depositor ' is alive, to his heir apparent or prefumptive : ' both forts of deposits, indeed, are extinct, or can-" not be demanded by the heir, if the depositor die, in that cafe ; but not, unlefs he die, for should the " beir apparent keep them, the depositor bimself may " sue the bailee : 186. 5 But, if a depositary by his own free act fhall deliver a deposit to the heir of a deceased bailor, he must not be haraffed with claims of a fimilar kind, either by the king, or by that heir;

187. 'And, if fimilar claims be made, the king 'must decide the questions after friendly admoni-'tion, without having recourse to artifice; for the

· honeft difpolition of the man being proved, the

' judge must proceed with mildness.

183. Such is the mode of afcertaining the right in all these cases of a deposit : in the case of a deposit fealed up, the bailee shall incur no cen-

- fure on the redelivery, unlefs he have altored the
- feal or taken out fomething.

189 ' If a deposit be feized by thieves or deftrojed by vermine, or washed away by water, or confumed by fire, the bailee shall not be obliged

- to make it good, unlefs he took part of it for
- f himfelf.

190. The defendant, who denies a deposit, and the plaintiff who afferts it, let the king try by all forts of expedients, and by the modes of ordeal preferibed in the Véda.

191. 'He who reftores not a thing really deopfited, and he, who demands what he never bailed, fhall both, for a fecond offence, be punifhed as thieves, if gold, pearls, or the like be demanded; or, in the case of a trifling demand, fhall pay a fine equal to the value of the thing claimed : 192. For the first offence, the king should compel a fraudulent depositary, without any diftinction between a deposit under feal or open, to pay a fine equal to its value.

193. 'That man, who, by falle pretences, gets into h's hands the goods of another, fhall, together with his accomplices, be punifhed by various degrees of whipping or mutilation, or even by death.

194. ' Regularly,

194. ' Regularly, a deposit should be produced. the fame in kind and quantity as it was bailed, • by the fame and to the fame perfon, by whom ' and from whom it was received, and before the ' fame company, who were witneffes to the deposit : " he who produces it, in a different manner, ought • to be fined : 195. ' But a thing, privately deposited, should be privately reftored by and to the perfon, by ' and from whom it was received : as the bailment " was, fo fould be the delivery, according to a rule · in the Veda. 196. ' Thus let the king decide caufes concern-' ing a deposit, or a friendly loan for use, without ' fhowing rigour to the depositary. 197. " HIM, who fells the property of another ' man, without the affent of the owner, the judge ' shall not admit as a competent witness, but shall treat as a thief, who pretends that he has com-" mitted no theft : 198. " If, indeed he be a near kiniman of the f owner, he shall be fined fix hundred panas; but, ' if he be neither his kinfman or a claimant under · him, he commits an offence equal to larceny. 199. ' A gift or fale, thus made by any other than the true owner, must, by a fettled rule, be · confidered, in judicial proceedings, as not made. 200. Where occupation for a time shall be proved, but no fort of title shall appear, the fale cannot be supported : title, not occupation, is "effential to its fupport; and this rule alfo is fixed. 201. ' He who has received a chattel, by pur-' chase in open market, before a number of men, ' justly acquires the absolute property, by having ' paid the price of it, if he can produce the vendor ; P 4 202. ' But

202. ' But if the vendor be not producible, and f the vendee prove the publick fale, the latter must • be difmiffed by the king, without punifament ; and the former owner, who loft the chattel, may take it back, on paying the vendee balf its value.

203. ' One commodity mixed with another, fhall never be fold as unmixed; nor a bad com-" modity as good ; nor lefs than agreed on ; nor any thing kept at a diftance or concealed, left fome defect in it should be discovered.

204. ' If after one damfel has been shown, another s be offered to the bridegroom, who had purchased · leave to marry ber from ber next kinsman, he may become the hufband of both for the fame price: This law MENU ordained.

205. ' The kinfman, who gives a damfel in marriage, having first openly told her blemishes, whether she be infane, or disordered with elephantialis, or defiled by connexion with a man, f shall fuffer no punishment.

206. I In an officiating prieft, actually engaged ' in a facrifice, abandon his work, a fhare only, in proportion to his work done, shall be given to him by his partners in the business, out of their : common pay :

207. But if he discontinue his work without fraud, after the time of giving the facrificial fees, he may take his full share, and cause what re-" mains to be performed by another prieft.

208. Where, on the performance of folema * rites, a specifick fee is ordained for each part of ' them, fhall he alone, who performs that part, · receive the fee, or thall all the priefts take the perquifites jointly ?

209. ' At some boly rites, let the reader of the I Yajurvéda take the car, and the Brahmá, or fuperintending <sup>6</sup> perintending priest; the horse; or, on another <sup>7</sup> occasion, let the reader of the Rigvéda take the <sup>6</sup> horse, and the chanter of the Sámavéda receive <sup>7</sup> the carriage, in which the purchased materials <sup>6</sup> of the facrifice had been brought.

210. A bundred cows being diffributable among fixteen priests, the four chief or first fet, are entitled to near half, or forty-eight; the next four to half of that number; the third fet, to a third part of it; and the fourth fet, to a quarter:

211. According to this rule, or in proportion to the work, must allotments of shares be given to men here below, who, though in conjunction, perform their several parts of the business.

212. 'SHOULD money or goods be given, or 'promifed as a gift, by one man to another who 'afks it for fome religious act, the gift shall be void, if that act be not alterwards performed : > 213. ' If the money be delivered, and the receiver, through pride or avarice, refuse in that case to return it, he shall be fined one suverna by the king, as a punishment for his theft.

214. Such, as here declared, is the rule ordained for withdrawing what has been given: 1 will, next, propound the law for non-payment of wages.

215. THAT hired fervant or workman, who, 5 not from any diforder but from infolence, fails 5 to perform his work according to his agreement, 6 fhall be fined eight raffices, and his wages or 6 hire fhall not be paid.

216. But if he be really ill, and, when reftored to health, fhall perform his work according to his original bargain, he fhall receive his pay y even for a very long time :

217. ' Yet,

217. 'Yet, whether he be fick or well, if the 'work flipulated be not performed by another for 'bim or by bim/elf, his whole wages are forfeited, 'though the work want but a little of being 'complete. 218. 'This is the general rule concerning work

- <sup>6</sup> undertaken for wages or hire: next I will fully <sup>6</sup> declare the law concerning fuch men as break
- their promifes.

219. 'THE man, among the traders and other inhabitants of a town or diftrict, who breaks a promife through avarice, though he had taken an oath to perform it, let the king banifh from his realm:

220. Or, according to circumstances, let the judge, having arrested the promise-breaker, condemn him to pay fix niscas, or four suvernas, or one satamána of filver, or all three if be deserve fuch a fine.

221. Among all citizens, and in all claffes, let a juft king obferve this rule for imposing fines on men who shall break their engagements.

222. <sup>c</sup> A MAN who has bought or fold any <sup>c</sup> thing in this world, that has a fixed price, and is <sup>s</sup> not perifhable, as land or metals, and wifhes to <sup>c</sup> refeind the contract, may give or take back fuch <sup>s</sup> a thing within ten days; 223. <sup>c</sup> But, after ten days, he fhall neither give <sup>c</sup> nor take it back : the giver or the taker, except by confent, shall be fined by the king fix hundred panas.

224. 'The king himfelf shall take a fine of ninety-fix panas from him who gives a blemissed igirl in marriage, for a reward, without avowing her blemiss;

225. ' But

225. But the man, who, through malignity, ' fays of a damfel, that fhe is no virgin, shall be fined a hundred panas, if he cannot prove her · defilement. 226. ' The holy nuptial texts are applied folely to virgins, and no where on earth to girls who ' have loft their virginity; fince those women are ' in general excluded from legal ceremonies : 227. ' The nuptial texts are a certain rule in regard to wedlock, and the bridal contract is " known by the learned to be complete and irrevoeable, on the feventh ftep of the married pair, hand ' in band, after those texts have been pronounced. 228. By this law, in all bufinefs whatever here ' below, must the judge confine, within the path of rectitude, a perfon inclined to refeind his " contract of fale and purchase. 229. ' I now will decide exactly, according to · principles of law, the contefts ufually arifing from the fault of fuch as own herds of cattle, and of fuch as are hired to keep them. · 230. ' By day the blame falls on the herdfman : by night on the owner, if the cattle be fed and " kept in his own house ; but, if the place of their food and cuftody be different, the keeper incurs the blame. 231. ' That hired fervant, whofe wages arn paid with milk, may, with the affent of the ' own-r, milk the best cow out of ten: fuch are the wages of herdimen, unless they be paid in a · different mode. 232. ' The herdfman himfelf fhall make good the loss of a beaft; which through his want of due care, has strayed, has been destroyed by reptiles, or killed by dogs, or has died by falling into a pit;

219

233. But he shall not be compelled to make it good, when robbers have carried it away, if, after fresh proclamation and pursuit, he give notice to his master in a proper place and season.
234. When cattle die, let him carry to his master their ears, their hides, their tails, the scale state of their navels, their tendons, and the liquor exuding from their foreheads: let him also point out their limbs.

235. A flock of goats or of fheep being attacked by wolves, and the keeper not going to repel the attack, he fhall be refponfible for every one of them, which a wolf fhall violently kill;

236. But, if any one of them, while they graze together near a wood, and the fhepherd keeps them in order, fhall be fuddenly killed by a wolf fpringing on it, he fhall-not in that cafe be refponfible.

237. On all fides of a village or fmall town f let a fpace be left for pafture, in breadth either four hundred cubits, or three cafts of a large f flick; and thrice that fpace round a city or confiderable town:

233. Within that pasture ground, if cattle do any damage to grain in a field uninclosed with a hedge, the king shall not punish the herdsman.

239. Let the owner of the field inclose it with a hedge of thorny plants, over which a camel could not look; and let him ftop every gap, through which a dog or a boar could thruft his head.

<sup>30</sup> 240. ' Should cattle, attended by a herdfman', "do mifchief near a highway, in an inclosed field tor near the village, he shall be fined a hundred ' panas;

panas ; but against cattle which have no keeper, let the owner of the field fecure it.

241. 'In other fields, the owner of cattle doing 'mischief shall be fined one pana and a quarter; 'but, in all places, the value of the damaged 'grain must be paid: such is the fixed rule con-'cerning a husbandman.

242. For damage by a cow before ten days have paffed fince her calving, by bulls kept for impregnation, and by cattle confectated to the deity, whether attended or unattended, MENU has ordained no fine.

- 243. ' If land be injured, by the fault of the ' farmer himfelf, as if he fails to fow it in due time,
- he fhall be fined ten times as much as the king's
- " thave of the crop, that might otherwise have been
- " raifed; but only five times as much; if it was
- the fault of his fervants without his knowledge. 244. • Thefe rules let a just prince obferve in
- all cafes of tranfgreffion by mafters, their cattle, and their herdfmen.

245. ' IF a contest arise between two villages, ' or landbolders, concerning a boundary, let the ' king, or bis judge, afcertain the limits in the - ' month of 'Jyaisht'ba, when the land-marks are

- feen more diffinally.
  246. When boundaries first are established, let ftrong trees be planted on them, Vatas, Pippalas,

248. ' Lakes

248. Lakes and wells, pools and ftreams, ought also to be made on the common limits, and temples dedicated to the gods.

249. 'The perfons concerned, reflecting on 'the perpetual trefpaffes committed by men' here 'below through ignorance of boundaries, fhould caufe other land-marks to be concealed under 'ground:

250. Large pieces of stone, bones, tails of cows, bran, ashes, potsherds, dried cow-dung,

<sup>6</sup> bricks and tiles, charcoal, pebbles and fand, 251. <sup>6</sup> And fubftances of all forts, which the earth corrodes not even in a long time, should

- be placed in jars not appearing above ground, on
- ' the common boundary.

252. 'By fuch marks, or by the course of a 'ftream, and long continued pofferfion, the judge 'may alcertain the limit between the lands of two 'parties in litigation :

253. 'Should there be a doubt, even on the 'infpection of those marks, recourse must be had, 'for the decision of such a contest, to the declara-'tions of witneffes.

254. 'Those witness must be examined con-' cerning the land-marks, in the prefence of all ' the townsimen or villagers, or of both the con-' tending parties:

255. What the witneffes, thus affembled and interrogated, fhall pofitively declare con cerng the limits, must be recorded in writing, together with all their names.

<sup>2</sup> with all their names. 256. <sup>c</sup> Let them, putting earth on their heads, wearing chaplets of red flowers and clad in red mantles, be fworn by the reward of all their

257. ' Veracious

257. ' Veracious witneffes, who give evidence ' as the law requires, are abfolved from their fins; <sup>4</sup> but fuch as give it unjuftly, shall each be fined " two hundred panas. 258. ' If there be no witneffes, let four men, " who dwell on all the four fides of the two vil-· lages, make a decifion concerning the boundary, ' being duly prepared, like the witnefles, in the · prefence of the king. 250. ' If there be no fuch neighbours on all fides, nor any men, nor any men whole an-· ceftors had lived there fince the villages were ' built, nor other inhabitants of towns, who can ' give evidence on the limits, the judge must examine the following men, who inhabit the woods; 260. ' Hunters, fowlers, herdimen, fishers, diggers for roots, catchers of fnakes, gleaners, • and other forefters : 26:. ' According to their declaration, when ' they are duly examined, let the king with pre-· cifion order land-marks to be fixed on the boun-' dary line between the two villages. 262. ' As to the bounds of arable fields, wells ' or pools, gardens and houses, the teftimony of • next neighbours on every fide muft be confidered ' as the beft means of decifion : 263. Should the neighbours fay any thing ' untrue, when two men dispute about a land-' mark, the king shall make each of those wite neffes pay the middlemost of the three usual amercements. 264. ' He, who by means of intimidation, shall poffels himfelf of a houfe, a pool, a field, or a garden, fhall be fined five hundred panas; but only two hundred, if he trefpaffed through ignorance of the right.

265. ' If

265. 'If the boundary cannot be otherwife afcertained, let the king, knowing what is juft, that is, without partiality, and confulting the future benefit of both parties, make a bound line between their lands: this is a fettled law.

266. 'Thus has the rule been propounded for decifions concerning land-marks: I next will declare the law concerning defamatory words.

267. ' A SOLDIER, defaming a prieft, shall be fined a hundred panas; a merchant, thus offending, an hundred and fifty, or two hundred; but,

' for fuch an offence, a mechanick or fervile man ' fhall be whipped.

268. A priest shall be fined five hundred, if he shander a foldier; twenty-five if a merchant; and twelve if he shander a man of the fervile class.

269. 'For abufing one of the fame clafs, a 'twice born man, fhall be fined only twelve; but for ribaldry not to be uttered, even that and 'every fine fhall be doubled.

270. A once born man, who infults the twice born with grofs invectives, ought to have his tongue flit; for he fprang from the loweft part of BRAHMA':

271. ' If he mention their names and claffes ' with contumely, as if he fay, " Ob DE'VADAT-' TA, thou refuse of Brahmens," an iron ftyle, ' ten fingers long, shall be thrust red hot into his ' mouth.

272. 'Should he, through pride, give inftruction to priefts concerning their duty, let the king order fome hot oil to be dropped into his mouth and his ear.

273. ' He, who falfely denies through infolence, the

the facred knowledge, the country, the clafs, or the corporeal investiture of a man, equal in rank, fhall be compelled to pay a fine of two hundred · panas. 274. ' If a man call another blind with one eye, or lame, or defective in any fimilar way. ' he shall pay the small fine of one pana, even · though he fpeak truth. 275. ' He shall be fined a hundred, who defames his mother, his father, his wife, his ' brother, his fon, or his preceptor; and he who ' gives not his preceptor the way. 276. 'For mutual abuse by a priest and a foldier, this fine must be imposed by a learned ' king; the lowest amercement on the priest. and the middlemoft on the foldier. 277. ' Such exactly, as before-mentioned, must be the punifhment of a merchant and a me-' chanick in respect of their feveral classes, except the flitting of the tongue: this is a fixed rule of · punifhment. 278. ' Thus fully has the law been declared for the punifhment of defamatory speech: I " will next propound the eftablished law concern-' ing affault and battery. 279. 'With whatever member a low born ' man shall affault or hurt a superiour, even that " member of his must be flit, or cut more or less · in proportion to the injury: this is an ordinance of MENU. 280. ' He, who raises his hand or a staff against ' another, shall have his hand cut; and he who · kicks another in wrath, shall have an incision · made in his foot.

282. 'Should he fpit on him through pride, 'the king shall order both of his lips to be gashed; 'fhould he urine on him, his penis; should he break wind against him, his anus.

283. ' If he feize the Brábmen by the locks, ' or by the feet, or by the beard, or by the ' throat, or by the fcrotum, let the king with-' out hefitation caufe incifions to be made in his ' hands.

284. ' If any man foratch the fkin of bis equal ' in clafs, or fetch blood from bim, he fhall be fined a hundred panas; if he wound a muscle, fix nifhcas; but, if he break a bone, let him be ' inftantly banished.

285. ACCORDING to the use and value of all great trees, must a fine be set for injuring them : this is an established rule.

287. 'In all cafes of hurting a limb, wound-'ing, or fetching blood, the affailant fhall pay the expence of a perfect cure; or, on his failure, both full damages and a fine to the fame amount.

288. 'He, who injures the goods of another, 'whether acquainted or unacquainted with the 'owner of them, fhall give fatisfaction to the 'owner, and pay a fine to the king equal to the 'damage.

289. ' If injury be done to leather or to eathern

* leathern bags, or utenfils made of wood or clay, the fine shall be five times their value. 200. ' The wife reckon ten occasions, in re-' gard to a carriage, its driver, and its owner, on "which the fine is remitted; on other occa-· fions a fine is ordained by law: 291; ' The nofe-cord or bridle being cut, by ' fome accident without negligence, or the yoke being ' fnapped, on a fudden overturn, or running against ' any thing without fault, the axle being broken, ' or the wheel cracked; 292. On the breaking of the thongs, of the " halter, or of the reins, and when the driver has · called aloud to make way, on these occasions has " MENU declared that no fine shall be fet : 293. ' But, where a carriage has been over-' turned by the unfkilfulnefs of the driver, there, ' in the cafe of any hurt, the mafter shall be fined ' two hundred panas. 294. ' If the driver be skilful, but negligent, the ' driver alone shall be fined; and those in the car-· riage shall be fined each a hundred, if the driver be clearly unfkilful. 295. Should a driver, being met in the way · by another carriage or by cattle, kill any animal ' by bis negligence, a fine shall, without doubt, ' be imposed by the following rule : 296. ' For killing a man, a fine, equal to that for theft, shall be instantly set ; half that amount, for large brute animals, as for a bull or cow, ' an elephant, a camel, or a horfe ; 297. ' For killing very young cattle, the fine " shall be two hundred panas; and fifty, for ele-' gant quadrupeds or beautiful birds, as antelopes, * parrots, and the like;

298. ' For

298. 'For an als, a goat, or a sheep, the fine ' must be five filver máss; and one másha for ' killing a dog or a boar.

299. A WIFE, a fon, a fervant, a pupil, and 'a younger whole brother, may be corrected, 'when they commit faults, with a rope, or the fmall fhoot of a cane;

300. 'But on the back part only of their bodies, and not on a noble part by any means: 'he who ftrikes them otherwife than by this rule,

' incurs the guilt, or shall pay the fine of a thief.

301. 'This law of affault and battery has been 'completely declared : I proceed to declare the 'rule for the fettled punishment of theft.

302. 'IN reftraining thieves and robbers, let 'the king use extreme diligence; fince, by 'reftraining thieves and robbers, his fame and

' honoured, who bestows exemption from fear ;

- ' fince he performs, as it were, a perpetual facri-
- ' fice, giving exemption from fear, as a constant
- ' facrificial prefent.

304. 'A fixth part of the reward for virtuous 'deeds, performed by the whole people, belongs 'to the king, who protects them; but, if he 'protect them not, a fixth part of their iniquity

· lights on him :

305. Of the reward for what every fubject reads in the Véda, for what he facrifices, for what he gives in charity, for what he performs in worship, the king justly takes a fixth part in confequence of protection.

306. A king, who acts with juffice in defending all creatures, and flays only those who ought to <sup>e</sup> to be flain, performs, as it were, each day a <sup>e</sup> facrifice with a hundred thousand gifts;

307. 'But a king, who gives no fuch protec-'tion, yet receives taxes in kind or in value, mar-'ket duties and tolls, the fmall daily prefents for 'his household, and fines for offences, falls directly, 'on bis death, to a region of horrour. 308. 'That king, who gives no protection, yet takes a fixth part of the grain as his revenue, wife men have confidered as a prince who draws

' to him the foulness of all his people.

309. 'Be it known, that a monarch who pays 'no regard to the fcriptures, who denies a future ftate, who acts with rapacity, who protects noc his people, yet fwallows up their poffeffions, will fink low indeed after deatb.

310. WITH great care and by three methods let him reftrain the unjuft; by imprifonment, by confinement in fetters, and by various kinds of corporal punifhment;

311. Since, by reftraining the bad, and by encouraging the good, kings are perpetually made pure, as the twice born are purified by facrificing.

312. 'A KING who feeks benefit to his own foul, must always forgive parties litigant, children, old men, and fick perfons, who inveigh against him.

313. 'He, who forgives perfons in pain, when they abufe him, fhall, on that account, be exalted in heaven; but he, who excufes them not, through the pride of dominion, fhall for that reafon fink into hell.

314. 'The stealer of gold from a priest must run 'hastily to the king, with loofened hair, pro-Q3 'claiming ' claiming the theft ; and adding ; " Thus have I ' finned, punifh me."

315. 'He must bear on his shoulder a pestle of 'stone, o a club of c'badira-wood, or a javelin 'pointed at both ends, or an iron mace:

316. Whether the king ftrike him with it, or difinifs him unburt, the thief is then abfolved from the crime; but the king, if he punish him not, shall incur the guilt of the thief.

317. 'The killer of a prieft, or defiroyer of an embryo, cafts his guilt on the willing eater of his provifions; an adulterous wife, on her negligent hufband; a bad fcholar and facrificer, on their ignorant preceptor; and a thief, on the forgiving prince. 318. 'But men who have committed offences,

318. But then who have committed onences, and have received from kings the punifhment due to them, go pure to heaven, and become as clear as those who have done well.

319. 'He, who fteals the rope or the water-pot 'from a well, and he, who breaks down a ciftern, 'fhall be fined a másha of gold; and that, which be bas taken or injured he must reftore to its 'former condition.

320. 'Corporal punifhment shall be inflicted 'on him who steals more than ten cumbbas of grain, (a cumbba is twenty drónas, and a dróna 'two hundred palas:) for less he must be fined 'eleven times as much, and shall pay to the 'owner the amount of his property.

321. So fhall corporal punifhment be inflicted for ftealing commodities ufually fold by weight, or more than a hundred head of cattle, or gold, for filver, or coftly apparel;

322. ' For stealing more than fifty palas, it is ' enacted enacted that a hand fhall be amputated ; for lefs, the king shall fet a fine eleven times as much as the value. 323. ' For stealing men of high birth, and wo-' men above all, and the most precious gems, " as diamonds or rubies, the thief deferves capital · punishment. 324. ' For stealing large beafts, weapons, or ' medicines, let the king inflict adequate punish-' ment, confidering the time and the act. 325. For taking kine belonging to priefts, and ' boring their nostrils, or for stealing their other · cattle, the offender shall instantly lose half of · one foot. 326. ' For ftealing thread, raw-cotton, materials to make fpirituous liquor, cow-dung, mo-· lasses, curds, milk, butter-milk, water, or grafs, 327. ' Large canes, baskets of canes, falt of every kind, earthen pots, clay or afhes, 228. 'Fish, birds, oil, or clarified butter. flefh-meat, honey, or any thing, as leather, born, f or ivory, that came from a bealt, 329. ' Or other things not precious, or fpirituous liquors, rice dreffed with clarified but-' ter, or other meffes of boiled rice, the fine " must be twice the value of the commodity ftolen. 330. ' For ftealing as much as a man can carry f of flowers, green corn, fhrubs, creepers, fmall f trees, or other vegetables, enclosed by a hedge.

the fine shall be five radicas of gold or filver;

331. But for corn, pot-herbs, roots, and fruit, unenclofed by a fence, the fine is an hundred panas, if there be no fort of relation between the taker and the owner; or half a hundred if there be fuch relation,

332. ' If

332. 'If the taking be violent, and in the fight 'of the owner, it is robbery; if privately in his 'abfence, it is only theft, and it is confidered as 'theft, when a man, having received any thing, 'refufes to give it back.

333. On him who fteals the before-mentioned things, when they are prepared for ufe, let the king fet the loweft amercement of the three; and the fame on him who fteals only fire from the temple.

334. With whatever limb a thief commits the offence by any means in this world, as if be break a wall with bis hand or bis foot, even that limb fhall the king amputate for the prevention of a fimilar crime.

335. 'NEITHER a father, nor a preceptor, nor a friend, nor a mother, nor a wife, nor a fon, nor a domeftick prieft, must be left unpunished by the king, if they adhere not with firmness to their duty.

336. WHERE another man of lower birth would be fined one pana, the king fhall be fined a thousand, and be shall give the fine to the priests, or cast it into the river: this is a facred rule.

337. 'But the fine of a Súdra for theft fhall 'be eight-fold; that of a Vai/ya, fixteen-fold; 'that of a C/hatriya, two and thirty-fold.

338. 'That of a Brábmen, four and fixty-fold; or a hundred-fold complete, or even twice four and fixty-fold; each of them knowing the nature of his offence.

339. The taking of roots and fruit from a large tree, in a field or a forest unenclosed, or of

- wood for a facrificial fire, or of grafs to be eaten
- by cows, MENU has pronounced no theft.

340. ' A

340. ' A PRIEST who willingly receives any ' thing, either for facrificing or for inftructing, from the hand of a man who had taken what " the owner had not given, shall be punished even " as the thief. 241. ' A twice born man who is travelling, ' and whole provisions are fcanty, shall not be ' fined for taking only two fugar canes, or two ' esculent roots, from the field of another man. 342. ' He who ties the unbound, or loofes ' the bound cattle of another, and he who takes a ' flave, a horfe, or a carriage without permission. ' shall be punished as for thest. 343. A king, who by enforcing these laws ' reftrains men from committing theft, acquires ' in this world fame, and in the next beatitude. 344. ' LET not the king who ardently defires a feat with INDRA, and wifhes for glory, " which nothing can change or diminish, endure for a moment the man who has committed ' atrocious violence, as by robbery, arfon, or · homicide. 345. ' He who commits great violence, must · be confidered as a more grievous offender than ' a defamer, a thief, or a striker with a staff: 346. ' That king who endures a man convicted of fuch atrocity, quickly goes to perdition, " and incurs publick hate. 347. ' Neither on account of friendship, nor for the fake of great lucre, fhall the king difmifs the perpetrators of violent acts, who fpread · terrour among all creatures. 248. ' THE twice born may take arms when their duty is obstructed by force; and when in fome evil time a difaster has befallen the twiceborn classes : 349. ' And

233

349. And in their own defence; and in a " war for just cause; and in defence of a woman or a prieft; he who kills juftly, commits no · crime. 350. ' Let a man without hefitation flay ano-' ther, if be cannot otherwise escape, who affails him ' with intent to murder, whether young or old, ' or his preceptor, or a Bråhmen deeply verfed in · the fcripture. 351. By killing an affaffin, who attempts to ' kill, whether in public or in private, no crime is committed by the flayer : fury recoils upon · fury. 352. ' MEN who commit overt-acts of adulterous inclinations for the wives of others, let ' the king banish from his realm, having pu-· nifhed them with fuch bodily marks as excite s averfion : 353. ' Since adultery caufes, to the general ruin, a mixture of claffes' among men : thence ' arifes violation of duties ; and thence is the root · of felicity quite deftroyed. 354. ' A man before noted for fuch an offence, " who convertes in fecret with the wife of another, shall pay the first of the three usual amerce-· ments ; -355. But a man, not before noted, who thus ' converses with her for fome reasonable cause, ' fhall pay no fine; fince in him there is no · tranfgreffion. 356. ' He, who talks with the wife of another man at a place of pilgrimage, in a foreft or a ' grove, or at the confluence of rivers, incurs the " guilt of an adulterous inclination : 357. ' To fend her flowers or perfumes, to fport and jeft with her, to touch her apparel and ornaments, ' ornaments, to fit with her on the fame couch, ' are held adulterous acts on his part;

358. 'To touch a married woman on ber 'breafts or any other place, which ought not to be touched, or, being touched unbecomingly by 'her, to bear it complacently, are adulterous acts with mutual affent. 350. 'A man of the fervile clafs, who commits actual adultery with the wife of a prieft, ought to fuffer death : the wives, indeed, of all the four claffes muft ever be moft efpecially guarded.

360. 'Mendicants, encomiafts, men prepared for a facrifice, and ccoks and other artifans, are

- not prohibited from speaking to married women. 361. • Let no man converse, after he has been
- · forbidden, with the wives of others : he, who
- ' thus converses, after a husband or father has for-
- <sup>6</sup> bidden bim, fhall pay a fine of one fuverna. 362. <sup>6</sup> Thefe laws relate not to the wives of publick dancers or fingers, or of fuch bafe men as live by intrigues of their wives; men, who either carry women to others, or, lying concealed at home, permit them to hold a culpable intercourfe :

363. 'Yet he, who has a private connexion with fuch women, or with fervant-girls kept by one mafter, or with female anchorets of an heretical religion, fhall be compelled to pay a fmall fine.
364. 'He, who vitiates a damfel without her confent, fhall fuffer corporal punifhment inftantly; but he, who enjoys a willing damfel, fhall not be corporally punifhed, if his clafs be the fame with hers.

365. 'From a girl, who makes advances to 'a man a man of a high class, let not the king take the ' finallest fine ; but her, who first addresses a low ' man, let him constrain to live in her house ' well guarded. 366. ' A low man, who makes love to a dam-' fel of high birth, ought to be punished corpo-' rally ; but he who addreffes a maid of equal ' rank, shall give the nuptial prefent and marry ' ber. if her father please. 367. ' OF the man, who through infolence forcibly contaminates a damfel, let the king in-" ftantly order two fingers to be amputated, and condemn him to pay a fine of fix hundred · panas: 368. ' A man of equal rank, who defiles a con-· fenting damsel, shall not have his fingers am-' putated, but shall pay a fine of two hundred · panas, to reftrain him from a repetition of his ' offence. 369. 373. 'OF a man once convicted, and a year after guilty of the fame crime, the fine must be doubled: fo it must if he be connected with the daughter of an outcast or with a Chándálí woman.

374. 'A mechanick or fervile man, having an adulterous connexion with a woman of a twice born clafs, whether guarded at home or unguarded, fhall thus be punifhed; if fhe was unguarded, be fhall lofe the part offending, and his whole fubftance; if guarded, and a prieftefs, every thing, even bis life. 375. 'For adultery with a guarded prieftefs, a merchant shall forfeit all his wealth after imprifonment for a year; a foldier shall be fined a thousand panas, and be shaved with the urine of an afs:

376. 'But, if a merchant or a foldier commit adultery with a woman of the facerdotal clafs, whom her hufband guards not at home, the king fhall only fine the merchant five hundred, and the foldier a thoufand:
377. 'Both of them, however, if they commit

377. Both of them, nowever, if they commit that offence with a prieftefs not only guarded, but eminent for good qualities, fhall be punified like men of the fervile clafs, or be burned in a fire of dry grafs or reeds.

378. A Brábmen, who carnally knows a guarded woman without her free will, must be fined a thousand panas, but only five hundred if he knew her with her free confent.

379. Ignominious tonfure is ordained, inftead of capital punifhment, for an adulterer of the prieftly clafs, where the punifhment of other claffes may extend to lofs of life.

380. ' Never

380. 'Never shall the king flay a Bråbmen 'though convicted of all possible crimes : let him 'banish the offender from his realm, but with all 'his property fecure, and his body unhurt :

381. 'No greater crime is known on earth ' than flaying a Brábmen; and the king, therefore,

- " must not even form in his mind an idea of kill-
- ' ing a prieft.

382. If a merchant converse criminally with a guarded woman of the military, or a foldier with one of the mercantile class, they both deferve the fame punishment as in the case of a

• prieîtefs unguarded :

383. But a Brábmen, who fhall commit adultery with a guarded woman of those two classes, must be fined a thousand panas; and, for the

- like offence with a guarded woman of the fervile clafs, the fine of a foldier or a merchant shall
- ' alfo be one thouland.

384. 'For adultery with a woman of the military clafs, if unguarded, the fine of a merchant

- ' is five hundred; but a foldier, for the converse of
- " that offence, must be shaved with urine, or pay the fine just mentioned.

385. A prieft shall pay five hundred panas if he connect himfelf criminally with an unguarded

- ' woman of the military, commercial, or fervile
- class; and a thousand for such a connexion with a
- ' woman of vile mixed breed.

386. ' THAT king, in whole realm lives no ' thief, no adulterer, no defamer, no man guilty

338. ' THE facrificer who forfakes the officiat-' ing prieft, and the officiating prieft who aban-' dons the facrificer, each being able to do his ' work, and guilty of no grievous offence, must ' each be fined a hundred panas.

389. ' A mother, a father, a wife, and a fon, ' shall not be forfaken : he, who forfakes either of ' them, unlefs guilty of a deadly fin, fhall pay ' fix hundred panas as a fine to the king.

390. ' LET not a prince, who feeks the good ' of his own foul, baltily and alone pronounce the ' law, on a difpute concerning any, legal obfer-' vance, among twice born men in their feveral ' orders :

396. Let a washerman wash the clothes of bis employers by little and little, or piece by piece, and not haftily, on a smooth board of Sálmali-wood: let him never mix the clothes of one perfon with the clothes of another, nor suffer any but the owner to wear them.

397. 'LET a weaver who has received ten ' palas of cotton thread, give them back increased ' to eleven by the rice water and the like used in

" weaving: he who does otherwife, shall pay a fine of twelve panas.

398. As men versed in cases of tolls, and acquainted with all marketable commodities, shall establish the price of faleable things, let the king take a twentieth part of the profit on fales at that price.

399. 'Of the trader, who, through avarice, 'exports commodities, of which the king juftly claims the pre-emption, or on which he has laid an embargo, let the fovereign confifcate the

CHAPTER THE NINTH.

On the fame; and on the Commercial and Servile Classes.

1. ' I now will propound the immemorial ' duties of man and woman, who must both re-' main firm in the legal path; whether united or ' separated. 2. ' Day and night must women be held by ' their protectors in a state of dependence; but . in lawful and in socent recreations, though rather ' addicted to them, they may be left at their own · disposal. 3. ' Their fathers protect them in child-hood ; ' their hufbands protect them in youth; their ' fons protect them in age : a woman is never fit for independence. 4. ' Reprehenfible is the father, who gives not " his daughter in marriage at the proper time; ' and the hufband, who approaches not his wife ' in due feason; reprehensible also is the fon, " who protects not his mother after the death of · her lord. 5. ' Women must, above all, be restrained from the fmalleft illicit gratification; for, not being R 3

ON THE SAME; AND ON THE

thus reftrained, they bring forrow on both families:

6. Let hufbands confider this as the fupreme f law, ordained for all claffes; and let them, f how weak foever, diligently keep their wives
f under lawful reftrictions;

7. For he who preferves his wife from vice, <sup>6</sup> preferves his offspring from [ufpicion of b:ftardy, <sup>6</sup> his ancient ufages from neglect, his family from <sup>6</sup> difgrace, himfelf from anguish, and his duty from <sup>6</sup> violation.

8. 'The hufband, after conception by his wife, becomes himfelf an embryo, and is born a fecond time here below; for which reafon the wife is called jáyá, fince by her (jáyaté) he is born again:

9. Now the wife brings forth a fon endued with fimilar qualities to those of the father; fo that with a view to an excellent offspring, he must vigilantly guard his wife.

to. No man, indeed, can wholly reftrain women by violent measures; but, by these expedients, they may be reftrained:

11. Let the hufband keep his wife employed in the collection and expenditure of wealth, in purification and femate duty, in the preparation of daily food, and the fuper-intendence of household utenfils.

12. By confinement at home, even under affectionate and observant guardians, they are not fecure; but those women are truly secure, who are guarded by their own good inclinations.

13. Drinking fpirituous liquor, affociating with evil perfons, abtence from her hufband, rambling

246

· bling abroad, unfeafonable fleep, and dwelling in the houle of another, are fix faults which · bring infamy on a married woman :

14. ' Such women examine not beauty, nor pay " attention to age; whether their lover be hand-· fome or ugly, they think it is enough that he is " a man, and purfue their pleafures.

15. ' Through their paffion for men, their · mutable temper, their want of fettled affection, ' and their perverfe nature, (let them be guarded ' in this world ever fo well) they foon become · alienated from their hufbands.

16. Yet fhould their hufbands be diligently ' careful in guarding them; though they well " know the difpolition with which the lord of creation formed them :

17. ' MENU allotted to fuch women a love of their bed, of their feat, and of ornament, ' impure appetites, wrath, weak flexibility, defire · of mifchief, and bad conduct.

18. ' Wonien have no bufinels with the texts · of the Véda; thus is the law fully fettled: ' having therefore no evidence of law, and no · knowledge of explatory texts, fintul women muft • be as foul as fallehood itfelf : and this is a fixed · rule.

10. ' To this effect, many texts, which may " fhow their true disposition, are chanted in the · Védas : hear now their explation for fin.

20. " That pure blood, which my mother " defileth by adulterous defire, frequenting the " houses of other men, and violating her duty " to her lord, that blood may my father purify !" " Such is the tenour of the holy text, which ber fon, who knows her guilt, must pronounce for her ; 21. ' And

248 ON THE SAME; AND ON THE

21. And this explation has been declared for every unbecoming thought, which enters her mind, concerning infidelity to her hufband, fince that is the beginning of adultery.

22. Whatever be the qualities of the man with whom a woman is united by lawful marriage, fuch qualities even the affumes; like a f river united with the fea.

23. ' ACSHAMA'LA', a woman of the lowest birth, being thus united to VASISHT'HA, and

- SA'RANGÍ, being united to MANDAPA'LA, were
- " entitled to very high honour : 24. " Thefe and other females of low birth,

25. 'Thus has the law, ever pure, been propounded for the civil conduct of men and women: hear next the laws concerning children, by obedience to which may happines be attained in this and the future life.

26. WHEN good women united with hufbands in expectation of progeny, eminently fortunate and worthy of reverence, irradiate the houfes of their lords, between them, and goddefies of abundance, there is no diversity whatever.

27. 'The production of children, the nurture of them when produced, and the daily superintendence of domestick affairs are peculiar to the wife:

28. From the wife alone proceed offspring, good houfehold management, folicitous attention, most exquisite careffes, and that heavenly beatitude which she obtains for the manes of ancestors, and for the busband himself.

29. She who deserts not her lord, but keeps in fubjection to him her heart, her fpeech, and her body, fhall attain his manfion in heaven; and, by the virtuous in this world, be called Sádhwi,

or good and faithful;

30. 'But a wife, by difloyalty to her hufband, fhall incur difgrace in this life, and be born in the next from the womb of a fhakal, or be tormented with horrible difeafes, which pu-

• nifh vice

31. ' LEARN now that excellent law, univerfally falutary, which was declared concerning fiffue, by great and good fages, formerly born.

32. 'They confider the male iffue of a woman 'as the fon of the lord; but, on the fubject of that lord, a difference of opinion is mentioned in the Véda; fome giving that name to the real procreator of the child, and others applying it to the married poffetfor of the woman.

33. 'The woman is confidered in law as the field, and the man as the grain : now vegetable bodies are formed by the united operation of the feed and the field.

34. 'In fome cafes the prolifick power of the male is chiefly diftinguished; in others, the receptacle of the female; but, when both are equal in dignity, the offspring is most highly efteemed:

35. 'In general, as between the male and fe-'male powers of procreation, the male is held fuperiour; fince the offspring of all procreant beings is diftinguished by marks of the male power.

36. Whatever be the quality of feed, fcattered in a field prepared in due feason, a plant of the fame quality fprings in that field, with peculiar yifible properties.

37. ' Certainly

250

37. Certainly this earth is called the primeval womb of many beings; but the feed exhibits not in its vegetation any properties of the womb.
38. On earth here below, even in the fame ploughed field, feeds of many different forms, having been fown by hufbandmen in the proper feafon, vegetate according to their nature :

39. 'Rice plants, mature in fixty days, and those which require transplantation, mudga, tila, másta, barley, leaks, and sugar-caues, all spring up according to the feeds.

40. 'That one plant thould be fown, and ano-'ther produced cannot happen : whatever feed 'may be fown, even that produces its proper flem.

41. 'Never must it be fown in another man's field by him, who has natural good fense, who has been well instructed, who knows the Véda and its Angas, who defires long life:

42. 'They who are acquainted with paftimes, 4 have preferved, on this fubject, holy firains 4 chanted by every breeze, declaring, that "feed 4" muft not be fown in the field of another man."

43. As the arrow of that hunter is vain, who fhoots it into the wound which another had made just before in the antelope, thus instantly pcrishes the feed which a man throws into the foil of another :

44. Sages, who know former times, confider this earth (Prăt hirá) as the wife of king Prătruc; and thus they pronounce cultivated land to be the property of him who cut away the wood, or who cleared and tilled it; and the antelope, of the first hunter, who mortally wounded it.

45. ing women, thinking it poffible, that the great object of that appointment may not be obtained by the birth of a fingle fon, are of opinion, that the wife and appointed kinfman may legally procreate a fecond.
62. 'The first object of the appointment being attained according to law, both the brother and the widow must live together like a father and a daughter by affinity.

63. Either brother, appointed for this purpole, who deviates from the first rule, and acts from carnal defire, fhall be degraded, as having defiled the bed of his daughter-in-law or of his father.

64. 'By men of twice born claffes no widow, 'or childle/s wife, must be authorized to conceive 'by any other than her lord, for they, who au-'thorize her to conceive by any other, violate the 'primeval law.

65. Such a commiffion to a brother or other near kinfman is no where mentioned in the nuptial texts of the Véda; nor is the marriage of a widow even named in the laws concerning marriage.

66. 'This practice, fit only for cattle, is repre-'hended by learned Bráhmens; yet it is declared 'to have been the practice even of men, while 'VE'NA had fovereign power:

67. 'He, possefing the whole earth, and thence only called the chief of fage monarchs, gave rile to a confusion of classes, when his intellect became weak through luft.

but, if there be no deduction, the fhares muft be diffributed in this manner:

117. 'Let the eldeft have a double fhare, and the next born, a fhare and a half, if they clearly furpafs the reft in virtue and learning; the younger fons muft have each a fhare: if all be equal in good qualities, they muft all take fhare and fhare alike.

118. 'To the unmarried daughters by the fame mother, let their brothers give portions out of their own allotments respectively, according to the class of their feveral mothers: let each give a fourth part of his own distinct fhare; and they who refuse to give it shall be degraded.

119. 'Let them never divide the value of a 'fingle goat or fheep, or a fingle beaft with 'uncloven hoofs: a fingle goat or fheep remain-'ing after an equal distribution, belongs to the first-'born.

120. Should a younger brother, in the manner before mentioned, have begotten a fon on the wife of his deceased elder brother, the division must then be made equally between that fon who represents the deceased, and his natural father: thus is the law settled.

121. 'The reprefentative is not fo far wholly 'fubfituted by law in the place of the deceafed 'principal, as to bave the portion of an elder fon; and the principal became a father in confequence of the procreation by his younger brother; the fon, therefore, is entitled by law to an equal fhare, 'but not to a double portion.

- other, except by a just fittion of law.

182. ' IF among feveral brothers of the whole · blood, one have a fon born, MENU pronounces them all fathers of a male child by means of

- " that fon; so that if such nephew would be the " beir, the uncles have no power to adopt fons:

183. ' Thus, if, among all the wives of the fame · hufband, one bring forth a male child, MENU has declared them all, by means of that fon, · to be mothers of male iffue.

184. ' On failure of the beft, and of the next ' best, among those twelve sons, let the inferiour ' in order take the heritage; but if there be ' many of equal rank, let all be fharers of the eftate.

185. ' Not brothers, nor parents, but fons, if ' living, or their male iffue, are heirs to the de-' ceased, but of him, who leaves no fon, nor a " wife, nor a daughter, the father shall take the ' inheritance ; and if be leave neither father nor " mother, the brothers.

186. ' To three ancestors must water be given ' at their obsequies; for three (the father, his father, and the paternal grandfather ) is the funeral · cake

- " cake ordained : the fourth in descent is the giver
- of oblations to them and their heir, if they die with-
- " out nearer descendants; but the fifth has no con- ' cern with the gift of the funeral cake.

187. 'To the nearest fapinda, male or female, 'aster him in the third degree, the inheritance

- 188. On failure of all those, the lawful heirs are such Brábmens as have read the three Védas.
- are fuch brabhens as have read the three veaus,
- as are pure in body and mind, as have fubdued • their paffions; and they must confequently offer the
- cake: thus the rites of oblequies cannot fail.

189. ' The property of a Bråhmen shall never

• be taken as an efcheat by the king; this is a • fixed law: but the wealth of the other claffes, on failure of all heirs, the king may take.

190. ' If the widow of a man, who died with-' out a fon, raife up a fon to him by one of his ' kinfmen, let her deliver to that fon, at bis full ' age, the collected eftate of the deceased, whatever ' it be.

191. ' If two fons, begotten by two fucceffive bufbands, who are both dead, contend for their property, then in the hands of their mother, let each take, exclusively of the other, his own father's eftate:

192. On the death of the mother, let all the ' uterine brothers and the uterine fifters, if un-' married, equally divide the maternal eftate: each ' married fifter shall have a fourth part of a brother's ' allotment. 193. Even to the daughters of those daughters, it is fit that fomething fhould be given, from from the affets of their maternal grandmother, on the fcore of natural affection.

194. 'WHAT was given before the nuptial fire, what was given on the bridal proceffion, what was given in token of love, and what was received from a brother, a mother, or a father, are confidered as the fix-fold feparate property of a married woman: 195. What fhe received after marriage from the family of her hufband, and what her affectionate lord may have given her, fhall be in-

196. ' It is ordained, that the property of a ' woman, married by the ceremonies called Bráb-' ma, Daiva, Arfha, Gándbarva, or Prájápatya, ' fhall go to her huíband, if fhe die without iffue; 197. ' But her wealth given on the marriage ' called A fura, or on either of the two others, is ' ordained, on her death without iffue, to become ' the property of her father and mother. 108. ' If a widow, whose busband had ether

And if a fon, by his own efforts, recover a debt or property unjuftly detained, which could not be recovered before by bis father, he fhall not, unlefs by his free will, put it into parcenary with his brethren, fince in fact it was acquired by himfelf. 210. IF brethren, once divided and living again together as parceners, make a fecond partition, the fhares must in that case be equal; and the first born shall have no right of deduction.

211. Should the eldeft or youngeft of feveral brothers be deprived of his fhare by a civil death on bis entrance into the fourth order, or fhould any one of them die, his vested interest in a fhare fhall not wholly be loft; 212. But, if be leave neither son, nor wife,

• nor daughter, nor father, nor mother, his uterine • brothers and fifters, and fuch brothers as were • re-united after a feparation, fhall affemble and • divide his fhare equally.

213. Any eldeft brother, who, from avarice, fhall defraud his younger brother, fhall forfeit the benours of his primogeniture, be deprived of his own fhare, and pay a fine to the king.
214. All those brothers who are addicted to any vice, lofe their title to the inheritance: the first born shall not appropriate it to himself, but shall give shares to the youngest, if they be not vitious.

215. If among undivided brethren living with their father, there be a common exertion for T common <sup>c</sup> common gain, the father shall never make an <sup>c</sup> unequal division among them, when they divide

· their families.

216. A fon, born after a division in the lifetime of his father, shall alone inherit the patrimony, or shall have a share of it with the divided brethren, if they return and unite themfelves with him.

217. 'OF a fon, dying childlefs and leaving no 'widow, the father and mother shall take the estate; and the mother also being dead, the pa-'ternal grandfather and grandmother shall take the heritage, on failure of brothers and nephews.

218. When all the debts and wealth have been justly distributed according to law, any property, that may afterwards be discovered, fhall be subject to a similar distribution.

2 9. 'Apparel, carriages, or riding horfes, and ornaments of ordinary value, which any of the beirs had used by consent before partition, dreffed rice, water in a well or cistern, female flaves, family priefts, or fpiritual counfellors, and pafture ground for cattle, the wife have declared indivisible, and still to be used as before.

- · lives; 247. ' There the grain of hufbandmen rifes
- abundantly, as it was respectively fown; there no

f no younglings die, nor is one deformed animal s born.

248. SHOULD a man of the baleft clafs, with preconceived malice, give pain to Brábmens, let the prince corporally punifh him by various modes, that may raife terrour.

249. A king is pronounced equally unjust in releasing the man who deferves punishment, and in punishing the man who deferves it not: he is just who always inflicts the punishment ordained by law.

250. 'These established rules for administering 'juffice between two litigant parties, have been propounded at length under eighteen heads.

251. 'Thus fully performing all duties required by law, let a king feek, with justice, to possessions yet unpossession, when they are

320. Of a military man, who raifes his arm violently on all occasions against the priestly class, the priest himself shall be the chassifier; fince the foldier originally proceeded from the Brabmen.

321. 'From the waters arole fire; from the prieft, the foldier; from ftone, iron: their allpenetrating force is ineffectual in the places whence they respectively sprang.

322. The military clafs cannot profper without the facerdotal, nor can the facerdotal be raifed without the military: both claffes by cordial union, are exalted in this world and in the next.

323. SHOULD the king be near bis end through fome incurable difeafe, be must bestow on the priests all his riches accumulated from legal fines; and, having duly committed his kingdom to his fon, let him feek death in battle, or, if there be no war, by abstaining from food.

CHAPTER THE TENTH.

On the mixed Class; and on Times of Distress.

LET the three twice born claffes, remain ing firm in their feveral duties, carefully read the Véda; but a Brábmen must explain it to them, not a man of the other two claffes: this is an established rule.
 2. 'The Brábmen must know the means of fublistence ordained by law for all the classes,

" and must declare them to the rest: let him " likewife act in conformity to law.

3. 'From priority of birth, from fuperiority of 'origin, from a more exact knowledge of fcrip-'ture, and from a diffinction in the facrificial 'thread, the Brábmen is the lord of all claffes.

4. 'The three twice born claffes are the facer'dotal, the military, and the commercial; but 'the fourth, or fervile, is once born, that is, has 'no fecond birth from the gáyatrì, and wears no
'thread: nor is there a fifth pure clafs.
5. 'IN all claffes they, and they only, who are born, in a direct order, of wives equal in clafs, U 'and • and virgins at the time of marriage, are • to be confidered as the fame in class with their • fathers :

6. 'Sons, begotten by twice born men, on wo-'men of the clafs next immediately below them, 'wife legiflators call fimilar, not the fame, in clafs 'with their parents, becaufe they are degraded to a middle rank between both, by the lownefs of their mothers: they are named in order Múrdhábhifhicta, Máhifhya, and Carana, or Cáyaft'ha; and their feveral employments are teaching military exercifes; mufick, aftronomy, and keeping berds; and attendance on princes.

7. Such is the primeval rule for the fons of women one degree lower than their bulbands: for the fons of women two or three degrees lower, let this rule of law be known.

8. From a Bráhmen, on a wife of the Vaifya clafs, is born a fon called Ambashi'ha, or Vaidya, on a Súdrá wife a Nisháda, named alfo Párasava:

9. From a Chatriya, on a wife of the Súdra clafs, fprings a creature called Ugra, with a nature partly warlike and partly fervile, ferocious in his manners, cruel in his acts.

10. • The fons of a Bråhmen by women of three • lower classes, of a Chatriya by women of two, • and of a Vaisya by one lower class, are called • Apasadáh, or degraded below their fathers.

11. 'From a Clhatriya, by a Brábmeni wife, fprings a Súta by birth; from a Vailya, by a military or facerdotal wife, fpring a Mágadha and 'a Vaidéha.

12. ' From a Súdra, on women of the commercial, military, and prieftly claffes, are born fons

290

- fons of a mixed breed, 'called A'yógava, Chaitri, and Chandála, the loweft of mortals.
- and Coanalia, the lower of mortals.
  13. 'As the Ambafot'ha and Ugra, born in a. direct order, with one class between those of their parents, are confidered in law, fo are the Chattri, and the Vaidéba, born in an inverse order with one intermediate class; and all four may be touched without impurity.
  14. 'Those fons of the twice born, who are begotten on women without an interval (Antara) between the class mentioned in order, the wife call Anantaras, giving them a diftinst name from the lower degree of their

15. 'From a Brábmen, by a girl of the Ugra tribe, is born an A'vríta; by one of the Ambafi<sup>b</sup>ba tribe, an A'bbíra; by one of the A'yógava tribe, a Dbigvana.
16. 'The A'yógava, the C/hattri, and the Chan-

- <sup>6</sup> dála, the loweft of men, fpring from a Súdra in <sup>6</sup> an inverse order of the classes, and are therefore <sup>6</sup> all three excluded from the performance of obsequies
- to their ancestors:

17. ' From a Vailya the Mágadha and Vaidéha, ' from a Chatriya the Súta only, are born in an

- inverse order ; and they are three other fons ex-
- cluded from funeral rites to their fathers.
  18. ' The fon of a Ni/háda by a woman of the Súdra claís, is by tribe a Puccaja; but the fon of a Súdra by a Nifhádì woman, is named Cuccutaca.

19. 'One born of a Chattri by an Ugrá, is

- called Swapaca; and one begotten by a Vaidéba
- on an Ambashthi wife is called Vena.

20. 'Thofe, whom the twice born beget on * women of equal claffes, but who perform not U 2 'the

- ' the proper ceremonies of affuming the thread, and
- the like, people denominate Vrátyas, or excluded from the gáyatrà.
- 21. ' From such an outcast Bråhmen springs a
- fon of a finful nature, who in different countries
- ' is named a Bbúrjacantaca, an A'vantya, a Vátad-
- bána, a Pußpadha and a Saic'ha:
   22. From fuch an outcast C/hatriya comes a
- fon called a J'balla, a Malla, a Nich'bivi, a Nata,
- a Carana, a C'bafa, and a Dravira: 23. • From fuch an outcast Vaifya is born a fon
- called Sudbanwan, Charya, Carufba, Vijanman,
- " Maitra, and Satwata. 24. By intermixtures of the classes, by their
- ' marriages with women who ought not to be
- ' married, and by their omiffion of prefcribed
- ' duties, impure classes have been formed.
- 25. 'THOSE men of mingled births, who were born in the inverse order of classes, and who intermarry among themselves, I will now compendiously describe.
- 26. ' The Súta, the Vaidéha, and the Chandála, ' that loweft of mortals, the Mágadha, the Chattri
- by tribe, and the A'yógava.
- 27. These fix beget fimilar fons on women of their own classes, or on women of the fame class with their mothers; and they produce the like from women of the two highest classes, and of the lowest:

28. As a twice born fon may fpring from a Bráhmen, by women of two claffes out of three, a fimilar fon, when there is no interval, and an equal fon from a woman of his own clafs, it is thus in the cafe of the low tribes in order.

29. ' Thofe

 tribes, reciprocally, very many defpicable and abject races even more foul than their begetters. 30. ' Even as a Súdra begets, on a Bråbmen? ' woman, a fon more vile than himfelf, thus any other low man begets, on women of the four · claffes, a fon yet lower. 21. ' The fix low claffes, marrying inverfely, beget fifteen yet lower tribes, the bafe producing * ftill bafer ; and in a direst order they produce fifteen e more. 32. ' A Dafyn, or outcast of any pure class, begets, on an A'yógawi woman, a Sairindbra, who fhould know how to attend and to drefs his " mafter; though not a flave, he must live by " flavish work, and may also gain subfistence by catching wild beafts in toils: 33. ' A Vaidéba begets on her a fweet-voiced . "Maitréyaca, who, ringing a bell at the appear-ance of dawn, continually praises great men: 34. ' A Nilhada begets on her a Margava or " Dáfa, who subsists by his labour in boats, and ' is named Caiverta by those who dwell in A'ryá-* verta, or the land of the venerable. 35. ' Those three of a base tribe are severally ' begotten on A'yogavi women, who wear the clothes of the deceased and eat reprehensible food. 36. ' From a Nifháda springs, by a woman of the

" Vaidéha tribe, a Cárávara, who cuts leather, and ' from a Vaidéba spring, by women of the Caravara " and Nishada casts, an Andbra and a Méda, who ' must live without the town.

37. ' From a Chandála, by a Vaidébi woman, ' comes a Pándusúpáca, who works with cane and reeds; and from a Nifbada, an Abindica, who · acts as a jailor.

38. ' From

38. • From a Chandála, by a Puccas; woman, • is born a Sópáca, who lives by punifhing cri-• minals condemned by the king, a finful wretch • ever defpifed by the virtuous.

39. 'A Nifhádi woman, by a Chandála, produces a fon called Antyavafáyin, employed in places for burning the dead, contemned even by the contemptible.

40. 'Thefe, among various mixed claffes, have been defcribed by their feveral fathers and mothers; and, whether concealed or open, they may be known by their occupations.

41. Six fons, three begotten on women of the fame clafs, and three on women of lower claffes, must perform the duties of twice born men; but those who are born in an inverse order, and called low born, are equal, in respect of duty, to mere Súdras.

42. <sup>6</sup> By the force of extreme devotion and of <sup>6</sup> exalted fathers, all of them may rife in time to <sup>6</sup> high birth, as, by the reverfe, they may fink to a <sup>6</sup> lower flate, in every age among mortals in this <sup>5</sup> inferiour world.

43. 'THE following races of Chatriyas, by their omiffion of holy rites, and by feeing no Bráhmens, have gradually funk among men, to the loweft of the four claffes :

44. ' Paund'racas, Odras, and Draviras; Cámbójas, Yavanas, and Sacas; Páradas, Pablavas, Chinas, Cirátas, Deradas, and C'hasas.

45. 'All those tribes of men, who sprang from the mouth, the arm, the thigh, and the soot of BRAHMA', but who became outcasts by baving negletled their duties, are called Dasyus, or plunderers, whether they speak the language of Mlécheb'bas, or that of Aryas.

46. THOSE

46. ' THOSE fons of the twice born who are faid to be degraded, and who are confidered as low born, shall subsit only by such employments.

' as the twice born defpife, 47. ' Sútas must live by managing horfes and by driving cars; Ambasht'has, by curing dif-" orders; Vaidéhas, by waiting on women; Má-" gadbas, by travelling with merchandize ; 48. ' Nifbadas, by catching fifh ; an A yogava. by the work of a carpenter ; a Méda, an Andbra, ' and (the fons of a Brahman by wives of the Vai-' deba and Ugra claffes, respectively called) a Chun-· chu and a Madgu, by flaying beafts of the foreft ; 49. ' A Chattri, an Ugra, and a Puccala, by * killing or confining fuch animals as live in holes: ' Dhigvanas, by felling leather ; Venas, by ftriking · musical instruments : 50. ' Near large publick trees, in places for burning the dead, on mountains, and in groves, f let those tribes dwell, generally known, and en-" gaged in their feveral works. 51. ' THE abode of a Chandalu and a Swapaca ' must be out of the town; they must not have ' the use of entire veffels; their fole wealth must ' be dogs and affes : 52. ' Their clothes must be the mantles of the ' deceased; their dishes for food, broken pots;

' their ornaments, rufty iron; continually must ' they roam from place to place :

53. Let no man, who regards his duty religious and civil, hold any intercourfe with them;

' let their transactions' be confined to themselves,

" and their marriages only between equals :

54. ' Let food be given to them in potsherds,

' but not by the hands of the giver ; and let them

f not walk by night in cities or towns :

55. 'By day they may walk about for the purpole of work, diftinguished by the king's badges; and they shall carry out the corple of every one who dies without kindred: such is the fixed rule.

56. 'They shall always kill those who are to be flain by the fentence of the law, and by the royal warrant; and let them take the clothes of the flain, their beds, and their ornaments.

57. 'Him, who was born of a finful mother, and confequently in a low clafs, but is not openly known, who, though worthlefs in truth, bears the femblance of a worthy man, let people difcover by his acts:

58. Want of virtuous dignity, harshness of fpeech, cruelty, and habitual neglect of preforibed duties, betray, in this world, the son of a forminal mother.

59. 'Whether a man of debafed birth affume the character of his father or of his mother, he can at no time conceal his origin:

60. 6 He, whole family had been exalted, but whole parents were criminal in marrying, has a bale nature, according as the offence of bis mother was great or fmall.

61. In whatever country fuch men are born, as deftroy the purity of the four claffes, that country foon perifhes, together with the natives of it.

62. Cefertion of life, without reward, for the fake of preferving a prieft or a cow, a woman or a child, may caufe the beatitude of those baseborn tribes.

63. Avoiding all injury to animated beings, veracity, abilinence from theft, and from unjuft feizure of property, cleanlines, and command over • over the bodily organs, form the compendious. fystem of duty which MENU has ordained for · the four claffes. 64. SHOULD the tribe fprung from a Brábmen · by a Sudra woman, produce a fuccession of children · by the marriages of its women with other Bra-" mens, the low tribe shall be raifed to the highest " in the feventh generation. 65. As the fon of a Sudra may thus attain the " rank of a Brábmen, and as the fon of a Brábmen " may fink to a level with Sudras, even fo must it ' be with him who fprings from a Chatriya; even ' fo with him who was born of a Vaifya. 66. ' IF there be a doubt, as to the preference · between him who was begotten by a Brábmen · for his pleafure, but not in wedlock, on a Sudra woman, and him who was begotten by a Súdra · on a Brábmeni. 67. ' Thus is it removed : he, who was begotten by an exalted man on a bafe woman, " may, by his good acts, become refpectable; but he, who was begotten on an exalted woman by f a base man, must himself continue base: 68. ' Neither of the two (as the law is fixed) ' shall be girt with a facred string; not the former, ' because his mother was low; nor the fecond, f because the order of the classes was inverted. 69. ' As good grain, fpringing from good foil, is in all respects excellent, thus a man, springing from a respectable father by a respectable mother, has a claim to the whole inftitution of the twice born. 70. Some fages give a preference to the grain; others to the field; and others confider * both field and grain; on this point the decifion

71. Grain,

71. Grain, cast into bad ground, wholly perishes, and a good field, with no grain sown in it, is a mere heap of clods;

72. But fince, by the virtue of eminent fathers, even the fons of wild animals, as Rifhyafringa, and others, have been transformed into holy men revered and extolled, the paternal fide, therefore, prevails.

- 73. 'BRAHMA' himfelf, having compared a 'Súdra, who performs the duties of the twice-'born, with a twice born man, who does the acts of a Súdra, faid: "Those two are neither equal "nor unequal," that is, they are neither equal in 'rank, nor unequal in bad conduct.
- 74. ' LET fuch Brabmens as are intent on the ' means of attaining the supreme godhead, and
- · firm in their own duties, completely perform, in
- order, the fix following acts:

75. Reading the Vidas, and teaching others to read them, facrificing, and affifting others to facrifice, giving to the poor, if themselves have enough, and accepting gifts from the virtuous, if themselves are poor, are the fix prefcribed acts of the first born class;

76. 'But, among thole fix acts of a Bráhmen; ' three are his means of fubliftence; affifting to ' facrifice, teaching the Védas, and receiving gifts ' from a pure-handed giver.

77. 'Three acts of duty-ceafe with the Bráb-"men, and belong not to the Chatriya; teaching the Védas, officiating at a facrifice, and, thirdly; receiving prefents:

78. Those three are also, by the fixed rule of 1 law, forbidden to the Vai/ya; fince MENU, the 1 lord of all men, prefcribed not those acts to the 1 two classes, military and commercial.

79. ' The

79. ' The means of fublistence, peculiar to the * Chatriya, are bearing arms, either held for ftriking or miffile, to the Vaifya, merchandize, at-' tending on cattle, and agriculture : but, with a " view to the next life, the duties of both are alms-' giving, reading, facrificing. 80. Among the feveral occupations for gaining " a livelibood ; the most commendable respectively for the facerdotal, military, and mercantile ' classes, are teaching the Véda, defending the people, and commerce, or keeping herds and · flocks. 81. ' Yet a Brabmen, unable to subfist by his duties just mentioned, may live by the duty of ' a foldier; for that is the next in rank. 82. ' If it be asked, how he must live, should * he be unable to get a fubfiftence by either of "those employments ; the answer is, he may fubfift as a mercantile man, applying himfelf in perfon to tillage and attendance on cattle : 82. ' But a Bråbmen and a Chatriya, obliged ' to fubfift by the acts of a Vai/ya, must avoid with " care, if they can live by keeping berds, the bulinefs · of tillage, which gives great pain to fentient crea-. tures, and is dependant on the labour of others, as bulls and fo forth. 84. Some are of opinion, that agriculture is excellent; but it is a mode of fubfiftence which the benevolent greatly blame; for the iron-" mouthed pieces of wood not only wound the earth, but the creatures dwelling in it.

85. If, through want of a virtuous livelihood, they cannot follow laudable occupations, they may then gain a competence of wealth by felling commodities ufually fold by merchants, avoiding what ought to be avoided.

86. ' They

86. 'They must avoid felling liquids of all forts, dreffed grain, feeds of tila, stones, falt, cattle, and human creatures;

87. ' All woven cloth dyed red, cloth made of fana, of chumá bark, and of wool, even though ' not red; fruit, roots, and medicinal plants;

88. Water, iron, poifon, flefh-meat; the moon-plant, and perfumes of any fort; milk, honey, butter-milk, clarified butter, oil of tila, " wax, fugar, and blades of cufa-grafs;

80. ' All beafts of the foreft, as deer and the · like; ravenous beafts, birds, and fish; fpirituous · liquors, nili, or indigo, and lachá, or lac; and · all beafts with uncloven hoofs.

90, ' But the Brabmen husbandman may at * pleafure fell pure tila-feeds for the purpofe of · holy rites, if he keep them not long with a hope " of more gain, and shall have produced them by · his own culture : 91. ' If he apply feeds of tila to any purpose

' but food, anointing, and facred oblations, he ' shall be plunged, in the shape of a worm, together with his parents, into the ordure of · dogs.

92. ' By felling flesh-meat, licsha, or falt, ' a Brahmen immediately finks low, by felling milk three days, he falls to a level with a Súdra; 93. And by felling the other forbidden com-" modities with his own free will, he affumes in " this world, after feven nights, the nature of a " mere Vaifya.

94. ' Fluid things may, however, be bartered for other fluids but not falt for any thing liquid ; ' fo may dreffed grain for grain undreffed, and tilafeeds for grain in the hufk, equal weights or ' meafures being given and taken.

95. " A MILITARY man, in diftrefs, may fub. " fift by all these means, but at no time must " he have recourse to the highest, or facerdotal < function. 96. ' A man of the lowest class, who, through · covetoufnefs, lives by the acts of the higheft, let the king ftrip of all his wealth and inftantly · banifh : 97. ' His own office, though defectively per-' formed, is preferable to that of another, though · performed completely; for he, who without neceffity discharges the duties of another class. immediately forfeits his own. 08. A MERCANTILE man, unable to fubfift ' by his own duties, may defcend even to the ' fervile acts of a Sudra, taking care never to do " what ought never to be done : but, when he has gained a competence, let him depart from · fervice. 09. " A MAN of the fourth class, not finding ' employment by waiting on the twice born, while · his wife and fon are tormented with hunger. · may fubfilt by handicrafts : 100. ' Let him principally follow those mecha-" nical occupations, as joinery and majonry, or those ' various practical arts, as painting and writing, by following of which he may ferve the twice born. 101. ' SHOULD a Brahmen, afflicted and pining through want of food, choose rather to remain fixed in the path of his own duty, than to adopt the · practice of Vailyas, let him act in this manner : 102. ' The Brabmen, having fallen into diftrefs, " may receive gifts from any perfon whatever, for by no facred rule can it be fhown, that ab-· folute purity can be fullied. 103. ' From

103. 'From interpreting the Véda, from offici-'ating at facrifices, or from taking prefents, though 'in modes generally difapproved, no fin is com-'mitted by priefts in diffrefs; for they are as pure 'as fire or water.

104. 'He who receives food, when his life could not otherwife be fuftained, from any man whatever, is no more tainted by fin than the fubtil ether by mud:

105. AJI'GARTA, dying with hunger, was going to deftroy his own fon (named Su'NAH-'s'E'P'HA) by felling bim for fome cattle, yet he was guilty of no crime, fince he only fought a re-'medy againft familhing:

106. VA'MADE'VA who well knew right and wrong, was by no means rendered impure, though defirous, when oppreffed with bunger, of eating the flesh of dogs for the prefervation of his life:

107. BHARADWA'JA, eminent in devotion, when he and his fon were almost flarved in a dreary forest, accepted feveral cows from the carpenter VRIDHU:

108. VISWA'MITRA too, than whom none better knew the diffinctions between virtue and vice, refolved, when he was perifhing with hunger, to eat the haunch of a dog, which he had received from a CHANDA'LA.

109. Among the acts generally difapproved, namely, accepting prefents from low men, affifting them to facrifice, and explaining the fcripture to them, the receipt of prefents is the meaneft in this world, and the most blamed in a Bráhmen fatter his prefent life;

110. ' Becaufe affifting to facrifice and explain-

* ing the scripture; are two acts always performed ' for those, whose minds have been improved by " the facred initiation ; but gifts are also received ' from a servile man of the lowest class. 111. ' The guilt incurred by affifting low men to facrifice, and by teaching them the fcripture, ' is removed by repetitions of the gavatri and ob-' lations to fire; but that, incurred by accepting gifts from them, is explated only by abandoning the gifts and by rigorous devotion. 112. ' It were better for a Brabmen, who could ' not maintain himfelf, to glean ears and grains, after harvest, from the field of any perfon whatever: gleaning whole ears would be better than · accepting a prefent, and picking up fingle grains • would be ftill more laudable. 113. ' Brabmens, who keep house, and are in " want of any metals, except gold and filver, or of " articles for good u/es, may afk the king for them, ' if he be of the military class; but a king, known · to be avaricious and unwilling to give, must not · be folicited. 114. ' The foremost, in order, of these things " may be received more innocently than that which ' follows it : a field untilled, a tilled field, cows, goats, fheep, precious metals or gems, new grain, · dreffed grain. 115. ' THERE are feven virtuous means of ac-· quiring property; fucceffion, occupancy or donation, and purchase or exchange, which are al-· lowed to all class; conquests, which is peculiar to the military class; lending at interest, husban-· dry or commerce, which belong to the mercantile ' class; and acceptance of prefents, by the facer-· dotal class, from respectable men.

116. ' Learning,

116. CLearning, except that contained in the foriptures, art, as mixing perfumes and the like, work for wages, menial fervice, attendance on cattle, traffick, agriculture, content with little, alms, and receiving high intereft on money, are ten modes of sublistence in times of distres.

117. ' Neither a priest nor a military man, · though distreffed, must receive interest on loans, • but each of them, if he pleafe, may pay the small

- s interest permitted by law, on borrowing for fome
- · pious ufe, to the finful man who demands it.

118. ' A MILITARY king, who takes even a " fourth part of the crops of bis realm at a time of ' urgent neceffity, as of war or invasion, and protects his people to the utmost of his power, commits no fin :

110. ' His peculiar duty is conquest, and he " must not recede from battle; fo that while he · defends by his arms the merchant and husband-" man, he may levy the legal tax as the price of · protection.

120. ' The tax on the mercantile class, which ' in times of prosperity must be only a twelfth part of · their crops, and a fiftieth of their personal profits, " may be an eighth of their crops in a time of distres, ' or a fixth, which is the medium, or even a fourth ' in great publick adversity; but a twentieth of " their gains on money, and other moveables, is " the higheft tax : ferving men, artifans, and me-' chanicks must affist by their labour, but at no · time pay taxes.

121. IF a Súdra want a subsistence, and cannot " attend a priest, he may ferve a Chatriya; or, if · be cannot wait on a foldier by birth, he may gain " his livelihood by ferving an opulent Vaijya.

122. ' To him, who ferves Brahmens with a " view to a heavenly reward, or even with a view f to both this life and the next, the union of the " word Brahmen with his name of fervant will af-· furedly bring fuccefs. 123. 4 Attendance on Brahmens is pronounced the beft work of a Sudra: whatever elfe . he may perform will comparatively avail him ' nothing. 124. ' They must allot him a fit maintenance · according to their own circumstances, after confidering his ability, his exertions, and the ' number of those whom he must provide with · nourifhment : 125. What remains of their dreffed rice must ' be given to him ; and apparel which they have ' worn, and the refuse of their grain, and their old household furniture. 126. ' THERE is no guilt in a man of the fer-" vile class who eats leeks and other forbidden vege-· tables : he must not have the facred investiture : · he has no bufinels with the duty of making obla-' tions to fire and the like; but there is no prohibi-' tion against bis offering dressed grain as a facrifice, · by way of difcharging his own duty. 127. ' Even Sudras, who are anxious to perform their entire duty, and, knowing what they · fhould perform, imitate the practice of good " men in the housebold facraments, but without any · holy text, except ibole containing praise and faluta-" tion, are fo far from finning, that they acquire · just applause : 128. ' As a Súdra, without injuring another ' man, performs the lawful acts of the twice · born, even thus, without being cenfured, he gains exaltation in this world and in the next. 120. ' No х

129. 'No fuperflucies collection of wealth muft be made by a Súdra, even though he has power to make it, fince a fervile man, who has amaffed riches, becomes proud, and, by his infolence or neglect, gives pain even to Bráhmens. 130. 'Such, as have been fully declared, are the feveral duties of the four claffes in diffrefs for fubliftence; and, if they perform them ex' actly, they shall attain the highest beatitude.

131. ' Thus has been propounded the fystem

- " of duties, religious and civil, ordained for all
- claffes: I next will declare the pure law of ex-• piation for fin.'

CHAPTER THE ELEVENTH.

On Penance and Expiation.

1. 'Him, who intends to marry for the fake of having iffue; him, who wiftes to make a facrifice; him, who travels; him, who has given all his wealth at a facred rite; him, who defires to maintain his preceptor, his father, or his mother; him, who needs a maintenance for himfelf, when he first reads the Veda; and him, who is afflicted with illnes;

2. 'These nine Bråbmens let mankind confider 'as virtuous mendicants, called fnåtacas; and, 'to relieve their wants, let gifts of cattle or gold be presented to them, in proportion to their learning:

3. • To thefe most excellent Bråbmens must • rice also be given, with holy prefents at oblations • to fire, and within the confecrated circle; but the • drefied rice, which others are to receive, must be • delivered on the outside of the facred hearth : • gold and the like may be given any where. 4. • On such Bråbmens as well know the Véda.

let the king béftow, as it becomes him, jewels of all forts, and the folemn reward for officiating at the facrifice.

5. ' HE,

ON PENANCE

5. • HE, who has a wife, and, having begged • money to defray bis nuptial expences, marries an-• other woman, fhall have no advantage but fen-• fual enjoyment: the offspring belongs to the • beftower of the gift.

6. 'LET every man, according to his ability, give wealth to Brábmens detached from the world and learned in foripture: fuch a giver fhall attain heaven after this life.

7. ' HE alone is worthy to drink the juice of the moon-plant, who keeps a provision of grain fufficient to fupply those, whom the law commands him to nourish, for the term of three. years or more;

8. 'But a twice-born man, who keeps a lefs 'provision of grain, yet prefumes to tafte the 'juice of the moon-plant, shall gather no fruit from that facrament, even though he taste it 'at the first, or folemn, much lefs at any occasional ceremony.

9. 'HE, who beftows gifts on ftrangers, with a view to worldly fame, while he fuffers his family to live in diffres, though he has power to fupport them, touches his lips with honey, but fwallows poifon; fuch virtue is counterfeit:

10. 'Even what he does for the fake of his future fpiritual body, to the injury of thole whom he is bound to maintain, fhall bring him ultimate milery both in this life and in the next. 11. 'SHOULD a facrifice, performed by any twice born facrificer, and by a Bråhmen elfpecially, be imperfect from the want of fome ingredient, during the reign of a prince who knows the law,

12. ' Let him take that article, for the completion

· pletion of the facrifice, from the houfe of any · Vaifya, who poffeffes confiderable herds, but ' neither facrifices, nor drinks the juice of the * moon-plant : 12. ' If fuch a Vaifya be not near, he may take two or three fuch neceffary articles, at pleafure, from the house of a Sudra: fince a Sudra has ' no bufinefs with folemn rites. 14. ' Even from the house of a Brahmen or a · Chatriya, who poffeffes a hundred cows, but has no confectated fire, or a thousand cows, but performs no facrifice with the moon-plant, let a · prieft, without scruple, take the articles wanted. 14. ' From another Brahmen, who continually receives prefents but never gives, let him take " fuch ingredients of the facrifice, if not beflowed on request : so shall his fame be spread abroad. and his habits of virtue increase. 16. ' Thus, likewife, may a Brabmen, who has not eaten at the time of fix meals, or bas fasted three whole days, take at the time of the feventh " meal, or on the fourth morning, from the man who behaves basely by not offering him food enough to fupply him till the morrow : 17. ' He may take it from the floor, where the grain is trodden out of the hufk, or from 6 the field, or from the house, or from any place " whatever; but, if the owner alk why he takes it, the caule of the taking must be declared.

18. 'The wealth of a virtuous Bráhmen muft at no time be leized by a Chatriya; but, having no other means to complete a fairifice, he may take the goods of any man who acts wickedly,
'and of any who performs not his religious duties:
19. 'He who takes property from the bad, for the purpose before-mentioned, and beftows it on the X a 'good, good, transforms himfelf into a boat, and car-

• ries both the good and the bad over a fea of ca-• lamities.

20. Wealth, poffeffed by men for the performance of factifices, the wife call the property of the gods; but the wealth of men, who perform no factifice, they confider as the property of demons.

21. Let no pious king fine the man who takes by flealth, or by force; what he wants to make a facilitie perfect; fince it is the king's folly, that causes the hunger or wants of a Brahmen:

22. 'Having reckoned up the perfons, whom the Bråkmen is obliged to fupport, having afcertained his divine knowledge and moral conduct, let the king allow him a fuitable maintenance from his own household;

23. And, having appointed him a maintenance, let the king protect him on all fides; for he gains from the Brahmen whom he protects, a fixth part of the reward for his virtue.

24. LET no Brahmen ever beg a gift from a Súdra; for, if he perform a facrifice after fuch begging, he fhall, in the next life, be born a Chandala.

25. The Bråhmen who begs any articles for a facrifice, and difpoles not of them all for that purpole, fhall become a kite or a crow for a hundred years.

26. <sup>6</sup> Any evil hearted wretch, who, through <sup>6</sup> covetouinefs, fhall feize the property of the gods <sup>6</sup> or of Brahmens, fhall feed in another world on <sup>6</sup> the orts of vultures.

27. 'THE factifice Vaifwanari must be conftantly performed on the first day of the new year, or on the new moon of Chaitra, as an ' expiation expiation for having omitted, through mere for-

- " getfulne/s, the appointed facrifices of cattle and
- the rites of the moon-plant :

28. 'But a twice born man, who, without neceffity, does an act allowed only in a cafe of neceffity, reaps no fruit from it hereafter : thus

· has it been decided.

29. 'By the Vifwédévas, by the Sádhyas, and by eminent Rĭ/his of the facerdotal clafs, the fubfitute was adopted for the principal act, when they were apprehensive of dying in times of imminent peril;
30. 'But no reward is prepared in a future

30. But no reward is prepared in a future flate for that ill-minded man, who, when able to perform the principal facrifice, has recourfe to the fubflitute.

31. • A PRIEST, who well knows the law, • needs not complain to the king of any grievous • injury; fince, even by his own power, he may • chaftife those who injure him :

32. 'His own power, which depends on him/elf alone, is mightier than the royal power, which depends on other men: by his own might, therefore, may a Brabmen coerce his foes.

33. 'He may use, without hefitation, the powerful charms revealed to At'HARVAN, and by bim to ANGIRAS; for speech is the weapon of a Brahmen: with that he may destroy his oppressions.

34. A foldier may avert danger from himfelf by the firength of his arm; a merchant and a mechanick, by their property; but the chief of the twice born, by holy texts and oblations to fire.

35. A prieft, who performs his dutics, who i juily corrects bis children and pupils, who advifes X 4 · expiations expiations for fin, and who loves all animated creatures, is truly called a Bráhmen: to him let no man fay any thing unpropitious, nor ufe any offenfive language.

36. 'Let not a girl, nor a young woman, mar-'ried or unmarried, nor a man with little learning, nor a dunce, perform an oblation to fire; nor a 'man difeafed, nor one uninvefted with the facri-'ficial firing;

37. 'Since any of those perfons, who make fuch an oblation, shall fall into a region of torture, together with him who fuffers his hearth to be used: he alone, who perfectly knows the facred ordinances, and has read all the Védas, must officiate at an oblation to holy fire.

38. A Bråhmen with abundant wealth, who prefents not the prieft that hallows his fire, with a horfe confectated to PRAJA'PATT, becomes equal to one who has no fire hallowed.

39. 'Let him, who believes the fcripture, and keeps his organs in fubjection, perform all other pious acts; but never in this world let him offer a facrifice with trifling gifts to the officiating prieft:

40. 'The organs of fenfe and action, reputation in this life, a heavenly manfion in the next, life itfelf, a great name after death, children and cattle, are all deftroyed by a facrifice offered with trifling prefents: let no man, therefore, facrifice without liberal gifts.

41. • THE prieft who keeps a facred hearth, • but voluntarily neglects the morning and evening • oblations to his fires, mult perform, in the mainer • to be defiribed, the penance chandrayana for one • month; fince that neglect is equally finful with • the flaughter of a fon.

42. ' They

42. ' They who receive property from a Sudra, · for the performance of rites to confectated fire. are contemned, as ministers of the bafe, by all ' fuch as pronounce texts of the Véda: 43. ' Of those ignorant priefts, who ferve the ' holy fire for the wealth of a Sudra, the giver ' fhall always tread on the foreheads, and thus ' pais over miferies in the gloom of death. 44. ' EVERY man, who does not an act pre-' scribed, or does an act forbidden, or is guilty ' of excels, even in legal gratifications of the fenfes, · must perform an expiatory penance. 45. Some of the learned confider an expiation ' as confined to involuntary fin; but others, from the evidence of the Veda, hold it effectual even * in the cafe of a voluntary offence : 46. A fin, involuntarily committed, is re-' moved by repeating certain texts of the fcrip-' ture; but a fin committed intentionally, through frange infatuation, by harsh penances of dif-· ferent forts. 47. ' IF a twice born man, by the will of God in this world, or from his natural birth, have · any corporeal mark of an expiable fin committed in this or a former flate, he must hold no in-* tercourfe with the virtuous, while his penance remains unperformed. 48. "Some evil-minded perfons, for fins com-' mitted in this life, and fome for bad actions in a preceding state, fuffer a morbid change in · their bodies : 49. ' A stealer of gold from a Brahmen has " whitlows on his nails; a drinker of fpirits, black ' teeth; the flayer of a Bråbmen, a marasmus; the

- ' violator of his guru's bed, a deformity in the
- ' generative organs;

50. · A

50. 'A malignant informer, fetid ulcers in his 'nostrils; a falfe detractor, stinking breath; a 'stealer of grain, the defect of some limb; a 'mixer of bad wares with good, some redundant 'member;

51. 'A stealer of dressed grain, dyspepsia; a ftealer of holy words, or an unauthorized reader of the foriptures, dumbnes; a stealer of clothes, leprofy; a horse-stealer, lamenes;

52. The stealer of a lamp, total blindness; the mischievous extinguisher of it, blindness in one eye; a delighter in hurting fentient creatures, perpetual illness; an adulterer, windy fwellings in his limbs:

53. Thus, according to the diverfity of actions, are born men defpifed by the good, ftupid, dumb, blind, deaf, and deformed.

54. 'Penance, therefore, must invariably be performed for the fake of expiation; fince they, who have not expiated their fins, will again fpring to birth with difgraceful marks.

55. KILLING a Bråhmen, drinking forbidden liquor, ftealing gold from a prieft, adultery with the wife of a father, natural or fpiritual, and affociating with fuch as commit those offences, wise legislators must declare to be crimes in the highest degree, in respect of those after mentioned, but less than incest in a direct line, and some others.

56. 'FALSE boafting of a high tribe, malignant information, before the king, of a criminal who "mult fuffer death, and falfely accufing a fpiritual preceptor, are crimes in the fecond degree, and nearly equal to killing a Bráhmen.

57. 'Forgetting the texts of fcripture, flowing 'contempt of the Véda, giving false evidence 'withwithout a bad motive, killing a friend without malice, eating things prohibited, or, from their manifelf impurity, unfit to be talted, are fix crimes nearly equal to drinking fpirits; but perjury and homicide require, in atrocious cafes, the har/heft expitation.
58. 'To appropriate a thing deposited or lent for a time, a human creature, a horfe, precious metals, a field, a diamond, or any other gem, is nearly equal to flealing the gold of a Bráhmen.
59. 'Carnal commerce with fifters by the fame mother, with little girls, with women of the loweft mixed clafs, or with the wives of a friend, or of a fon, the wife must confider as nearly equal to a violation of the paternal bed.

60. SLAYING a bull or cow, facrificing what ought not to be facrificed, adultery, felling onefelf, deferting a preceptor, a mother, a father, or a fon, omitting to read the fcripture, and neglect of the fires prefcribed by the Dhermafaftra only,

61. The marriage of a younger brother before the elder, and that elder's omiffion to marry before the younger, giving a daughter to either of them, and officiating at their nuptial facrifice, 62 Defiling a damfel, ufury, want of perfect chaftiry in a ftudent, felling a holy pool or garden, a wife, or a child,

63. Omitting the faceed investiture, abandoning a kinfnian, teaching the Véda for hire, learning it from a hired teacher, felling commodities that ought not to be fold,

64. 'Working in mines of any fort, engaging in dykes, bridges, or other great mechanical works, fpoiling medicinal plants repeatedly, fubfifting by the barlotry of a wife, offering facrifices and preparing charms to deftroy the innocent, 65. 'Cutting

65. Cutting down green trees for firewood, • performing holy rites with a felfish view merely, • and eating prohibited food once without a previous • defign,

66. • NegleCling to keep up the confectated • fire, ftealing any valuable thing befides gold, non-• payment of the three debts, application to the • books of a falfe religion, and exceffive attention • to mufick or dancing,

67. 'Stealing grain, bafe metals, or cattle, familiarity, by the twice born, with women who have drunk inebriating liquor, killing without malice a woman, a Sudra, a Vailya, or a Chatriyay and denying a future flate of rewards and punifhments, are all crimes in the third degree, but bigher or lower according to circumfances.

68. GIVING pain to a Bráhmen, fmelling at any fpirituous liquor or any thing extremely fetid and unfit to be fmelt, cheating, and unnatural practices with a male, are confidered as caufing a lofs of clafs.

69. 'To kill an afs, a horfe, a camel, a deer, 'an elephant, a goat, a fheep, a fifh, a fnake, or 'a buffalo, is declared an offence which degrades the killer to a mixed tribe.

79: ACCEPTING prefents from despicable men, illegal traffick, attendance on a Súdra master, and speaking falsehood, must be confidered as causes of exclusion from social reparts. 71. KILLING an infect, small or large, a worm, or a bird, cating what has been brought in the fame basket with spirituous liquor, stealing fruit, wood, or flowers, and great perturbation of mind on trifling occasions, are offences which cause defilement.

72. ' You and it

72. ' You shall now be completely instructed · in those penances, by which all the fins just " mentioned are expiable.

73. ' IF a Brábmen have killed a man of the " facerdotal clafs, without malice prepenfe, the flayer · being far superiour to the slain in good qualities, he " mult himfelf make a hut in a foreft and dwell in · it twelve whole years, fubfifting on alms for the · purification of his foul, placing near him, as a · token of bis crime, the skull of the flain, if be can e procure it, or, if not, any human skull. The time • of penance for thethree lower classes must be twentyfour, thirty-fix, and forty-eight years. 74. ' Or, if the flayer be of the military class, he ' may voluntarily expose himfelf as a mark to

" archers, who know bis intention; or, according to

- · circumstances, may cast himself head-long thrice.
- · or even till he die, into blazing fire. 75. ' Or, if he be a king, and flew a priest with-
- " out malice or knowledge of bis class, he may per-
- . form, with prefents of great wealth, one of the
- · following facrifices ; an Afwamedba, or a Swerjit.
- ' or a Gosava, or an Abbijit, or a Viswajit, or a " Trivrit, or an Agnishtut.

76. ' Or, to explate the guilt of killing a prieft " without knowing him and without defign, the killer · may walk on a pilgrimage a hundred yójanas, re-' peating any one of the Védas, eating barely " enough to fuftain life, and keeping his organs in · perfect fubjection ; 77. Or, if in that case the flayer be unlearned, · but rich; he may give all his property to fome

" Brabmen learned in the Veda, or a fufficiency of

- " wealth for his life, or a house and furniture to · bold while be lives :- .....

78. ' Or,

78. 'Or, eating only fuch wild grains as are offered to the gods, he may walk to the head of the river Sarafwaid against the course of the ftream; or, subsisting on very little food, he may thrice repeat the whole collection of Védas, or the Rich, Yajush, and Sáman.

79. 'Or, his hair being fhorn, he may dwell f near a town, or on pafture ground for cows, f or in fome holy place, or at the root of a facred tree, taking pleafure in doing good to cows and to Bráhmens:

80. 'There, for the prefervation of a cow or a Brábmen, let him inftantly abandon life; fince the preferver of a cow or a Brábmen atones for

• the crime of killing a prieft :

81. ' Or, by attempting at least three times

- forcibly to recover from robbers the property of a
- " Bråhmen, or by recovering it in one of its attacks,
- or even by lofing his life in the attempt, he • atones for his crime.
- 82. 'Thus continually firm in religious aufterity, chafte as a fludent in the first order, with
- · his mind intent on virtue, he may expiate the
- guilt of undefignedly killing a Bråhmen, after the • twelfth year has expired.

83. Or, if a virtuous Brahmen unintentionally kill another, who had no good quality, he may atone for his guilt by proclaiming it in an affembly of priefts and military men, at the facrifice of a horfe, and by bathing with other Brahmens at the · close of the facrifice :

85. ' From

85. ' From his high birth alone, a Bråhmen is · an object of veneration even to deities ; his de-· clarations to mankind are decifive evidence; and the Veda itself confers on him that character. 86. ' Three at leaft, who are learned in the "Veda; fhould be affemibled to declare the proper expiation for the fin of a priest, but, for the three · other classes, the number must be doubled, tripled, and • quadrupled : what they declare shall be an atone-6 ment for finners, fince the words of the learned " give purity. 87. ' Thus a Brabmen, who has performed one · of the preceding expiations, according to the cir-' cumstances of the homicide and the characters of the ' perfons killed and killing, with his whole mind fixed ' on GoD, purifies his foul, and removes the guilt · of flaying a man of his own clafs : 88. ' He must perform the fame penance for . killing an embryo, the lex of which was unknown, · but whofe parents were facerdotal, or a military • or a commercial man employed in a facrifice, or · a Bråbmeni woman, who has bathed after tem-· porary uncleannefs; 89. ' And the fame for giving falle evidence in · a caufe concerning land or gold, or precious commodities, and for acculing his preceptor unjuffly, and · for appropriating a deposit, and for killing the · wife of a prieft, who keeps a confectated fire, or · for flaying a friend. 90. ' Such is the atonement ordained for killing " a prieft without malice ; but for killing a Brab-" men with malice prepenfe, this is no expiation: the term of twelve years must be doubled, or, ' if in cafe was atrocious, the murderer must astually · die in flames or in battle.

91. · ANY

Tig 200 by Google

91. 'ANY twice born man, who has intentionally drunk fpirit of rice, through perverse delufion of mind, may drink more fpirit in flame, and atone for his offence by feverely burning his body;

92. • Or he may drink boiling hot, until he • die, the urine of a cow, or pure water, or milk, • or clarified butter, or juice expressed from • cow dung:

93. 'Or, if he tafted it unknowingly, he may 'explate the fin of drinking fpirituous liquor, by eating only fome broken rice or grains of tila, from which oil has been extracted, once every night for a whole year, wrapped in coarfe vefture of hairs from a cow's tail, or futing unclothed in his houfe, wearing his locks and beard uncut, and putting out the flag of a tavernkeeper.

94. Since the fpirit of rice is diftilled from the Mala, or filthy refule of the grain, and fince Mala is alfo a name for fin, let no Bráhmen, Chatriya or Vaifya drink that fpirit.

95. 'Inebriating liquor may be confidered as of three principal forts: that extracted from dregs of fugar, that extracted from bruifed rice, and that extracted from the flowers of the Madbúca: as one, fo are all; they fhall not be tafted by the chief of the twice born.
96. 'Those liquors, and eight other forts, with the flefh of animals, and Afava, the moft pernicious beverage, prepared with narcotick drugs, are fwallowed at the juncates of Yacfhas, Racfhafhas, and Pifachas: they fhall not, therefore, be tafted by a Bráhmen who feeds on clarified butter offered to gods.

98. " When the divine fpirit, or the light of boly * knowledge, which has been infused into his body. has once been fprinkled with any intoxicating · liquor, even his prieftly character leaves him, and he finks to the low degree of a Súdra. 99. ' Thus have been promulgated the various " modes of expiation for drinking fpirits : I will e next propound the atonement for flealing the e gold of a prieft to the amount of a fuverna. 100. ' HE, who has purloined the gold of a Brabmen, must hasten to the king, and proclaim ' his offence ; adding, " Inflict on me the punish-" ment due to my crime." 101. ' Then shall the king himself, taking from him an iron mace, which the criminal must · bear on bis shoulder, strike him with it once ; and by that ftroke, whether be die or be only left as dead, the thief is released from fin: a Brab-' men, by rigid penance alone, can expiate that of-' fence; another twice born man may also perform fuch a penance at his election. 102. ' The twice born man, who defires to "remove, by auftere devotion, the taint caufed · by stealing gold, must perform in a forest, co-· vered with a mantle of rough bark, the penance

born atone for the guilt of flealing gold from of a father, natural or fpiritual, they must explate

by the following penances.

' Or, having himfelf amputated his penis and fcrotum, and holding them in his fingers, ' he may walk in a direct path toward the fouthweft, or the region of NIRRITI, until he fall · dead on the ground : 106. ' Or, if be had mistaken ber for another " woman, he may perform, for a whole year, with .f intense application of mind, the penance prá-· japatya, with part of a bed, or a buman bone, ' in his hand, wrapped in vefture of coarfe bark, · letting his hair and beard grow; and living in a . deferted foreft: 107. 'Or, if she was of a lower class and a corrupt woman, he may explate the fin of violat-' ing the bed of his father, by continuing the penance chándráyana for three months, always " mortifying his body by eating only foreft herbs, or wild grains boiled in water. 108. By the preceding penances, may finners · of the two higher degrees atone for their guilt; * and the lefs offenders may explate theirs by the · following aufterities... 109. HE, who has committed the finaller · offence of killing a cow, without malice, must drink, for the first month, barley corns boiled ' foft in water; his head must be shaved en-- ' tirely; and, covered with the hide of the flain " cow, he must fix his abode on her late pasture ' ground :

112. ' Pure and free from paffion, he must ' ftand, while they ftand; follow them, wheh " they move together; and lie down by them, " when they lie down:

113. Should a cow be fick or terrified by tigers or thieves, or fall, or flick in mud, he ' must relieve her by all possible means :

114. ' In heat, in rain, or in cold, or while the blaft furioufly rages, let him not feek his own shelter, without first sheltering the cows to * the utmost of his power:

115. ' Neither in his own house, or field, or * floor for treading out grain, nor in those of any * other perfon, let him fay a word of a cow, who

" eats corn or grafs, or of a calf who drinks milk :

116. ' By waiting on a herd, according to thefe ' rules, for three months, the flayer of a cow * atones for his guilt ;

117. ' But, his penance being performed, he ' must give ten cows and a bull, or, his stock * not being fo large, must deliver all he possefies, to fuch as beft know the Véda.

118. ' THE preceding penances, or that called ' chándráyana, must be performed for the abso-' lution of all twice born men, who have com-" mitted fins of the lower or third degree; except ' those, who have incurred the guilt of an ava-· cirna; Y 2.

CHAPTER THE TWELFTH.

On Transinigration and Final Beatitude.

1. O THOU, who art free from fin,' faid the devout fages, ' thou hast declared the whole fystem ' of duties ordained for the four classes of men: ' explain to us now, from the first principles, the ' ultimate retribution for their deeds.'

2. BHRIGU, whole heart was the pure effence of virtue, who proceeded from MENU himfelf, thus addreffed the great fages: ' Hear the in-' fallible rules for the fruit of deeds in this unif verfe.

3. ACTION, either mental, verbal, or cor-<sup>4</sup> poreal, bears good or evil fruit, as it/elf is good <sup>5</sup> or evil; and from the actions of men proceed <sup>6</sup> their various transmigrations in the highest, the <sup>5</sup> mean, and the lowest degree :

4. • Of that three-fold action, connected with • bodily functions, difpofed in three claffes, and • confifting of ten orders, be it known in this • world, that the heart is the inftigator.

5. ' Deviling means to appropriate the wealth of other men, refolving on any forbidden deed, and <sup>4</sup> and conceiving notions of atheifm or mate, <sup>4</sup> rialifm, are the three bad acts of the mind :

6. 'Scurrilous language, falfehood, indiferi-'minate backbiting, and ufelefs tattle, are the 'four bad a&s of the tongue :

7. 'Taking effects not given, hurting fentient creatures without the fanction of law, and criminal intercourfe with the wife of another, are the three bad acts of the body; and all the ten bave their opposites, which are good in an equal degree.

8. • A rational creature has a reward or a • punifhment for mental acts, in his mind; for • verbal acts, in his organs of fpeech; for corpo-• real acts, in his bodily frame.

g. 'For finful acts mostly corporeal, a man 'fhall affume after death a vegetable or mineral form; for fuch acts mostly verbal, the form of a bird or a beaft; for acts mostly mental, the lowest of human conditions:

10. 'He, whole firm understanding obtains a command over his words, a command over his thoughts, and a command over his whole body, may justly be called a tridandi, or *triple com*mander; not a mere anchoret, who bears three vifible flaves.

11. The man, who exerts this triple felfcommand with refpect to all animated creatures, wholly fubduing both luft and wrath, fhall by those means attain beatitude.

12. 'THAT fubstance, which gives a power of 'motion to the body, the wife call cfbétrajnya, or jivátman, the vital spirit; and that body, which 'thence derives active functions, they name bbú-'tátman, or composed of elements:

13, 'Another internal spirit, called mahat, or the

No. of Street, or other

the great foul, attends the birth of all creatures f imbodied, and thence, in all mortal forms, is · conveyed a perception either pleafing or painful. 14. ' Those two, the vital spirit and reasonable foul, are clofely united with five elements, but · connected with the fupreme fpirit, or divine effence, which pervades all beings high and low: 15. ' From the substance of that supreme spirit, * are diffused, like sparks from fire, innumerable · vital fpirits, which perpetually give motion to creatures exalted and bafe. 16. ' By the vital fouls of those men, who " have committed fins in the body reduced to afhes. another body, composed of nerves with five fensations, in order to be susceptible of torment, ' fhall certainly be affumed after death : 17. ' And, being intimately united with those ' minute nervous particles, according to their diff tribution, they shall feel, in that new body, " the pangs inflicted in each cafe by the fentence · of YAMA. 18. When the vital foul has gathered the ' fruit of fins, which arife from a love of fenfual ' pleafure, but must produce mifery, and, when its taint has thus been removed, it approaches ' again those two most effulgent effences, the intellectual foul and the divine spirit : 19. ' They two, clofely conjoined, examine " without remiffion the virtues and vices of that fenfitive foul, according to its union with which f it acquires pleafure or pain in the prefent and future worlds. 20. ' If the vital spirit had practifed virtue

20. It the vital ipirit had practiled virtue f for the most part, and vice in a small degree, it enjoys delight in celestial abodes, clothed f with with a body formed of pure elementary par ticles;

21. 'But, if it had generally been addicted to vice, and feldom attended to virtue, then fhall it be deferted by those pure elements, and, baving a coarser body of sensible nerves, it feels the pains to which YAMA shall doom it:

22. 'Having endured those torments according to the sentence of YAMA, and its taint being almost removed, it again reaches those five pure elements in the order of their natural distribution.

23. Let each man, confidering with his intellectual powers these migrations of the soul, according to its virtue or vice, into a region of blis or pain, continually fix his heart on virtue.

24. BE it known, that the three qualities of the rational foul are a tendency to goodnefs, to paffion, and to darknefs; and, endued with one or more of them, it remains inceffantly attached to all these created fubftances:

25. When any one of the three qualities predominates in a mortal frame, it renders the imbodied fpirit eminently diffinguished for that quality.

26. Goodnefs is declared to be true knowledge; darknefs, groß ignorance; paffion, an emotion of defire or averfion; fuch is the compendious defcription of those qualities, which attend all fouls.

27. 'When a man perceives, in the reafonable foul, a difposition tending to virtuous love, unclouded with any malignant passion, clear as the pureft light, let him recognise it as the quality of goodness: 28. 'A temper of mind, which gives uneafiness

f and

<sup>c</sup> and produces difaffection, let him confider as <sup>c</sup> the adverfe quality of pallion, ever agitating

' imbodied fpirits :

29. 'That indiffinct, inconceivable, unaccount-'able difposition of a mind naturally fensual, and 'clouded with infatuation, let him know to be 'the quality of darkness.

30. 'Now will I declare at large the various 'acts, in the higheft, middle, and loweft degrees, 'which proceed from those three dispositions of 'mind.

31. Study of scripture, austere devotion, facred knowledge, corporeal purity, command over the organs, performance of duties, and meditation on the divine spirit, accompany the good quality of the soul:

32. Interefted motives for acts of religion or morality, perturbation of mind on flight occafions, commission of acts forbidden by law, and habitual indulgence in felfish gratifications, are attendant on the quality of passion:

33. Covetoufnels, indolence, avarice, detraction, atheifm, omiffion of prefcribed acts, a habit of foliciting favours, and inattention to neceffary bufinels, belong to the dark quality.

34. 'Of those three qualities, as they appear. 'in the three times, past, present, and future, the following in order from the lowest may be confidered as a short but certain criterion.

35. 'Let the wife confider, as belonging to 'the quality of darknefs, every act, which a man 'is afhamed of having done, of doing, or of going to do:

36. <sup>c</sup> Let them confider, as proceeding from <sup>c</sup> the quality of paffion, every act, by which a <sup>c</sup> man feeks exaltation and celebrity in this world, <sup>c</sup> though though he may not be much afflicted, if he fail of attaining his object :

37. 'To the quality of goodne's belongs every' 'act, by which he hopes to acquire divine know-'ledge, which he is never alhamed of doing, and 'which brings placid joy to his confeience.

:8. 'Of the dark quality, as defcribed, the 'principal object is pleafure; of the paffionate, 'worldly profperity; but of the good quality, the chief object is virtue: the last mentioned objects are superiour in dignity.

30. SUCH transmigrations, as the soul procures in this universe by each of those qualities, I now will declare in order succinctly.

40. 'Souls, endued with goodnefs, attain al-'ways the flate of deities; those filled with am-'bitious passions, the condition of men; and 'those immersed in darknefs, the nature of beasts: 'this is the triple order of transmigration.

4:. 'Each of those three transmigrations, caused ' by the feveral qualities, must also be confidered ' as three-fold, the lowest, the mean, and the ' highest, according to as many distinctions of ' acts and of knowledge.

42. Vegetable and mineral fubftances, worms, infects, and reptiles, fome very minute, fome rather larger, fifh, fnakes, tortoifes, cattle, fhakals, are the loweft forms, to which the dark quality leads:

43. Elephants, horfes, men of the fervile clafs, and contemptible Mléch'has, or barbarians, lions, tigers, and boars, are the mean flates procured by the quality of darknefs:

44. 'Dancers and fingers, birds, and deceitful men, giants and blood-thirfty favages, are the higheft conditions to which the dark quality can ferd. 45. 'J ballas.

45. ' Fballas, or cudgel players, Mallas, or boxers and wreftlers, Natas, or actors, those " who teach the use of weapons, and those who are ' addicted to gaming or drinking, are the loweft forms occafioned by the paffionate quality : 46. ' Kings, men of the fighting clafs, domeftick ' priefts of kings, and men skilled in the war of ' controverfy, are the middle flates caufed by the quality of paffion : 47. Gandbarvas, or aerial muficians, Gubyacas ' and Yachas, or fervants and companions of CUVE'RA, genii attending superiour gods, as the ' Vidyadbaras and others, together with various ' companies of Aplarales or nymphs, are the ' higheft of those forms, which the quality of · paffion attains.

48. 'Hermits, religious mendicants, other Brábmens, fuch orders of demigods as are wafted in airy cars, genii of the figns and lunar manfions, and Daityas, or the offspring of DITI, are the loweft of states procured by the quality of goodness:

49. 'Sacrificers, holy fages, deities of the 'lower heaven, genii of the Védas, regents of ftars 'not in the paths of the fun and moon, divinities of 'years, Pitris or progenitors of mankind, and the demigods named Sádhyas, are the middle forms, 'to which the good quality conveys all fpirits 'moderately endued with it: 50. 'BRAHMA' with four faces, creators of

51. 'This triple fyftem of transmigrations, in 'which each class has three orders, according to 'actions of three kinds, and which comprises all 'animated beings, has been revealed in its full 'extent:

5. 'Thus, by indulging the fenfual appetites, 'and by neglecting the performance of duties, 'the bafeft of men, ignorant of facred expiations, 'affume the bafeft forms.

53. WHAT particular bodies the vital fpirit enters in this world, and in confequence of what fins here committed, now hear at large and in order.

54. 'Sinners, in the first degree, having passed 'through terrible regions of torture for a great 'number of years, are condemned to the following 'births, at the close of that period, to efface all re-'mains of their fin.

55. 'The flayer of a Brábmen must enter ac'cording to the circumstances of bis crime the body 'of a dog, a boar, an aís, a camel, a bull, a goat,
'a fheep, a ftag, a bird, a Chandála, or a Puccasa.
56. 'A priest, who has drunk spirituous liquor,
'fhall migrate into the form of a smaller or larger

" worm or infect, of a moth, of a fly feeding on " ordure, or of fome ravenous animal.

57. 'He, who fteals the gold of a prieft, fhall 'pafs a thousand times into the bodies of spiders, of fnakes and cameleons, of crocodiles and other aquatick monsters, or of mischievous bloodfucking demons.

58. 'He, who violates the bed of his natural or fpiritual father, migrates a hundred times into the form of graffes, of fhrubs with crowded ftems, or of creeping and twining plants, of vultures and other carnivorous animals, of lions and

t and other beafts with tharp teeth, or of tigers and t other cruel brutes.

59. 'They who hurt any fentient beings, are born cats and other eaters of raw flefh; they who tafte what ought not to be tafted, maggots or fmall flies; they who fteal ordinary things, devourers of each other: they who embrace very low women, become reftlefs ghofts.

60. 'He who has held intercourse with degraded men, or been criminally connected with the wife of another, or ftolen common things from a prieft, shall be changed into a spirit called Brabmarácsbaja.

61. 'The wretch, who through coveroufnefs' has ftolen rubies or other gems, pearls, or coral, or precious things, of which there are many forts; fhall be born in the tribe of goldfmiths, or among birds called hémacáras, or gold makers.
62. 'If a man fteal grain in the hufk, he fhall be born a rat; if a yellow mixed metal, a gander; if water, a plava, or diver; if honey, a great ftinging gnat; if milk, a crow; if expreffed juice, a dog; if clarified butter, an ich-

' neumon weafel ;

63. If he fteal flefh mear, a vulture; if any fort of fat, the water-bird madgü; if oil, a blatta, or oil-drinking beetle; if falt, a cicada or cricket;
if curds, the bird valúca;

64. • If filken clothes, the bird tittiri; if wo-• ven flax, a frog; if cotton cloth, the water bird • crauncha; if a cow, the lizard gódbá; if molasses, • the bird vágguda;

65. If exquisite perfumes, a musk-rat; if potherbs, a peacock; if dressed grain in any of its various forms; a porcupine; if raw grain, a hedge-hog;

66. · 1f

66. ' If he steal fire, the bird vaca ; if a house-

' hold utenfil, an ichneumon fly ; if dyed cloth, the ' bird chacora ;

67. ' If a deer or an elephant, he shall be born ' a wolf; if a horse, a tiger; if roots or fruit, an ape; ' if a woman, a bear; if water from a jar, the bird ' chátaca; if carriages, a camel; if small cattle, a ' goat.

68. 'That man, who defignedly takes away the 'property of another, or eats any holy cakes not first prefented to the deity at a folemn rite, shall inevitably fink to the condition of a brute.

69. Women, who have committed fimilar thefts, incur a fimilar taint, and fhall be paired with those male beafts in the form of their females.

70. ' IF any of the four classes omit, without ' urgent necessity, the performance of their feveral ' duties, they shall migrate into sinful bodies, and ' become flaves to their foes.

71. 'Should a Bráhmen omit his peculiar duty, 'he fhall be changed into a demon called Ulcá-'muc'ha or with a mouth like a firebrand, who de-'vours what has been vomited; a Cfhatriya into 'a demon called Catapútana, who feeds on ordure 'and carrion;

72. ' A Vaifya, into an evil being called Mai-' trácsbajyótica, who eats purulent carcaffes; and ' a Súdra, who neglects his occupations, becomes ' a foul imbodied spirit called Chailásaca, who ' feeds on lice.

73. <sup>6</sup> As far as vital fouls, addicted to fenfu-<sup>6</sup> ality, indulge themfelves in forbidden pleafures, <sup>6</sup> even to the fame degree fhall the acutenefs of <sup>6</sup> their fenfes be raifed in their future bodies, that <sup>6</sup> they may endure analogous pains;

and the second

74. ' And

74. * And, in confequence of their folly, they fhall be doomed, as often as they repeat their cri-' minal acts, to pains more and more intenfe in · defpicable forms on this earth.

75. ' They shall first have a sensation of agony ' in Tami/ra or utter darkness, and in other feats ' of horrour; in Asipatravana, or the sword-leaved · forest, and in different places of binding fast and ' of rending :

76. . Multifarious tortures await them : they fhall be mangled by ravens and owls, fhall fwal-· low cakes boiling hot; fhall walk over inflamed ' fands, and shall feel the pangs of being baked · like the veffels of a potter : 77. ' They shall assume the forms of beasts con-tinually miferable, and fuffer alternate afflictions

- from extremities of cold and of heat, furrounded
- with terrours of various kinds: 78. ' More than once shall they lie in different
- · wombs; and, after agonizing births, be con- · demned to fevere captivity, and to fervile atten-
- dance on creatures like themfelves:

79. ' Then shall follow separations from kindred and friends, forced refidence with the wicked,

- · painful gains and ruinous loffes of wealth;
- friendships hardly acquired, and at length
- changed into enmities, 80. 'Old age without refource, difeases at-
- tended with anguish, pangs of innumerable forts,
- and, lastly, unconquerable death.

81. With whatever disposition of mind a e man shall perform in this life any act religious e or moral, in a future body endued with the fame,

- quality, shall he receive his retribution.
- 82. ' Thus has been revealed to you the fystem • of

A a 2

- ' of punishments for evil deeds : next learn those ' acts of a Brábmen which lead to eternal blis.
- 82. ' Studying and comprehending the Véda, 'practifing pious austerities, acquiring divine · knowledge of law and philosophy, command over the organs of fenfe and action, avoiding all injury ' to fentient creatures, and fhowing reverence to ' a natural and spiritual father, are the chief ' branches of duty which enfure final happinefs.' 84. ' Among all those good acts performed in ' this world, faid the fages, is no fingle act held more powerful than the reft in leading men to beatitude ?' 85. ' OF all those duties, answered BHRIGU, the e principal is to acquire from the Upanishads a true knowledge of one fupreme GOD; that is ' the most exalted of all sciences, because it en-' fures immortality : 85. ' In this life, indeed, as well as the next, ' the fludy of the Véda, to acquire a knowledge of ' GOD, is held the most efficacious of those fix "duties in procuring felicity to man; 87. ' For in the knowledge and adoration of ' one GOD, which the Véda teaches, all the rules ' of good conduct, before-mentioned in order, are fully comprifed. 93. ' The ceremonial duty, prefcribed by the " Veda, is of two kinds; one connected with this ' world, and caufing profperity on earth; the " other abstracted from it, and procuring blifs in · heaven.

89. A religious act, proceeding from felfifh • views in this world, as a facrifice for rain, or in • the next, as a pious oblation in hope of a future • reward, is declared to be concrete and interefted; • but

· but an act performed with a knowledge of GoD,

' and without felf-love, is called abstract and dif-' interested.

90. 'He, who frequently performs interested rites, attains an equal station with the regents of the lower heaven : but he, who frequently performs difinterested acts of religion, becomes for ever exempt from a body composed of the five elements : 91. 'Equally perceiving the supreme foul in all beings, and all beings in the supreme foul, he

' facrifices his own spirit by fixing it on the spirit

• of GOD, and approaches the nature of that fole • divinity who fhines by his own effulgence.

92. 'Thus must the chief of the twice born, though he neglect the ceremonial rites mentioned in the Sáftras, be diligent alike in attaining a knowledge of GoD, and in repeating the Véda:

93. 'Such is the advantageous privilege of thofe, who have a double birth from their natural mothers and from the gáyatrì their fpiritual mother, especially of a Bráhmen; fince the twice born man, by performing this duty, but not otherwise, may foon acquire endless felicity.

94. 'To patriarchs, to deities, and to mankind, the fcripture is an eye giving conflant light; nor could the Véda Sáftra have been made by human faculties; nor can it be meafured by human reafon unaffifted by revealed gloffes and comments: this is a fure proposition.
95. 'Such codes of law as are not grounded

• on the Véda, and the various heterodox theories • of men, produce no good fruit after death; • for they all are declared to have their bafis on • darknefs.

96. ' All

o6. ' All fystems which are repugnant to the · Véda, must bave been composed by mortals, and ' fhall foon perifh : their modern date proves them vain and falfe. 07. ' The three worlds, the four claffes of men. and their four diftinct orders, with all that has been, all that is, and all that will be, are made known by the Véda: 98. ' The nature of found, of tangible and vifible shape, of taste, and of odour, the fifth object · of fense, is clearly explained in the Véda alone, · together with the three qualities of mind, the * births attended with them, and the acts which * they occafion. 99. ' All creatures are fuftained by the prime-· val Véda Sástra, which the wife therefore hold <sup>4</sup> fupreme, becaufe it is the fupreme fource of prof-· perity to this creature, man. 100. ' Command of armies, royal authority, · power of inflicting punifhment, and fovereign dominion over all nations, he only well deferves. " who perfectly understands the Véda Sástra. 101. ' As fire with augmented force burns up even humid trees, thus he, who well knows " the Véda, burns out the taint of fin, which has ' infected his foul.

102. 'He who completely knows the fenfe of the Véda Séfira, while he remains in any one of the four orders, approaches the divine nature.

103. 'They who have read many books, are 'more exalted than fuch as have feldom ftudied 'they who retain what they have read, than for-'getful readers; they who fully understand, 'than fuch as only remember; and they who 'perform <sup>6</sup> perform their known duty, than fuch men as <sup>6</sup> barely know it.

104. 'Devotion and facred knowledge are the 'beft means by which a Brábmen can arrive at 'beatitude: by devotion he may deftroy guilt; 'by facred knowledge he may acquire immortal 'glory.

105. 'Three modes of proof, ocular demon-'ftration, logical inference, and the authority of 'those various books, which are deduced from the 'Véda, must be well understood by that man who 'feeks a diffinct knowledge of all his duties.

106. 'He alone comprehends the fystem of duties, religious and civil, who can reason, by rules of logic agreeable to the Véda, on the general heads of that fystem, as revealed by the holy fages.

107. These rules of conduct, which lead to fupreme blifs, have been exactly and comprehensively declared: the more secret learning of this Mánava Sástra shall now be disclosed.

108. ' IF it be afked, how the law thall be af-' certained, when particular cafes are not com-' prifed under any of the general rules, the an-' fiver is this: " That, which well inftructed " Bråhmens propound, thall be held inconteftable " law."

109. Well instructed Bråbmens are they who can adduce ocular proof from the scripture itfelf, having studied, as the law ordains, the Védas and their extended branches, or Védangas,

· Mimánsa, Nyáya, Dherma sástra, Puránas:

110 ' A point of law, before not expressly re-

• vealed, which shall be decided by an assembly of · ten fuch virtuous Bråbmens under one chief, or,

" if ten be not procurable, of three fuch, under one

· president, let no man controvert.

III. 'The

111. ' The affembly of ten under a chief, either the king bimself, or a judge appointed by bim, " must confist of three, each of them peculiarly · conversant with one of the three Védas; of a fourth, skilled in the Nyáya, and a fifth in the Mi-" mánía philosophy; of a fixth, who has particularly ftudied the Nirusta; a feventh, who has applied ' himfelf most assiduously to the Dhermasastra; ! and of three universal scholars, who are in the three first orders.

112. ' One, who has chiefly fludied the Rige véda, a fecond who principally knows the Ya-: julb, and a third best acquainted with the Saman, are the affembly of three under a head, who may remove all doubts, both in law and cafuiftry.

113. 'Even the decifion of one prieft, if more can-· not be affembled, who perfectly knows the princi-· ples of the Védas, must be confidered as law of the higheft authority; not the opinion of myriads, who have no facred knowledge.

114. ' Many thousands of Brabmens cannet · form a legal affembly for the decifion of contefts, f if they have not performed the duties of a regu-· lar ftudentship, are unacquainted with scriptural e texts, and fubfift only by the name of their facerf dotal clafs.

115. ' The fin of that man, to whom dunces, e pervaded by the quality of darkness, propound the law, of which they are themfelves ignorant, fhall pafs, increafed a hundred-fold, to the wretches f who propound it.

116. ' This comprehensive system of duties, the chief caufe of ultimate felicity, has been declared to you; and the Brahmen, who never def parts from it, shall attain a superiour state above. 117. ' Thus did the all-wife MENU, who pof-· feffes

and the second

feffes extensive dominion, and blazes with heaf venly fplendour, disclose to me, from his benevolence to mankind, this transcendent system of law, which must be kept devoutly concealed from persons unfit to receive it. 118. LET every Brabmen with fixed attention consider all nature, both visible and invisible, as existing in the divine spirit; for, when he contemplates the boundles universe existing in the divine spirit, he cannot give his heart to iniquity: 119. The divine spirit alone is the whole affemblage of gods; all worlds are feated in the divine spirit; and the divine spirit, no doubt, produces, by a chain of causes and effects consistent

GENERAL NOTE.

THE learned Hindus are unanimoufly of opinion, that many laws enacted by MENU, their oldeft reputed legiflator, were confined to the three first ages of the world, and have no force in the prefent age, in which a few of them are certainly obfolete; and they ground their opinion on the following texts, which are collected in a work entitled, Madana ratna pradipa.

I. CRATU: In the Cali age a fon must not be begotten on a widow by the brother of the deceased husband; nor must a damsel, once given away in marriage, be given a second time; nor must a bull be offered in a facrifice; nor must a water-pot be carried by a student in theology.

II. VRIHASPATI: I. Appointments of kinfmen to beget children on widows, or married women, when the hufbands are deceafed or impotent, are mentioned by the fage MENU, but forbidden by himfelf, with a view to the order of the four ages; no fuch act can be legally done in this age by any others than the bufband.

2. In the first and second ages men were endued with true piety and sound knowledge; so they were in the third age; but in the sourch, a diminution of their moral and intellestual powers was ordained by their Creator:

3. Thu

3. Thus were fons of many different forts made by ancient fages; but fuch cannot now be adopted by men deflitute of those eminent powers.

III. PARA'SARA: 1. A man, who has beld intercourfe with a deadly finner, must abandon his country in the first age; he must leave his town in the fecond; his family in the third age; but in the fourth he needs only defert the offender.

2. In the first age, he is degraded by mere conversation with a degraded man; in the fecond, by touching him; in the third, by receiving food from him; but in the fourth, the finner alone bears his guilt.

IV. NA'RADA: The procreation of a fon by a brother of the deceased, the flaughter of cattle in the entertainment of a gueft, the repart on flesh meat at funeral obsequies, and the order of a hermit, are forbidden, or obsolete, in the fourth age.

V. Aditya purána: 1. What was a duty in the first age, must not, in all cafes, be done in a fourth; fince, in the Cali yuga, both men and women are addicted to fin:

2. Such are a fludentship continued for a very long time, and the necessity of carrying a waterpot, marriage with a paternal kinswoman, or with a near maternal relation, and the facrifice of a bull,

3. Or of a man, or of a horfe : and all fpirituous liquor muft, in the Cali age, be avoided by twice born men; fo muft a fecond gift of a married young woman, whose husband has died before confummation, and the larger portion of an eldeft brother, and procreation on a brother's widow or wife.

VI. Smriti: 1. The appointment of a man to beget a fon on the widow of his brother; the gift of a young married woman to another bridegroom, if ber bufband floculd die while fhe remains a virgin; 2. The 2. The marriage of twice-born men with damfels not of the fame clafs; the flaughter, in a religious war, of Brabmens, who are affailants with intent to kill;

3. Any intercourfe with a twice born man, who has paffed the fea in a fhip, even though he have performed an expiation; performances of facrifices for all forts of men; and the neceffity of carrying a water-pot;

4. Walking on a pilgrimage till the pilgrim die; and the flaughter of a bull at a facrifice; the acceptance of fpirituous liquors, even at the ceremony called Sautrámani;

5. Receiving what has been licked off, at an oblation to fire, from the pot of clarified butter; entrance into the third order, or that of a hermit, though ordained for the first ages;

6. The diminution of crimes in proportion to the religious acts and facred knowledge of the offenders; the rule of expiation for a Bribmen extending to death;

7. The fin of holding any intercourfe with finners; the fecret expiation of any great crimes, except theft; the flaughter of cattle in honour of eminent guefts, or of anceftors;

8. The filiation of any but a fon legally begotten, or given in adoption by bis parents; the defertion of a lawful wife for any offence lefs than actual adultery:

9. These parts of ancient law were abrogated by wile legislators, as the cases arose at the beginning of the Cali age, with an intent of securing mankind from evil.

On the preceding texts it must be remarked, that none of them, except that of VRIHASPATI, are cited by Cullu'ca, who never seems to have confidered any other laws of MENU as restrained to the three first ages; that of the Smriti, or facred code, is quoted without the name of the legiflator; and that the prohibition, in any age, of felfdefence, even against Brábmens, is repugnant to a text of SUMANTU, to the precept and example of CRISHNA himfelf, according to the Mabábbárat, and even to a fentence in the Véda, by which every man is commanded to defend his own life frem all violent aggreffors.
