

Hindu, Asura, and Deva Cultures, an Archeological View by Potluri Rao In Seattle ©2018 (CC BY 4.0)

The current version of human history is based on a false assumption that Hindu were the Europe Homo Sapiens that moved from Europe to India via Iran. An analysis of DNA samples of the Indian populations revealed an entirely different version of human history. Hindu were Asia Homo Sapiens, not Europe Homo Sapiens.

Hindu, the DNA F, were the Asia Clade of Homo Sapiens that moved from Ethiopia (Africa) to Trikuta (India) 100,000 years ago. They were rainwater people, and lived only in the Tropical Zone, warm and toasty. They avoided the Himalayas and its rivers (Indus, Ganges) like the plague. At that time, the landscape, as shown in the above map, was entirely different; much of the world was covered with glaciers, and the seawater was far below the current levels.

The Eastern Europeans (DNA R1a) and Persians (DNA R1a1) were Europe Homo Sapiens. They evolved in the Temperate Zone, to the north of Tropic of Cancer. They evolved from Ice Age to Stone Age to Iron Age to the current Europeans.

Culturally, Hindu (Tropical, ancient) and Europeans (Temperate, recent) were the exact opposites.

Historians who wrote books on human history were unaware of Hindu in the Tropical Zone. Sindhu was the original Persian name for Indus. Since Sindhu rhymes with Hindu, historians mistakenly called people along the Sindhu river as Hindu.

People along the Sindhu were Europe Homo Sapiens, not Hindu Asia Homo Sapiens.

Hindu never lived to the north of Tropic of Cancer. They avoided the Himalayas and the Sindhu like the plague. Sindhu were the exact opposite of Hindu.

From archeological perspective, it is critical that we treat Sindhu and Hindu as different categories of Homo Sapiens.

Until 4,000 years ago, on the Indian subcontinent, there were no people to the north of Tropic of Cancer. The south of Tropic of Cancer, the peninsular India, was occupied by Hindu for over 100,000 years. Originally, they lived in Tigris, Balochistan, and Sunda. After the glacial melt, they moved to the Trikuta area. They were rainwater people. They lived only along perennial rainwater resources with abundant supply of food. They were compassionate peace-loving people. They never had a war or god. They painted the Sunda caves 60,000 years ago.

Four thousand years ago, there was a global drought that lasted for almost 200 years. Some Europeans were forced to move to Bactria. The R1a and R1a1 lived in different parts of Bactria. They were subgroups of the R1. Culturally, they were different people. Some R1a moved from Bactria to the Sindhu. The R1a1 lived only in the South Bactria, called Avesta. They did not follow the R1a to the Sindhu.

The concepts of King, War, and God were European inventions. Hindu never had these concepts; they were compassionate peace-loving people. They lived in peace and prosperity for 100,000 years.

Europeans were constantly at war to kill each other to get rich. It was their culture. The R1a of the Sindhu were the people of the epic Mahabharata. They were Sindhu, not Hindu. They were split into several gangs: Bharata, Kuru, Panchala, Matsya, Tsudra, Surasena, etc. They moved to the Sindhu only 4,000 years ago.

The epic Mahabharata was a story of Sindhu gangs killing each other. It had nothing to do with the compassionate peace loving Hindu who never lived at the Sindhu. Culturally, Sindhu (R1a) and Hindu (F) were the exact opposites.

The Persians who lived in Avesta (South Bactria) had a different history.

Avestans, Persians of Avesta, were genetically two subgroups: (1) Asura (R1a1), and (2) Deva (Z93, R1a1-a1h). They were culturally the exact opposites, and hated each other.

Asura considered Deva as unethical and immoral people and expelled them to Kashmir. Deva (Z93) lived as refugees only in Kashmir. They were functionally social outcasts.

In all the fictional stories invented by the Deva, Deva were portrayed as gods and Asura as the evil demons.

In all the fictional stories invented by the Asura, Asura were portrayed as gods and Deva as the evil demons.

The Asura literature was called Zend. The Deva literature was called Vedas. Vedas and Zend had the same gods with different names. Vedas' gods were demons of the Zend. Vedas were the vandalized versions of Zend to glorify Deva.

One of the Avesta inscriptions, discovered in 1935, called the XPh ("Daiva inscription"), stated clearly that Deva (Daiva) were expelled some time after 500 BCE for their unethical behavior.

Original Vedas were composed in Avesta by Deva before 500 BCE. They were banned in Avesta. The extant versions were revised versions, financed by the Greeks, to incorporate Indian legends and landmarks, to deliberately destroy the Hindu cultures.

The Asura are now called Parsis. The Deva are now called Brahmin. The Greeks, after 200 BCE, discovered the unethical Deva and employed them to vandalize Hindu literature. The Greek financed vandalized literature was called Brahmanas, hence the name Brahmin for the Deva.

Brahmin (Deva) were expelled to Kashmir by Asura around 500 BCE for unethical behavior. Parsis (Asura) were expelled to the Gujarat State (Mumbai, Bombay) by the Muslims who occupied Avesta around 500 CE.

India consists of only four groups: (1) Hindu (F) who lived for more than 100,000 years, (2) Mahabharata (R1a) who lived only at the Sindhu for less than 4,000 years, (3) Brahmin (Z93) the refugees in Kashmir since 500 BCE, and (4) Parsis (R1a1) the refugees in Gujarat since 500 CE.

Hindu never had a war or god. They never heard of Vedas or Brahmin until the Greek colonialists used the unethical Brahmin stooges to rob them with idolatry.

There was no idolatry in the original Vedas or Zend of Avesta. Idolatry was found only in the Greek financed Brahmin rubbish invented in Kashmir.

Idolatry (Vishnu, Shiva, Buddha, Rama, Krishna) was a Greek invention. Vishnu Agamas (Vaisnavism), Shiva Agamas (Shaivism), Buddhacarita (Buddhism), Uttara Ramayana (Ramaism), and Mahabharata (Krishnaism) were composed or compiled only after the Greeks (200 BCE). They were falsely attributed to antiquity.

The archeological evidence has an entirely different story of humans to tell. Hindu were a logic based advanced culture of explorers and pioneers who voluntarily left Ethiopia (Africa) 100,000 years ago in search of life sustaining dependable perennial rainwater resources. The other three groups were recent European immigrants, not Hindu.

Unfortunately, 100,000 years of human history was wiped out in a few decades, by the Greek colonialists and unethical Persians (Brahmin).
